People Killed in Railroad Wrecks. A report recently issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that the total number of casualties to persons on railroads to the United June 30, 1904, was 55,180, comprising 2.787 killed and 51,343 injured. This shows a large increase over any other year. It is a large total, and, in comparison, may be said to be similar to the complete destruction of any one of such cities as Sait Lake City, Utah; San Antonio, Texas; Racine, Wis.; Topeka, Kan.; Waterbury, Conn.; Wilkesbarre, Pa., or Augusta, Ga., neither of which has anything like 53,000 inhabitants. In both the American and British armies, Sept. 19, and Oct. 7, 11, and 12, 1777, in the series of fights and movements around Saratoga, as included by E. S. Creasy, in his "Fif-teen Decisive Battles of the World." there were less than 20,000 men; while the highest total given by C. K. Adams in Johnson's "Cyclopaedia," of the killed, wounded, and missing on both sides at Waterloo, one of the greatest battles of all time, is 54,428 men -not so many by 702 as last year's total of United States railroad casualties. The number of collisions and derailments during the past year was 11,291, involving $9,383,697 in damages to rolling stock and roadbeds. This gives the astounding increase of 648 collisions and derailments over 1903-astounding
