BRIEF LOCAL MATTERS.

C. R. Bone took a Portland party out to the glaciers Thursday.

Mr. Smith informs us the fishing in Little White Salmon is excellent.

Mr. John O. Divers was in Portland during the week on a business trip.

The photograph gallery is in full blast with Mr. Bony furnishing the blast.

C. R. Bone, George Prather and J. J. Luckey made a trip to The Dalles Tuesday.

Mr. C. W. Wilford is clerking for Mr. J. H. Middleton during the latter's absence.

Mr. Stewart of the firm of Abrams & Stewart of The Dalles was in the city Wednesday.

Mr. Berdan announces his readiness and ability to move buildings quickly and cheaply.

Mrs. J. A. Solesby and wife, of Pendleton, came down Thursday to visit Mr. Solesby's parents.

Mr. Jos. A. Wilson went to Oregon City Monday to make final proof on his timber claim and returned Thursday.

Mrs. Will Graham and daughter who have been camping six miles up the river for a week or more went home Thursday.

Work was commenced on the GLACIER building Thursday and it will be completed as soon as possible. Mr. Cox is doing the work.

Mr. J. H. Middleton and wife left by boat Thursday morning for Vancouver, W. T. They will probably visit Ilwaco during their absence.

We venture the assertion that there is not a town of the size of Hood River in the state whose merchants carry so large and complete stocks as ours do.

Mathias & Clark are about through repairing and overhauling their building and will put in a full stock of paints, oils, varnishes, etc. in a few days.

Mr. A. Hamilton has gone to Ellensburg, W. T. after teams and a stage coach which he will bring here and use in the Rand & Hamilton livery stable.

From the way new buildings are going up, the short cuts across blocks will soon all be closed up. The GLACIER slides into one of them and fills it completely.

Audubon Winans and William E. Neff will make final proof on their claims before the register and receiver of the land office at The Dalles on the 19th inst.

Mr. J. J. Luckey has commenced building a blacksmith shop on Oak street between Fourth and Fifth and will soon be ready to attend to any business in his line.

Mr. H. C. Coe and family, O. S. Stranahan and wife and Mrs. English and son went out to the glacier Thursday. They will remain away for from two to three weeks.

Nearly every afternoon down freight carries from one to three car loads of rock for the walls of the canal at the Cascades. The rock, a good granite, is brought from Spokane Falls.

Mr. Dearborn returned Thursday from Walla Walla after a week or ten days visit, and expresses himself delighted to get back to the cool breezes and shady groves of Hood River.

Mr. G. Boney has done considerable work in the brief time he has been here. A couple of views of Middleton's store are excellent in finish and the big oaks loom up as cool looking and natural as life.

Mr. A. J. Rand has made final proof on his claim which covers the outlet to Lost Lake, and thinks the place is worth $5000. As he located it last spring and the entire cost was less than $500, it looks like a very good investment.

Major Edwin H. Conger, member of congress from the Des Moines district, Iowa, came up from Portland on the morning train Thursday to make a brief visit with his old time friend Hon. E. L. Smith. We had the pleasure of meeting him, and hope Mr. Smith may impress upon him the necessity of opening the Columbia river.

Mr. A. J. Rand informs us that he has plenty of feed for horses and men up at Lost Lake but parties going there will have to take their bedding. The fishing is good and he has put one boat on the lake and is building more. The trail is in good condition.

Friday of last week the flume from Stoddard's mill to the railroad caught fire and about a mile and a quarter of it was burned. The fire had been burning in the woods for some time and Friday a big tree burned off and rolled down into the canyon setting fire to the flume.

Mr. ——— Rand has opened his hardware store and is stocking up in good shape. When he gets through arranging his goods he will have as neat a little store as there is in the country, and will be ready to furnish anything in his line from a locomotive to a shingle nail.

Mr. Stoddard has made arrangements to move the planer from the mill to the railroad, and has purchased another and larger one to be run in connection with it. They will be placed near the railroad track so that the planed lumber can be put on the cars as it comes from the machines.

There will be at least $1500 distributed in prizes for agricultural products at the fair here this fall, and the exhibit ought to be a good one despite the short crops and off year. Let every farmer bring in the best he has anyhow, that strangers visiting us may get an idea of the nature of our products. — Wasco Sun.

THE HOTEL ON MOUNT HOOD.

It is Not Likely To Be Opened This Season—A Fine Water Supply.

The hotel on Mount Hood, near Eliot glacier, is about completed, but it is undecided whether it will be opened this season or not. The building of the stage road from Hood River to the hotel was an expensive job and the work on the hotel took longer than was expected owing to the difficulty of getting material up to so great an elevation. After the road was completed a large band of sheep was driven up into the mountains over it and in their scrambling along the steep hillsides above the road to feed they rolled a great lot of limbs, stones and treetops down into the road, rendering it impassable for vehicles, and putting the company to considerable expense in getting it cleared out. The sheep men have been arrested and an effort will be made to recover damages from them. It has been concluded that the hotel is too small and an addition is talked of. The water supply of the hotel comes from the melting ice of the glacier, and is brought in through pipes. A bottle of it has been sent to this city. It is as clear as crystal. The bottle was labeled: "Water supply of Cloud Cap Inn, 7500 feet above sea level. Gravity system twenty feet higher than roof of inn. No bonds; no veto; cold as ice." It will probably be decided in a day or two whether the inn will be opened this season or not. Next summer when the big hotel is running here it is expected that a great many of the guests will visit Cloud Cap Inn, and if an addition is not built this season it will surely have to be built then. — Oregonian.

Rats—Cats.

One of our neighbors below town a couple of miles, has been bothered for some time by predatory wild cats, which, urged on by vicious and malicious dispositions, and omnivorous and gregarious appetites, made frequent and disastrous raids upon his hen coop, and carried off some of his young broilers and egg producers. He got tired, awful tired of it, and vowing vengeance on the whole feline tribe, he procured a shotgun and laid for the robbers. His patient waiting was rewarded and the red-faced moon glimmering through the dense smoke, threw the dark silhouette of an immense cat before his vision. The cat was a monster, and taking deliberate aim the vengeful man pulled the trigger. There was a loud report, a wild howl of anguish, and then our friend proceeded to examine the remains, which he finally picked up, carried across the field, and threw over the fence. The chickens now roost in quiet content, our friend sleeps the innocent sleep of the just, while Mrs. Hull seeks diligently—but finds not—her pet cat, which strangely enough disappeared the same night the wild cat was shot.

We have just completed arrangements with a first-class harness maker to run a repair shop up stairs over our store and will carry full line of harness, saddles, whips, etc., at bottom prices.
BLOWERS & SON.

We will soon have a full line of dry goods, notions, etc., bought direct from manufacturers in New York city. When they arrive we will defy any dealer in the state to get below us on prices, money talks, and we propose to make it an object for every person in this part of the country to buy of us. We have no inducements to offer but bottom prices and first class goods.
BLOWERS & SON.

It appears from the testimony of experts that death by electricity may not be after all the "rock-me-to-sleep-mother" process that humanitarians are looking for in the interests of murderers. A referee has been appointed by a New York court to collect data upon this subject and several electricians have testified that it is the reverse of what has been claimed for it. Testimony of experts was introduced showing that death by this means is uncertain, citing cases where unconsciousness of many hours had been followed by resuscitation and recovery. Others described the sufferings of animals experimented upon to be lingering and most intense, all of which proves that in the effort to be merciful, mistaken and over-zealous men have been exceedingly cruel.
