

visit to Wimbledon that she sat reading CHAPTER VII.-(Continued.) "You don't know what a strange place a curious letter, which ran as follows: "Your lover cares for you no longer. this world is, Miss Mallett," he began. His honor and his pity for you alone "Your father loves you, and takes every care of you. You must therefore bear keep him to his given word. He makes light of you to others." this in mind, and not be hard on the fail-Ethel did not quite believe all this; ings of others who have not had your but she believed enough of it was true privileges. My wife-poor girll-had no mother when I first met her, and was to justify her in giving Jack an opportotally dependent on her father for sotunity of freeing himself from his engagement. She decided that she would ciety. It was a bad training for a young not worry her father, but would act for woman, for her father was a good-natured, careless fellow, always avoiding reherself. Acting on this decision, she sponsibility as long as was possible, and wrote: "My Dear Jack-You have now been when at last compelled to show authority. away three weeks. As yet you do not making up by exaggerated harshness for say anything about returning, but, on the his previous neglect. "My wife was a high-spirited girl and contrary, speak of your work as being likely to keep you for several weeks could not submit to the alternate fits of longer. In the three weeks of your abindulgence and tyranny. She was about seventeen when I first met her, and her sence you have written me four letters, and those have evidently been an unwel father's treatment was becoming unbearable. I became desperately sorry for come task. Do you guess what I am goher and suggested the only means in my ing to say? I wish 1 were sure you knew, that I might be saved the pain of power to help her, which was to make her my wife. It was a foolish proceedwriting the words. I think you have found out that you do not care for me in ing, I know, but I was young then, and had not begun to look at life seriously. the way you thought you did, and your or I should have asked myself how her sense of honor alone is keeping you to position would be bettered by being tied the letter of your engagement to me. 1 have reasons of which you know nothing for life to a helpless, penniless fellow, as I was then. Well, we were marriedfor believing this to be the case; so we privately, of course-and for a few, have both made a mistake, and that, if weeks thought we loved each other very you are willing, our engagement had betdearly; then she had another fearful ter come to an end. quarrel with her father and begged me to take her away to a home of her own. any way; it was only one of those mis-I was earning a beggarly pittance at that | takes that everybody is liable to make. time. I explained my position to her, and advised her to wait until I had obtained a certain appointment, of which I was almost sure. She lost her temper, poor child, and vowed she's never Jack might not be willing to end the come near me again. The very next day engagement! How carefully she read the I was telegraphed for to England. I wrote to her, asking her to be patient for not definitely settled the matter-that. awhile, telling her that I would work in fact, she had done only what she inhard and get a permanent post now that tended-given Jack a chance of acceptthere was a necessity to work, and promising to come back shortly to take her from the cruelty to which she had to submit.

had Jack had leisure to read between the "On my arrival in England I found lines and discover the wounded pride that an almost unknown uncle had left and self-respect that had dictated every me a property amounting to nearly three word, his manhood might have asserted thousand pounds a year. You can im- itself in Ethel's favor. As it was Jack agine how glad I was for my poor girl's read the letter impatiently at first, but sake. I made up my mind to surprise as its meaning dawned upon him he her and personally communicate the good | turned back to the top of the leaf and news, so did not write. I got through | read it again, assured himself of the unthe usual legal formalities as quickly as equivocal nature of the offer of freedom, possible, and rushed back to Rome-only thrust it into his pocket and went off to find them gone! Some told me they whistling enegetically to meet Miss Mallhad gone to one place, some to another. ing at the station on her return from until I was utterly at a loss what to do | town. However, I traced them, after a month's search, to Naples, and then it was only to find that her father had died a few days previously and that she had disappeared no one knew whither. "I did not know any of her people, so I was compelled to search single handed. For six months I went up and down like a restless spirit in search of peace. At last I found her-or rather her grave-for she had died; she had died in a convent, where she had been teaching English. By the help of a serwant I obtained permission to see her grave. There was a plain stone with her name only, and the date of her death. which took place some few weeks prior to my visit. Poor child! I cannot convey to you how great a blow it was to me, and my grief was not lessened by the fact that she had died at enmity with me."

of meaning. ause Mailing fanned 's glance at him as she asked: "Did I wake you? It was guite unintentional on my part." "And involuntary on mine." Pauline, fearing that the conversation was getting beyond her control, turned quickly and caught up the first picture that came to her hand from the open portfolio. As was to be expected, Jack had spent many of his spare hours during the last lonely fortnight in painting her portrait from memory; and it was this that she caught up in her nervous haste.

"Oh, Mr. Dornton!" she exclaimed, in rapturous tones. Even her vanity was satisfied, and she blushed genuinely at the lovely picture Jack had made or her.

"I am sorry you found usat. You will perhaps think it gross presumption; if so, I can destroy it. I can't wish it undone, for it has given me so many pleasant both. hours."

"Presumption? No, indeed! I feel as-

After that there was an awkward pause. Pauline half wished to hear Jack say that he loved her, and she half dreaded it, for she had not yet made up her mind as to how she would answer him. place. Her wish was fulfilled sooner than she anticipated.

Jack showed her his sketches one after addressed her abruptly. With such imshe was compelled to listen to the end.

With regard to my staying here, Miss Malling, I did not care to discuss the matter further before Mrs. Sefton at luncheon; but I must do so now."

He drew a deep breath, and clinched his hand firmly on the back of a chair. "I cannot-I dare not stay here with- grocer about it today.

out telling you the truth; for, if I allow my feelings to become any stronger than they are, and meet disappointment in the end, I'm afraid I shall not be reaponsible steps. for my actions. Miss Mailing, I love you-madly. While I am telling you this I know the chances are that you will Move along." presently turn your back and say, as yout leave me, 'Please quit my house at once;' org'. yet I now tell you, because I cannot stay in your presence with safety another ant whistles I ever heard?" hour unless you give me some hope. I have loved you from the moment I woke. and saw you that morning in the wood. You will say that is not very long; to me You will say that is not very duntil that it is a lifetime. I never lived until that moment. I shall never live again if you restorer. Send for Free 52 trialbottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 301 Arch St. Philadelphia, Pa. send me away."

His face was very pale when he ceased speaking. Pauline stood near him, the color coming and going in her cheeks, her eyes fixed on his face; but she said never a word. When he spoke again his words came slowly, hesitatingly, and his voice had a stifled sound, as if choked old boy. I only got in myself about five with despair.

"You have no answer for me; but you do not tell me to leave you! It cannot be that, Pauline; heart of my heart, queen of my soul, you love me!"

His last words died away to a whisper of intense rapture; and, as Pauline felt its pictures and fiction, its articles of his arms encircle her, his kisses on her lips, she forgot all the shadows that tionable means she had employed to at- tion. The feast in 1906 will be even lurked in the past, forgot all the questain this end. She only knew that she richer than in 1905. There will be loved him with all the force of her na- the new novel by Mrs. Humphry Ward, ture, that she was loved in return; and "Fenwick's Career," a new humorous for the moment there was in her heart serial by the creator of "Susan Clegg," as supreme a joy as was ever felt by a and short stories by the ablest and woman.

It "Listoned Like" It. Two Germaus, one from out of the city, were at Electric Park Saturday night hearing Ellery's band. The non-resident German thought he had heard the band before, but wasn't sure. After a well-played selection he turned to his companion and asked:

"Iss dot a Ceencinnati pand?" "Oh, no; nod at all it issen't," was the reply. "Vell," said the first, "it listens like It."

Healthy Children!

Without good health life is not worth living. Bickly, peevish children are a source of endless trouble and anviety to their parents, yet the children's condition is frequently due to their parents' ignorance or thoughtlessness, or

To make children healthy and to keep them in that condition it is netonished at the truthfulness and the flat- cessary to feed them proper food and tery you have managed to combine in to see that they get plenty of exercise the picture." and fresh air. Meat is very bad for children. It should be avoided and food rich in phosphates, such as Pillsbury's Vitos, should be given in its

This food is truly the "meat of the wheat." It is made by the world's greatest millers and it is free from artianother, and they were discussed, criti- ficial coloring or aduteration. It is cised and replaced. As he put the last not especially a child's food. Your one back into the portfolio he turned and whole family will enjoy this common sense cereal. It makes a wholesome, petuous force did his words flow that substantial breakfast or an appetising dessert, and can be prepared in one hundred different ways.

Every good grocer will supply you with Pillsbury's Vitos. Large package - enough to make twelve pounds of strength-building food, 20c. Ask your

A Blackmailing Instrument.

The street musician paused at the

"Moosle ?"

"Tanka, signor. It is such a fine

"Fine! It's the worst box of discord-"It is do finesto org' Pietro ever own.

It plays da tune not so much, but it brings da more mon'."

A Pair of Rounders,

Husband (time 1 a. m.)-I shay, m'dear, I-hic-didn't 'shpect to fi' you hic-sittin' up for me. Wife (calmly)-Oh! that's all right, minutes aga.

The Century in 1906. The lavish promises of a year ago were splendidly fulfilled in The Century during 1905-its verse and essays, timely interest and permanent value,

It is strange that in Asia and Africa. where grass will not grow, the most beautiful flowers and shrubs flourish to perfection.

MALLEABLE IRON STUMP PULLERS

Fastest, lightest and strongest Stump Puller en the market, 118 Mores power on the sweep with two horses. Write for descriptive calalog and prices.

REIERSON MACHINERY CO. Foot of Morrison Street Portland, Oregon

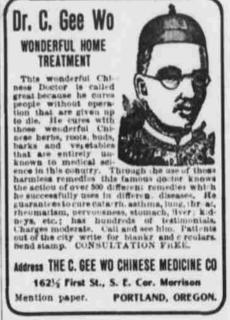

Clip this out, return to us with the name and addresses of yourself and two of your friends, and the date when you will probably enter a business college, and we will credit you with $5.00 on our $65.00 scholarship. Our school offers exceptional advantages to students of Business, Shorthand, English, etc. BEST INSTRUCTION-LOWEST TUITION BUTE FOR CATALOGUE 10-17'S FREE THE MULTNOMAH

BUSINESS INSTITUTE M. A. ALBIN, PARS. . BIXTH ST. PORTLAND, ORE.

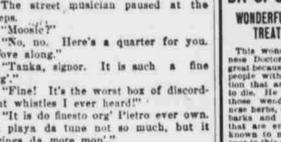

.......

A tract of 1,500 to 2,000 acres of pasture land in the Willamette valley, within fair distance of the railroad. Must be reasonable in price, well watered and in Marion, Linn, Lane, Benton or Polk county. Address, with full particulars, Buyer, No. 415 Marquam Bldg., Portland, Oregon.

 $\pi \chi$

New Organ Delivered to any Rall-road Station or Boat $46 Landing in Oregon

"We must hope she forgave you, although you did not see her," Ethel said quietly.

Pelling did not answer, and there was silence for a time. It was a relief when Mr. Mailett spoke.

"She must have been of a most unforgiving disposition to resent your poverty so bitterly, and to nurse her hatred in her dying moments."

"I don't think she did that-indeed. the chances are that, in her poor little way, she was looking for me as anxiously as I was for her. It was one of those strange fatalities that human foresight seems utterly unable to prevent."

He rose aned shook himself, as if wishful to put away the memories that had crowded upon him while speaking of the long-silent past.

'You will think me no end of a bore for annoying you with all this history; but, if you can imagine the relief it has been to me to speak of it, and you have any human kindness in your hearts, you will forgive me for the infliction. But my poor sketches? I have it! You must come down and spend a long day with me on Sunday. What do you say, Miss Mailett?"

Ethel looked perplexed. She had hoped against hope that Jack would return every Sunday since his departure, and went through a torment of expectation as the day wore on. This had taken place for the last three Sundays; but she went on hoping. Her father, recognizing the difficulty in which Ethel found herself, came to the rescue.

"If Ethel can arrange matters, it shall be as you wish. I can't say more; for gallery. it is not my affair, but hers."

"Thank you very much."

Ten minutes later the captain stood alone at the gate, watching the dog cart disappear down the road.

"So it's Ethel's 'affair,'" he said. "Well, I hope they'll come and bring of that first morning when I found you Ethel's 'affair' with them. I shall be better able to judge of my own chance after I have seen my rival."

CHAPTER VIII.

Pauline saw at a glance that something had happened, and, knowing what she knew, guessed shrewdly what that something was. She had not been five minutes in Jack's society before she felt a subtle difference in his manner toward her.

"Please don't think I blame you in Poor Ethel! How she cried over that letter! How she hoped against hope that words through to be sure that she had

Had the matter-of-fact little epistle arrived at a more favorable moment,

ing his freedom if he wished for it!

"ETHEL MALLETT."

"Ever your sincere friend,

"I am so glad to find you still here, Mr. Dornton," she said at luncheon, glancing at him bewitchingly between the leaves of a palm plant. "We were so afraid that you would not have been able to endure a fortnight of this terribly dull place. Weren't we, Mrs. Sefton?"

"You forget that Mr. Dornton has had a real occupation to make the dullness endurable. His life is not passed in killing time, as yours is, dear.'

"To be sure. I had forgotten to ask how the pictures have progressed." "The view of the house from the woods is finished as far as I can finish it here. The rest of the work I must do in Newman street.

"That is where your studio is, is it not? I should like to see some of your completed pictures. Will you ask us up some day to look at them?" "Any day you please. Say the day after to-morrow." "I cannot go back to dusty London again so soon. I expect my first batch of visitors on that day, too. At last I shall be able to do something in the way of entertaining you, Mr. Dornton, and show my gratitude to you for enlivening our solitude in the past." "You are too kind. But I have made arrangements for returning to town tomorrow."

"Nonsense. You speak of arrangements in such a serious way that one might imagine you had a wife and children; instead of which you are the enviable creature-a man without a tie." She paused an instant, dreading his reply. He made none; but a dull red crept slowly up his face to the roots of his hair. She read this sign to suit herself, and went on: "That being the case, as you have no one to claim your presence as a right, why not favor me with it as a pleasure? I should advise you to stay, Mr. Dornton. There are some really charming people coming on Thursday whom you should know."

Mrs. Sefton was the embodiment of discretion, a very model for lady-com-She walked away, and Jack panions. followed Miss Malling to the picture

They were standing in front of the easel on which Jack had placed his painting of Mallingford House. It was a charming picture. "You must do me a copy of this, Mr. Dornton," said Pauline, "as a memento asleep in the wood." "And awakened me!"

The words were simple enough, but Jack threw a great deal of expression

It was a day or two after Ethel's into them, and his eyes conveyed a world

(To be continued.) Ready to Start.

Motorist-Are all of the tools in the tool chest?

Valet-Yes, sir.

Motorist-Are all the cushions and laprobes in the tonneau? Valet-Yes, sir.

Motorist-Is the tank full of gasoline?

Valet-Yes, sir. Motorist-Have you brought down all our goggles?

Valet-Yes, sir. Motorist-Well, run up to my room and bring down the roll of bills out of the top bureau drawer so that we will have enough money ready to pay our fines. Then we will be ready to start.

Strong Defense.

"Oi how to appear in court to-day, Nora," said Mr. O'Toole, as he carefully shaved his chin. "Yez know Of done up O'Brien last week." "In court?" gasped Nora, dropping her spoon. "Oh, Patrick, hav' yez inny definse?" "Ol hov six, Nora."

"Six lawyers, Pathrick?"

"No, five fingers awn a thumb doubled up."

Ague.

"But I thought you told me this was such a congenial country," said the man who had just moved out in the suburbs.

"And it is," replied the suave agent. "Why, it is full of malaria!"

"And that is why I think it is so congenial. You see everybody is always shaking."

Natural Deduction.

Gruff Patient-Are you quite sure you understand your business, sir?

Physician-Well, I've been practicing medicine for fifteen years and not one of my patients has ever complained. Gruff Patient-Huh! Probably not Dead men tell no tales.

The Wretch.

"I spoke to your father last night." "Oh, Harry, this is so sudden; What did he say?"

"The same as I did-'Howdy do?' -Houston Post.

went beyond all promise and expectamost popular writers of the day. There will be authoritive accounts of such wonderful work as our construction of the Panama canal. W. S. Harwood will tell of "Saving California's Crops." The director of Cornell's School of Agriculture, Professor L. H. Bailey, will discuss the important problem of the young man and the farm. There will be many other articles of kindred value and interest.

More horses fall from weariness than from any other cause.

Very full cheeks indicate great digestive powers.

Said the Right Thing.

Mother-Why did you let him kiss you?

Edith-Well, he was so nice about it He asked-

"The idea! Haven't I told you you must learn to say 'No?' "That's what I did say. He asked me if I'd be very angry if he kissed me."

Ravages of Time.

"Even the hairs of our heads are numbered," quoted the good old deacon with the bald pate. "Well, uncle," rejoined his irreverent nephew, "in your case the count doesn't take up much of the enumerating angel's time.'

Here is a picture of one of the most perfectly finished organs now manufactured. It is the Pacific Queen, made especially for Ellers Fiano House. Choice of fancy wainut or selected oas cases. Fine, very large beveled plate mir-ror, perfectly finished; an ornament to any mansion. Mumerous new and valuable improvements are embodied in this organ, making it at once one of the best and most furshe organs man-one of the best and most durable organs man-ufactured in the United Ft. es. Fullt with special regard to Pacific Coast climate. Besides the regular reed tone, this instru-ment also has several octaves of the r gular pipe effects, to be tound in no other make.

Special Introductory offer.

To introduce this Organ we are making most to introduce this organ we are making most exceptional concensions in our prices and terms and will deliver a perfect and fully guar-anteed Organ freight paid, to any railr ad sta-tion or boat landing in the state of Oregon for $46, on payment of $8 down and $4 a month. The fancier styles $12, $56, etc., on same terms. Write us today, as this offer is limited only to the first 100 instruments the first 100 instruments.

PORTLAND, OREGON

Largest, Leading and Most Responsible Western Dealers.

Washington street, corner Park, Portland, Oregon.

Sprague ave, and Post st., Spokane, Wash. 514 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

P. N. U. No. 47-1905

WHEN writing to advertisers please mention this paper.