HOOD RIVER, OR., NOV. 14, 1891.

PORTLAND'S FREE BRIDGE.

Portland has a free bridge, having purchased that at Madison street, and paying therefor the sum of $142,500. This is a large price when it is considered that the bridge at Oregon City could have been bought for half that sum, and it would have been almost as convenient. There is one great beauty about the purchase, and that is that it does not interfere with the receipts of either of the other bridges or the Stark-street ferry. It looks, indeed, to the calm and unprejudiced gaze of an outsider as though there was a rank job in the deal.

In New York the republicans have three majority in the senate; the democrats six majority in the house, giving the latter three majority on joint ballot. In Iowa the democrats have one majority in the senate, the republicans six majority in the house.

Judge Bradshaw has performed good service in getting a lot of old cases stricken from the docket. They have been there for years, a clog to the record, an eyesore to the newspapers and an all-around nuisance.

Governor Penoyer has issued a proclamation setting aside Thursday, the 20th inst., as a day of Thanksgiving. The governor got tired of waiting for the president, but no doubt has guessed the right day.

ODDS AND ENDS.

We receive nearly every week unsigned communications, and, according to the universal rule, print them in the waste basket. We have reiterated until the statement is almost an insult, that communications must be signed, not necessarily for publication, but we must know whom to hold responsible. Last week we had an example of this kind; a communication very well written, but signed simply "Edam." It went into the waste basket because we do not know "Edam," and we don't care "Edam."

The tariff question has a good many sins to answer for, simply because, like a livery horse, it is ridden by all parties, and ridden to death. It is made a party issue, is argued pro and con from party standpoints, and is voted on as the party the voter belongs to dictates. The tariff should not be a party question, but should be answered according to the light of reason and the dictates of the conscience of the reasoner. We are surely all of us good citizens enough, patriotic enough, to endorse or reject the tariff or any other proposition as citizens and not as partisans. As far as we are concerned we are willing to accept those doctrines that commend themselves to our reason, and we don't care whether they originate in the democratic or republican camp, though we confess to a disposition to sample the cooking from the latter before swallowing it.

Our neighbors in the good state of Washington have been congratulating themselves over an idle rumor that Lieutenant Governor Laughton was going to resign. They think they know Laughton, in fact thought they knew him a year ago when they elected him, but they are mistaken. The Columbia river may run up hill; the Tacoma papers cease talking about the danger of that river's bar; the Cascade locks be finished by Major Handbury; our good Senator Dolph get divorced a menso from the Oregon Transcontinental; Hermann decline the nomination to congress in favor of his friend Miller, yea, all these may happen together a thousand times before Laughton would intend to begin to think of considering, even in a jesting way, of resigning. Laughton can not be hired to resign—he will die first.

The celebrated court martial of Col. Haines of the Washington militia, charged with striking his superior officer, General O'Brien, on the superior anterior process of the latter's maxilla, has been terminated on a question of jurisdiction. The colonels and majors and captains, with the Mrs. Colonels, Mrs. Majors and Mrs. Captains, who met as the court, returned gaudy and giddy respectively, with trappings, titles and military glory, and without courting. The doors were closed and the star-chamber proceedings may never be known to the vulgar, albeit civil herd. O'Brien and Haines "shook hands," and gore will not flow. All of which shows that Bret Harte was right when he said

"Virtue hath its own reward,
But quicker when it wears a sword."

Brazil is having another election, or revolution, for in that country the terms are synonymous. It seems that whenever the governor of some province, or any other big gun, gets disgruntled at the administration he "declares for independence" and proceeds to show his love of freedom by killing off all those who do not agree with his particular ideas. Poor old Dom Pedro was deposed to make way for liberty in the shape of Da Fonseca, and now Da Fonseca is to be fired in the interest of some other ambitious under-strapper. It seems only a question of time until Brazil will be divided into at least two governments, with the capitals at Bah and Rio Janeiro. What our southern Spanish neighbors need is a modern militia.

It is really worth while for a 'cent-suffering traveling public to examine the Northern Pacific passenger coaches. We did so here when the trains were temporarily forced to pass over the Union line, and could not help but remark the difference. The Northern train was large enough to give each passenger a seat, the seats and aisles were clean and so were the windows. A few minutes afterwards we passed through one of the single-decked cattle cars provided by Jay Gould for the accommodation of the patrons of the road. The contrast was vivid and odorless. Without exaggeration, we believe that some of these old upholstered pig-pens on wheels have not been washed nor disinfected since they came around the Horn in the Mayflower in 1822. The fifth and odor might be better put up with if the passengers were furnished seats, but it is difficult for them to "stand it." We suggest that the company put on double-deckers and give the patient public a chance.

Tacoma wants the republican national convention, or the democratic, and she don't care much which. Should she get either, the party would be lost sight of and swatted up, and we should have the Tacoma platform, the Tacoma party, and the Tacoma everything else. The guttering villages of Celilo and Skookum hucks are as fitting places for the political convention as the George Francis Train balliwick on Puget sound. It might be added that a country village that would run an honest mountain of its good name would not leave the political athletes of a nominating convention anything worth naming to "take home, eh?"

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Came to my place, Sept. 12th, 1891, a red and white two-year-old bull, branded H on left hip. Owner will call, pay charges and take him away. W. M. BOORMAN.

Never-Get Rattled.

A man was driving four horses to a large wagon when one of them, a Texas pony, began to fret. Instead of coaxing him up a little he began to slash him unmercifully, at which the little fellow hit back with his heels.

The more the man lashed the harder the pony kicked, and finally his legs became tangled in the harness and he quietly sat down on the tongue to await developments, while two street car drivers behind the wagon were blowing their whistles for it to get out of the way.

Instead of freeing the horse the man continued to lash him, causing him to be further entangled and to lie down under the other horses, the two being an almost inextinguishable mass.

Some of the passengers on the street cars were swearing in seven different languages, while the two drivers were watching a fallen horse and a crowd of bystanders were betting he'd kick a hole in the sky before he went to work again.

It took ten minutes to get that horse untangled and five minutes more to harness him up again, and then it took the street car drivers five minutes to get their mules waked up.

Twenty minutes lost, and no telling how many men waiting for the street cars lost their religion, all on account of the driver of one wagon getting rattled at the antics of a Texas pony.

A good motto to paste in your hat is, "Keep cool, my son, and never let yourself get rattled."—Atlanta Journal.

A Fortune in Coin.

The inventory of the effects of Mrs. Marie Victorine Marmonneau, aged 77 years, who died recently at Plaquemine, La., shows an interesting collection of money. Over $25,000 was found in her house, $16,000 in gold and the balance in quarters, besides dollars, half dollars, half dimes and a few foreign pieces. The wealth was partly inherited from her father, partly from her sister, and the rest was amassed from the earnings of Milly plantation, on Bayou Plaquemine. Nearly all the gold was tied with homespun thread in rolls of $100 and enclosed in pickle jars, which were buried about the house.—New York Telegram.

Taste in Simple Gowns.

Since fashion came to the throne women's gowns were never so simply made as now, when a few gathered folds at the belt, and the scant plain skirt gives just that idea of comfortable simplicity which is the ambition of all really elegant minded women. If you think such a gown is achieved by a mere twist of the wrist, the sooner you are undeceived the better. Try it, and learn through bitter experience that those few careless folds are the result of highest art, and that deftest fingers must fashion that close fitting skirt into that snugness which is not scantiness, and suggests, but does not reveal, the contour beneath.—Detroit Free Press.

Death of a Brilliant Scholar.

The late Mrs. Chapman Coleman, who died in Louisville at an advanced age recently, was one of the most distinguished of southern women. She was a daughter of the famous John J. Crittenden, and during her long and brilliant social career, extending from girlhood to old age, she had been the companion and friend of the most gifted men of Kentucky. In addition to her personal beauty she was a brilliant converser, and as a Shakespearean scholar she had few superiors among women. She was known also for her translations from the German and for her biography of her celebrated father.—Exchange.
