TO PROPAGATE BLACKBERRIES

Bury Tips of New Canes and Then Separate These Old Plants and Start Patch Next Spring.

Blackberries are propagated from tip plants—that is by burying the tips of the new canes and then separating these from the old plants and starting the fresh patch the following spring. These tips should be buried rather early, so that they will make a thrifty fall growth.

Order From Good Nursery. You will be able to get twice as many trees for the same money by ordering them direct from a reliable nursery rather than patronizing a tree agent.

Mulch for Strawberries. Mulch strawberries with straw, leaves, cornstalks or wild hay as soon as the ground freezes.

Red Clover Is Best. Red clover is better than blue grass in orchards.

BUILDING MANY NEW TRAILS

To Assist in Construction of Highways Federal Fund of $64,533,019 Has Been Approved.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Between 9,000 and 10,000 miles of the marked trails which now crisscross the country from east to west and north to south are to be constructed by federal aid. This amount is composed of 855 projects, which form links in one or the other of the 24 marked trails which have been laid out by private associations.

Every automobilist is familiar with the Dixie highway, the Mohawk trail, the Roosevelt highway, and a score of other marked trails, which are so well built and maintained that driving on them is a joy and comfort. To assist in building these highways a federal fund of $64,533,019 had been approved by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture up to September 30, 1920.

These trails do not constitute an entirely satisfactory system of transcontinental roads, as officials of the department say their selection in many cases has been influenced too much by such factors as pre-existing conditions, promise of improvement by local communities, pressure of selfish influence, and a desire to touch points of scenic and historical interest.

The extent to which federal aid has been applied to the trails varies in the different states. Naturally the Western states are using much more of their federal apportionments in developing roads of this character than the Eastern states. This is due to the fact that the trails in the Eastern states had already been improved to a large extent before the roads were selected by the pathfinders. This was not true in the West, where long stretches of the selected roads were still in an unimproved condition when they were designated. Nevada weds in its use of federal funds on roads of this character.

A Trail Through the Mountains in Nevada.

Eighty-three per cent of its entire mileage of approved federal-aid roads lies on one or the other of the trails which cross the state. On these roads Nevada will spend 90 per cent of the federal money which has been granted to her.

DRIVERS CAN ASSIST ROADS

In Going Up Hill, Particularly One Paved With Concrete, Right Side Is Favored.

"Di'vers can do as much, almost, for the maintenance of good roads as highway engineers," declares Alfred F. Masury. "Did you ever notice," asked Mr. Masury, "in going up a hill, particularly one paved with asphaltic concrete, that the surface on the righ-hand side of the road is wavy and rough, while that on the left-hand side is smooth?

"Well, the reason is this: The extra traction required to climb the hill wears and tears the surface, while there is little or no traction down hill.

"Another thing, the right-hand track of the road in either direction is the one which is worn most. This is because of the arched surface of the road which throws the greater weight and strain on the right-hand side of the vehicle and consequently the righthand side of the roadway. Truck builders and wagon makers have even adjusted their axles and springs so as to withstand the greater strain on the right-hand side of the vehicle.
