THE ELECTIONS.

The elections are over and both old parties are consoling themselves as best they can over losses they have sustained. At this writing (Thursday) the general results are known as far as the governorships are concerned, but the status of the legislatures in New York and Iowa is not yet determined. The returns are not all in, but the latest from New York gives Flower, dem., 46,466 majority for governor, and the entire democratic state ticket elected, and the legislature so close on joint ballot that the loss or gain of one member may change its complexion. McKinley's majority in Ohio is 19,000 and the legislature is reported safely republican. Russell, dem., is elected governor of Massachusetts by 7,000. Boies, dem., is elected governor of Iowa by 8,000 majority and the balance of the democratic state ticket is elected by small majorities. Westfall, farmers' alliance candidate for governor, received 15,000 votes. In Kansas only judges were elected, and of ten of them one was farmers' alliance, two democrats and seven republicans. New Jersey elected a democratic legislature, that body now standing on joint ballot, democrats 58, republicans 23. It will be seen from the above results that there are sore shins in both parties, and each are welcome to all the joy they can pluck from the situation.

Bank robbing seems to have become quite fashionable in this state. The evening of November 3d two men robbed the Summerville, Union county, bank. The mail arrives at that place in the evening, and the cashier has been in the habit of attending to his correspondence in the evening. As he was leaving the bank, about 9 o'clock that evening, he was met by two men, who presented pistols at his head and ordered him back into the bank. He was forced to open the safe, and the robbers gathered up all the money in sight, $4,800. They were perfectly cool, examining the papers in the safe, and when ready to go, boldly walked out and left without any alarm having been given.

The Irish political situation is unchanged, each faction using such convincing arguments as elms, brickbats, stones, etc., and the last case of prominence a Parnellite chastised Tim Healy with a whip. The situation reminds one irresistibly of the description of the dance where "Pat Murphy asked Tim Doolan's wife to dance a quadruped," and Mrs. Doolan excusing herself on the ground that the usquebaugh had made her top heavy, offending Don Patricio de Spud, they proceeded to illustrate the ethics of politeness by kicking up a "devil of a row that night, they put the ladies in a fright," and proved to their own satisfaction the truth of the closing assertion, "bold Irishmen are we."

While the government is talking "sassy" to Chili, and Chili is responding in kind, it is well enough to remember that San Francisco is practically at the mercy of our peppery southern neighbors should they see fit to bombard it. It is true that whatever damage Chili did she would eventually have to pay for, but this does not alter the facts. The Oregonian suggests that the best thing that could happen to this big government would be a brief but sound thrashing by our diminutive neighbor. An unaccountable position for a big newspaper that does not believe in that kind of punishment in the public schools.

San Francisco, is making an effort to have both the republican and democratic national conventions held there in 1892, and to accomplish this is willing to pay the expenses of the members estimated at $100,000 for each convention. It is not probable that either can be secured, but to the close observer it looks as if the instructions to M. H. DeYoung, the member of the national central committee, to secure the republican convention at any price, meant that California was going to push Leland Stanford's candidacy.

The wrecking of the ship Strathblane on North Beach a short distance above the mouth of the Columbia, will furnish the Puget Sound papers a subject for lengthy editorials on the dangers of the Columbia river bar. It matters not that the ship was not within a dozen miles of it, the bar will get the blame. The truth is that the teeth have been extracted from the mouth of the Columbia, and its never really very bad bar is now as harmless as well that Tacoma Ledger for instance.

Yesterday's dispatches state that in New York the republicans have elected the senate and the democrats the house, and the democrats have a majority of one on joint ballot. In Iowa the democrats have the senate and the republicans the house, with a majority on joint ballot for the latter. The Massachusetts legislature is republican by 67 votes. In Ohio McKinley's plurality will be about 20,000 and the legislature is republican by about 45 majority.

The B'ish ship Strathblane, Capt. Cathell, was wrecked on North Beach, near the mouth of the Columbia, Tuesday morning about 5 o'clock. The cause of the wreck was a faulty chronometer, the vessel being in shore while, according to the reckoning, she was fifty miles away. The weather was very thick and the ship was in the breakers before they were discovered. The vessel went to pieces in a short time, and Capt. Cathell, a passenger named Wm. Lewis and four others were drowned.

England is holding up its hands in horror at the idea of the United States going to war with Chili, because the latter is so small and weak. The history of the past eighty years shows that England's wars have been with countries unable to defend themselves. To bombard a negro town and shoot down naked savages has been her delight and her shame. In India and Africa, in fact everywhere, her supremacy has been maintained by brute force, applied to people unable to defend themselves. England is simply an overgrown bully.

HAPPY THOUGHTS.

For a week or more the rain has descended, kissing to life the tender blades of grass and covering the earth with verdure. The sprouting wheat has covered the bare ground with tints of vivid green, and the tiny roots are reaching far into the mellow, moist earth preparing for a comfortable nap under the fleecy blanket of snow with which it will soon be covered. But a week or so ago the hills were dusty, barren, bleak, brown and dead; to-day they are green as at the vernal equinox. Why? Because the rains have come and the thirsty soil has drunk and is refreshed. This result should speak louder than words as to what the soil would do the long summer through warmed by the sun if the water which is going to waste should be utilized upon it. We need no Drydenfurths, no Melbourne's, no patent rainmakers, but we do need energy and intelligence applied to those resources which Nature has given us. We need not look to the sky, but to the river.

The moon is a dead planet and uninhabited, so say the scientists, because it contains no water. And yet who knows but that some race of desiccated anti-irrigationists may not find there a home and climate suited to their tastes. The very nature of things requires that some planet, some place, be set aside for a future habitation of the aridity crank. The moon, forsooth, may be just suited to this class. Moisture and heat are the two things necessary, besides soil, to plant growth; and yet there are those so "set" in their ways that they think the only way that moisture can be supplied is by sprinkling. They abhor irrigation and irrigationists and refuse moisture in any form except guttation.

When the ark landed on the summit of Mount Ararat, sacred history records the fact that the face of the earth was covered with water, and that the dove seeking vainly a resting place for her foot (or either of them), came back to the ark. There was no living thing, animal or vegetable, upon the whole world except in the ark of refuge. And after seven days Noah again sent forth the dove, and in the evening she returned unto him with an "olive leaf plucked off." Thus in one week it is shown that as a result of irrigation, the olive leaf had grown; and more, that the first product of the soil after the flood was the result of irrigation. It shows, also, that it is hard to overdo the irrigation business.

The elections are over. The song of the siren is now serene. The Campbells are not coming, and the tin-tin-ulations of the McKinley bill, or bell, are silenced in victory. New York has furnished the democracy, at least, a national flower, and the pitcher is broken at the fountain and the fassett is busted in the barrel! Iowa has elected one of the Boies governor and Massachusetts has Russelled up another! The sound of the stramdoolee is heard no more, and the bazoo of the ward striker is wrapped in red flannel and is out of a job. The political frosts of the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November did it with its little hatchet, and the crop of small-fr politicians await the coming of the presidential year, when they can again, at some one else's expense—irrigate.

The elections are over and now the time for the Thanksgiving proclamation is at hand. The feathered limbs of the old Shanghai are turning to a golden hue, and the campaign rooster yet has time to fatten up. The egotistical old gobbler has worn the ends of his wing feathers off in making his geometrical figures in the dust and has enjoyed the spread of his tail feathers to his own complete satisfaction, and he is ready to furnish another "spread," just as a matter of thanksgiving. The omniverous hog is ripe and hangs in pendant links, stuffed inside of his own internal works, and is, as it were, a case of ground-hog. It is high time for the presidential proclamation explaining to us what we are expected to give thanks for. The feasters are ready and the feast likewise, hence we say—turn on the water.
