The bridge across Hood river at Tucker's was completed last week, the work being done quickly and well. The stringers are 12x14, and 110 feet long, resting on solid rock masonry on the east side, and on the bed rock on the west side. There are three bents of 12x12. The frame is 80 feet long 10x10 timbers, and ten feet high; sleepers 6x14, frame 2x6, covered with three-inch plank.

A. S. Distrob while returning from Grandma Clark's funeral had a lively runaway. When near home one sledge dropped down, and this let the necky pull off of the tongue which dropped, and the end running in the ground the wagon upset throwing Distrob who was alone in the wagon out under the horses heels. He received a bad bruise on the hip and one horse kicked him on the left cheek. The horse broke loose from the wagon and from each other and took a run by themselves; one of them running through a barbed wire fence, and cutting himself badly.

There are quite a number of papers sent from this office to people outside of the state. Many of them have been unpaid since the paper started, and we are compelled to take some action concerning them. Those sent by parties here, whom we know are all right, but there are a number that we do not know who ordered them, and consequently we have but one recourse, and that is to stop sending them. We find that the parties receiving them will not pay as they say they did not order them, and as the persons who did order them are unknown to us, the result is the same as if we were the victim of a straight out petty larceny. We will stand it because we have to, but we have our opinion just the same.

A Terrible Accident.

The 4th tonight sorrow and suffering to some men at least in Hood River, and that was George Pierce, the night watchman for the Hood Pacific. He had been firing plant powder early in the morning in company with another watchman Mr. Levy, but they got tired and quit. About a quarter to 12 however, Pierce got a couple of cartridges and fired one of them in the open ground between Olinger & Bone's stable and Delet's place. Mr. Levy and watchman Elison saw him pop a second cartridge and light the fuse. After lighting it he began to look around on the ground as though he had dropped something, and apparently forgetting that he had lit the fuse, Lacey shouted at him to throw it, and ran toward him, but almost instantly the cartridge exploded in his hand, lifting him four or five feet from the ground and dropping him in the cloud of dust the explosion had raised. Lacey ran to him and assisted in carrying him into the shade by Olinger & Bone's barn. Dr. Morgan was at once summoned and did everything possible for the injured man. Pierce never lost consciousness, in spite of the terrible shock and his terrible injuries. His left hand was blown entirely off, an inch below the wrist, the two last fingers of the right hand were also blown off, his breast and throat were bruised and lacerated, as was also his legs; and there were two deep cuts over his eyes. He bore his misfortunes bravely, and when he asked for a drink of water reached out his arm to grasp the cup and simply said on seeing the bleeding stump, "Oh I forgot." Dr. Logan, the company surgeon came down from The Dalles on the evening train and took him to the hospital in Portland, where the left arm was amputated, and his wounds dressed. We saw the Dr. as he was returning Tuesday, and he told us Pierce would probably recover, but that he would lose one eye, and possibly both. Pierce was about 32 years old, unmarried, and has been employed at railroad work for a number of years.

He will visit the citizens of Hood river valley during the ensuing week for the purpose of introducing these desirable publications, and at the same time will distribute free of cost a splendid collection of art treasures to each subscriber. Also agent for the world renowned "Story of Man."

DIED.

At his home near Hood River, Sunday July 3rd, Thomas L. Clark, aged 77 years and 2 months.

The funeral took place Monday, Rev. C. W. Wells performing the last sad rites. A large number of his old friends followed his remains to their last resting place in Idlewild cemetery. Mr. Clark came here in 1876 from Colorado, and remained until his death. He was a man of sterling character, commanding the respect, and winning the esteem of all with whom he came in contact. He leaves besides his life companion, one son, Newton, residing in Portland, and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Tacoma.

Our Celebration.

Independence day was appropriately celebrated here and despite the unusual wind and consequent dust the crowd was large and persistent. The parade formed on Third and Oak, with E. S. Olinger marshal of the day, and marched to the grounds. Quite a large number of carriages were in the procession principally from the valley. The plug uglies were a special feature and it is safe to say that a more astonishing outfit than that of Will Haynes, Bert Stranahan and the mule, was not seen in the universe on that day. The language is not rich enough in adjectives and adverbs to do the "toot assemblage." There was some unnecessary delay in carrying out the programme and this applies to the whole day, but with one or two exceptions, notably the football game, and the chase after the muttonous parker, it was carried out as published in the columns of the GLACIER. We did not reach the grounds until after Mr. Isenberg had delivered the oration, but have heard it spoken of as a masterly effort. Mr. W. P. Watson pleased his old friends here by a short address, and Rev. Bigby gave a response to a toast "the public schools of America," after which the lunch baskets were brought out and intervened to some purpose. After lunch the base ball game between local teams, followed by the tug of war, races, etc, filled up the afternoon. There were four races run by the girls being won by Clara Blythe, a daughter of Mr. W. Smith, of Portland, Pauline Stelley, and Mrs. Tate's sister, a young lady from the valley but we were unable to learn her name. The boy's races were won by James Ellison, Roy Watson and Delbert Band. The fire works in the evening were in charge of James Langille, and were set off on the river bank below the depot; they were creditable for so small a town and were thoroughly enjoyed by all. The land furnished excellent music, and lots of it, being on hand from early morning until the last rocket was sent up at night. Taken all in all, the celebration was a success.

Too Much Pepper!

Mrs. Pepper, who is suffering from consumption came here a few weeks ago in hopes of getting at least temporary relief, but her condition was such as to demand her return to her home in Portland. Her husband was sent for and arrived loaded with pepper or something equally warming. Instead of staying at his wife's bed side he proceeded to fit himself yet fuller of the stuff that incinerates, clatters and knocks out. As he did not show up a search was made for him to quiet the anxiety of his wife, but he could not be found. Early the next morning he was discovered in the cellar under Mrs. Chapman's warehouse, where he had wandered during the night to sleep off his potations among the potatoes. He was the drunkest, stupidest and least pungent Pepper that ever got in such a box. Naturally enough Pepper's brains were in Pepper's pod, and it was a sadly pickled pepper that was picked up in the early dawn, and just-bodily fired. The unfortunate wife returned to Portland in the evening, taking her lord and master, "His Condiments" along.

A Fandango.

Wednesday evening the soul inspiring thump of a primitive drum, the noble sons and dusky daughters of the bosky forest, marched down to the Langille building for the purpose of having a native dance. The room was found too small to admit the crowd of spectators, so an adjournment was had to the armory building. The Fourth of July committee paid into the hands of the leader of the orchestra ten dollars, which was taken in lieu of an admission fee, and everybody was admitted free. A large portion of the audience occupied the big stage, and the dancers togged out in all their finery, took possession of the floor. And then there was dancing such as Herod's daughter never dreamed of. Dancing that Taglioni, wouldn't have simulated if he could. In fact it was an Indian dance, which is like nothing else under the sun. Most of it is done with the arms and body, the music never seeming to stir the muscles below the knees. It was not a scene of barbaric splendor, but it served to amuse Hood River's citizens for more than an hour, and to gather them all together in peace and—well there was no harmony.

A Sky picture.

Dr. Barrett's weather report from this section for June, shows there was a fine solar halo on the 3rd at 6:30 p. m. four coronae at cardinal points, the top per coronae was indented, as if a small disc had been cut out. The coronae were very bright, and a second ring a duplicate of the first, only not so bright, surrounded it. In the evening there was a fine lunar halo. At 7:35 the same day a brilliant meteor fell, its course being from east to west, and being near enough to pass in front of the hills on the Washington side of the Columbia, which made a fine back ground for it. It was a sea foam green in color, and left a trail of brilliant sparks.

Why cough, when S. B. will stop it.

The Meeting Tuesday.

The State Horticultural Society will meet here Tuesday and Wednesday, and arrangements are about completed for the reception of our visitors. A committee has been appointed to arrange for caring for such of our guests as cannot be accommodated at the hotel and no doubt ere this, has interviewed most of our citizens, who can provide for them. It has been suggested that our fruit growers arrange for giving those attending, a ride through the valley and to this end, that all having light wagons or buggies, join in this effort. It is an honor indeed to have this meeting and we should show our appreciation of it. The meetings will be held in the U. B. church the first at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon.

BEATTY'S PIANOS AND ORGANS.
Hon. Daniel F. Beatty, the great Organ and Piano manufacturer, is building and shipping more Organs and Pianos than ever. In 1870 Mr. Beatty left home a penniless plow boy, and by his indomitable will he has worked his way up so as to sell so far nearly 100,000 of Beatty's Organs and Pianos since 1870. Nothing seems to dishearten him obstacles laid in his way, that would have wrecked any ordinary man forever, he turns to an advertisement and comes out of it brighter than ever. His instruments, as is well known, are very popular and are to be found in all parts of the world. We are informed that during the next ten years he intends to sell 200,000 more of his make; that means a business of $20,000,000. It is already the largest business of the kind in existence. Send to Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, New Jersey, for catalogue.
