One Minute Cough Cure
For Coughs, Colds and Croup.

HOULTON.

From Portland Telegram.

Houlton is one of the liveliest little villages of its size on the Pacific Coast, and does more business than towns triple its size. It is the distributing point for the mail of nine villages, and it's people are wide awake and up to date. There are three general merchandise stores—Perry & Graham, Brinn & Bailey and Girty & Robey the latter firm has recently purchased the large general merchandise store of Oliver B th members of firm are well and favorably known, James Spence, one of Houlton's pioneers, has a large carriage factory and blacksmith shop, and Mr. Weeks, another pioneer, has the meat market. There is also a dentist, a jeweler and a first class weekly newspaper, "The Columbia Register" published by R. H. Mitchell. Houlton has two first class hotels. "The Houlton House" and "The Vermont", the latter owned by G. D. Gilson, a pioneer of Houlton, and the hotel is named in honor of his native state, where a brother recently purchased the old Drwev homestead near Montpelier, Vt. This was the former home of Admiral George Dewey.

N. A. Perry, of Perry & Graham, merchants, is Mayor and Postmaster of Houlton, and is the son of Mrs E. Perry the oldest living settler in Columbia County. All the Northern Pacific trains pass through Houlton, also the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad. The village is surrounded by splendid agricultural and fruit-bearing country, and is only one mile from Columbia City. The great boon to Houlton is the mammoth plant of the Western Coopersage Company, which employs 175 men, and plans are now being made for another warehouse. This firm manufactures stoves and barrel supplies for most of the big coopersage companies on the Pacific Coast, and have branch factories and offices at Portland, Los Angeles Astoria, Aberdeen and Ballard. W. Belfor is superintendent and general manager of the big plant at Houlton, which owns and controls an immense flume six miles long, and which also supplies the steamboats with cordwood.

The following are officers of Houlton Mayor, N. A. Perry; Councilmen, W. E. Belford Abraham Crouse, Chas. Hein and R. H. Mitchell. Recorder, Lealy Bailey; Treasurer, Chas. Graham.

CLATSKANIE.

From Portland Telegram.

The village of Clatskanie is one of the most picturesque on the Pacific Coast, and is also one of the oldest. It lies in the center of the beautiful Clatskanie Valley, and is surrounded by a fertile agricultural country and splendid timber lands; it's logging camps and big mills rank among the foremost on the Coast.

Clatskanie has a population of about 600, and is growing very rapidly. It is situated on the Clatskanie River, and is navigable to a point some ten miles into the timber land. Among the large mills and lumber companies are the Tichenor Lumber Company, who manufacture cedar and yellow fir flooring, etc., and the J. C. Benson logging camp and lumber company is one of the largest of it's kind in the country. They own and operate a branch railway from the Columbia to a point about six miles in the timber country. Mr. Benson also erected a large depot at Clatskanie to be used for storing and shipping lumber. The West Oregon Lumber Company, of which E. D. Kingsley is manager, has a capacity of 25,000 feet of lumber per day, and has a flume five miles long the woods to the planing mill at the end of the flume.

Clatskanie has a number of first-class business houses, among the most prominent and up-to-date business men are Henry Kratz, a son of Mr. August Kratz proprietor of "the Tavern Cafe," of Portland.

Clatskanie is well supplied with hotels and the largest is the "New Home," conducted by J. W. McDonald. The depot of Astoria & Columbia River Railroad is a mile away, and the scenery is very picturesque. Clatskanie has two churches and one of the best school buildings in the country.

North of Clatskanie are the timber capped Nehalem hills, and beyond is the beautiful Nehalem Valley, which is said to be the most fertile agricultural and fruit section in the Pacific Northwest. There are several surveys now being made for a rapid transit road from Tacoma to Portland, one on the Oregon side and the other on the Washington. Should one of the projects on the Washington side of the Columbia, the line will run a ferry from the City of Kelso to Rainier, making connections between the two cities every few minutes. The line has already been surveyed from Portland to Kalama over a roadbed of the Washington Railroad, which was abandoned some years ago.

NUSHAGAK LETTER

Nushagak, Alaska, June 3, 1905.

Columbia Register—As I was requested to write to you and tell about this part of Alaska I will say that it is similar to that of Nome which all have read about. It is a barren country there being no timber within 600 miles of here. The industry is Salmon fishing. There are fifteen canneries Nushagak River of which average about 60,000 cases of salmon to the cannery in the season. The season is started in earlier than usual and a large pack is expected this year. There has been an exceedingly mild winter here there not being enough snow to work the teams, although it is cold and stormy at present.

Respectfully Yours
JAMES COX.

STOPPING A PAPER

I am here to assert that it is useless to get ahead of an editor. It can't be done. I tried once and failed.

Last spring I wrote the following letter which will explain itself:—

"To editor of Port Orford Tribune.

Dear Sir. Last year a friend living in your county presented me with a subscription to the Tribune in return for having named the baby after him. I see my time has expired, and write to ask you to discontinue my number, not that I don't appreciate the paper, I do, and will be sorry so lose it, but owing to the rapid increase in my family, I feel I cannot afford any other luxuries, besides I have no time to read, compelled to lie awake nights studying up names for the new comers. We had another St. Patrick's day and we ain't Irish either. This makes nine.

Last year the rains destroyed my hay crop, my potatoes blighted, and all other crops were more or less a failure, except the baby crop, it never fails.

The first time an event of this kind occurred I bought a jug of "Old Rye", hired a band and proceeded to make merry: but now it gives me cold feet, and I can barely dig up enough to pay the nurse. I was told President Roosevelt was always delighted to hear of cases like mine, so when our last boy was born I wrote him a letter stating my family conditions thinking perhaps he would favor me with an appointment as postmaster here, as the present incumbent has but six children. He didn't even offer his sympathy.

In answer to my friendly letter he wrote a brief note saying he had always heard Oregon was a great place for sage brush and jack rabbits, and she seemed to be keeping up her reputation, but if I would move where there was no sage brush perhaps these events would not occur so often. "I wish I had remained in Missouri.

Yours in distress,
One-Eyed-Riley.

Next week I received a letter from the editor in which he said:— "I have ten children, and the Lord only knows what the future will bring forth. I named the first Alpha and thought of calling the last Omega, but feared it would be a misnomer. I think it up to you to continue your subscription." I admire that man, I should like to meet and shake him by the hand, but by thunder I would hate to go fishing with a man who can lie so fluently. I still take the Paper. I think he can learn me a whole lot.

One-Eyed-Riley.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." The Forth of July attendance at the Lewis and Clark Exposition was 53,708. This is at least 30-per cent more than the most sanguine of officials expected. It beats the Forth of July attendance at the Omaha Exposition by nearly 10,000 and is 14,131 higher than the attendance on the opening day at Portland. June 1. Up to July 4 half a million admissions had been recorded in the thirty-four days of the big fair. This aggregate is far above expectations. The attendance is increasing daily, and all indications point to a total that will break every exposition record, considering the neighboring population. The Fair will run until October 15.
