HOOD RIVER, OR., JULY, 23, 1892.

HUNTINGTON'S CONTEST.

The complaint of Mr. Huntington in his contest for the clerkship makes some statements that are not at all flattering to the judges and clerks of election, especially those of this precinct. The substance of the charges generally is that the judges counted votes for Crossen that were cast for Huntington, and in this precinct the number of votes so cast is placed at 55, or about that number. The complaint also alleges, under oath, that but one ballot box was in sight here, and several other minor matters. The attempt was made by Mr. Huntington's attorney to throw this precinct out and disfranchise all of us in order that he might hold an office. The election here was fairly and honestly conducted, and every voter in this precinct knows it. A few votes were marked with a lead pencil instead of as the law provides, but these were counted by the judges because they took Judge Deady's view of the matter, that where the intent of the voter could be discovered the vote should count. These votes were generally republican, as a recount would show, and they were counted by a board consisting of one republican, one democrat and one people's party man. Every man who voted had his vote counted, and counted the way he voted it, and nothing further than this could or should be required. Mr. Huntington's contest has killed him politically, and if the election were held now, Crossen would get three votes to his one. A man who will swear to the truth of something he doesn't know anything about, even though he does it on information and belief, is not going to gain friends by his action.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

Mr. McCoy, of Portland, proposes to put flumes and ditches through the valley, and to supply water to all, if the terms can be agreed upon. Whether it is done or not, therefore depends entirely on the interest taken in the matter by our farmers. We want to meet this proposition fairly, remembering while it is to be of great benefit to us, that we must expect to pay for it. Capitalists invest their money, not for the pleasure of investing it, but for the returns it will bring. Mr. McCoy has the money, and expects a fair return on the amount invested. The great trouble with most capitalists who have investigated Hood River with the ostensible view of investing, has been that they came here in ballast, hunting a cargo they couldn't get. Mr. McCoy's proposition is pure cold business. You agree to take so much water, for so many years at a stated price. If you think it to your benefit you will agree to take it, and expect to pay for it. If not, let it alone. Mr. McCoy will expect to make some money out of it, and so will you, and there is no doubt but that all parties will be benefited. The contracts will be prepared and submitted for examination when the surveys are made, and if our people want water, the opportunity to get it, and the terms on which it may be had will be furnished them.

NO CORRECTION NEEDED.

The promptness with which people correct errors that have never been made is exemplified in the communication from the Phelps Creek Water Company, which appears in this issue. The GLACIER never said there were 36 inches or any other number of inches of Ditch creek water turned into Phelps creek. What it did say, and what the communication admits to be true, was this: "This 36 inches of water, it is claimed by its owners, is turned into Phelps creek," etc. Now, the communication says that they claimed it was turned in, but that it was not, and that an examination by the parties interested satisfied them it was not. It will be seen by comparing the article in last week's GLACIER and the communication in this that the former statement needs neither explanation nor correction.

A Foolish Burglar.

Saturday night, about 10:30, during the absence of ye editor and his wife from home, a bold burglar entered their residence by raising a parlor window. The door from the parlor into the hall was locked, so that the enterprising burglar had his trouble for his pains. There was nothing there that he wanted, and he was as far from the steel vault in which we heard our wealth as when out of doors. The neighbors saw the light, evidently that of a dark lantern, as it showed by spells only, but we did not get to see him, and we are glad of it, for we should have felt called upon to upbraid him for disgracing his calling by trying to perform the impossible, that is, to rob a printer. We feel, however, that our neighbors are indebted to us for disgracing this fellow with the place, and no doubt with his calling. May he never strike a more successful job than robbing a newsgatherer until he goes at some honest labor.

Why cough, when S. B. will stop it.

EDITOR GLACIER: We read an article in the GLACIER of the 10th inst., in reference to the water in dispute, stating there had been 36 inches of water turned into Phelps creek from Ditch creek. This is untrue, from the fact we have been up where the water claimed was turned in several times, and failed at all times to find the amount of water claimed, or anywhere near the amount. On the 15th inst. the parties in dispute came to the conclusion to go up the creek and find out just how much water there was turned in from Ditch creek, and on their arrival and making an examination they all came to the conclusion there was about five inches of water instead of 36 inches, and a portion of the five inches found was seepage. All parties in dispute came down and dismissed their men. We have established our rights and we do not want only what justly belongs to us, and we are going to stay by what we know is our rights. We have suffered a loss in the past for water, and it means our bread and butter, and we are satisfied with what belongs to us.

What you do.
No one has ever told us exactly what wit is. Dr. Isaac Barrow, a famous English divine and a man of brilliant wit himself, has given the best definition yet known, and he confesses that "often it consisteth in one hardly knows what." He says, in his old fashioned style:

"Sometimes it lieth in a pat allusion to a known story, or in reasonable application of a trivial saying or in forging an opposite tale. Sometimes it playeth in words and phrases, taking advantage from the ambiguity of their sense or the affinity of their sound; sometimes it lurketh under an odd similitude; sometimes it is lodged in a sly question, in a smart answer, in a quirkish reason, in a shrewd imitation, a tart irony, a lusty hyperbole or a startling metaphor; sometimes an affected simplicity and sometimes a presumptuous bluntness giveth it being; sometimes it arises from a lucky hitting upon what is strange; sometimes from a crafty wresting of obvious matter to the purpose."

Isn't this excellent? Study this clause and find a witicism to match it. I have not given the entire definition, but just enough to stimulate some one to look it up for himself. — New York Home Journal.

Curious Legal Tender.
Almost every age and tribe, as well as every epoch, has had its peculiar currency or medium of barter and exchange. Not only gold, silver, copper, brass, iron, lead and paper, but such out of the way articles as bits of glass, shells, beads, stones, soap, bits of various colored cloth and numerous other objects, some of them absolutely valueless to our way of looking at the matter.

The Burmese, Karens, Hangees and Ghanes have no coined money, lead and silver in bullion being the ordinary tender in trade, weight and purity being the standard of value. For a long time salt was the ordinary money of the Abyssinians.

Dried fish has long been, and is even today to a certain extent, the legal tender of Iceland. Shad scales are also the medium of exchange in many of the North Sea islands. — St. Louis Republic.

Hundreds of Professors.
In the counties of Luzerne, Schuylkill, Carbon and Northumberland, Pa., there are 478 men who insist upon the title of "professor." This includes musicians, teachers of music, schoolmasters, two sleight-of-hand men, one ventriloquist, four slingers or "professors of sparring," nine dancing masters, two oyster openers and twelve drink mixers or bartenders. Twenty years ago the title was a scarce one in the coal fields. It was worn only by college teachers and it carried a weight with it. — Hazleton Sentinel.

Why They Are Called "Coppers."
Fifty years ago policemen wore no uniforms, their badge of office being merely a copper shield. It was from this shield that they took their name of "coppers," which is often diminished to "cops." — Macon McCormick in New York Advertiser.

NOTICE.
U. S. Land Office, Vancouver Wash July 8, 1892.
Complaint having been entered at this office by Henry C. Carmack, against Charles Robertson, for abandoning his homestead entry No. 842, dated September 5th 1891, upon the south east quarter of section 2, township 3 north range 6 east, in Skamania county Wash., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, the said parties were duly summoned to appear at the U. S. Land office at Vancouver Wash., on the 29th day of August 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment. It appearing to my satisfaction that personal service cannot be made on the entryman, it is hereby ordered that the service be made by rules 13 and 14 of practice in the U. S.
