SUBSCRIPTION FOR STOCK.

We have been asked several times recently as to the status of a person subscribing for stock in an incorporated company. Of course many circumstances may arise which would alter position of the subscriber, but the rule is that having subscribed for the stock unconditionally, he must take it and pay for it. A promise is a good consideration for a promise, and when A promises to take stock and subscribes for it, and B does the same, and pays for it, he has a right to have A, compelled to keep his part of the contract. Where stock is subscribed conditionally the conditions must be complied with before the subscriber can be compelled to take his stock.

Tuesday Governor Buchanan, of Tennessee, commuted the sentence of Colonel H. Clay King, who was to have been hanged on the 15th. The history of the crime is brief. King became infatuated with the widow of the late confederate general, Pillow, and left his family to go and live with her. Later he became jealous of an attorney named Posten, and deliberately shot him down in the streets of Memphis. There was absolutely no excuse for the crime, and there was none for the commutation of the sentence. Col. King was one of the ablest lawyers in the state and had codified the state laws. His position alone secured the commutation, which gives force to the common idea that there are two laws in this country, one for the rich and another for the poor. Colonel King committed a brutal murder, and should have been hanged for the crime.

The money that is sent out from this valley to pay for hay and feed shipped in would in two years pay for building a big ditch the entire length of it. With plenty of water there would be hay to sell, instead of hay to buy, and not only this, but butter, eggs and live stock would soon form an important part of our exports. The McCoy ditch will, we understand, be surveyed soon, and then it will be seen whether or not our farmers are in earnest about desiring water.

If the California train robbers had held up a train recently sent from San Francisco to Washington, they would have made a haul big enough to last a regiment of them for life. The government had $20,000,000 gold in San Francisco, that it wanted in Washington. It was packed in 500 boxes and loaded in five cars. One little difficulty however was a guard of 39 armed men. The money weighed about 40 tons.

The state house at Salem, is yet to have a dome. The Homestead strike raised trouble with it, as the steel used in it came from that historic point. The dome is to cost $50,000 and now that Salem is happy it is to be hoped that her legislature will not be averse to appropriating money for a portage railroad from The Dalles, to Celilo. As Eastern Oregon people really need the railroad more than Salem did the dome.

County Judge Moreland has purchased for Multnomah county several large mortgages, sold by the sheriff for taxes, and intends testing the law. Heretofore there has been considerable difference of opinion as to the taxability of mortgages, the mortgagees generally giving themselves the benefit of the doubt. If Judge Moreland gets this question settled he will have earned his salary for a full term.

The cholera is still raging in Russia, and has gotten across the border into Austria, and there are a number of cases in Germany. It is safe to say, that the disease will be met and conquered outside of Russia. Civilization no longer sits idly by while epidemics carry off its citizens. Science has robbed the plague of its terrors, and meets the enemy with no fear as to the victory.

Oregon now has a state flower, and it found it at Hood River. That is to say at the recent meeting of the State Horticultural Society held here, it adopted the Oregon grape as the state flower. It is a genuine case of misnomer as the plant does not belong to the grape, but to the barberry family. It is, well everybody in this country knows what it is, and foreigners have no business to know.

Congress was asked to loan the Columbian exposition $5,000,000 but instead of doing so made it a present of $2,500,000. This proves conclusively that the democratic representatives have grown cute, and also that they understand that a loan by the government, means a gift.

Work at the Locks is suspended on account of the law requiring the work to be done by contract. They are now in the position of the man who perambulated between the d-1 and the deep blue sea.

A valley exchange says: "that the man who gets mad at what the newspapers say about him, should return thanks three times a day for what they could say about him, and don't."

President Harrison has issued a proclamation appointing Friday, Oct. 21, 1892, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a general holiday for the people of the United States.

The Cour D'Alene Riot.
BOISE CITY, Aug. 9.—In the case of the rioters, the defense began the introduction of testimony to-day to prove that the non-union men began hostilities, and that the union men cannot, therefore, be held to have violated the injunction restraining them from interfering with the working of the mines; and, further, that these defendants did not participate in the fight.

A large number of witnesses were examined. Mrs. Kennedy, wife of one of the defendants, testified that her husband was at home on the nights of July 10th and 11th. John Murphy testified that McFadden was not at the Frisco at the time of the fighting. E. B. Harris' testimony was also in the light of an alibi for McFadden and Kennedy.

Charles Kerland testified that he saw several of the defendants at the time of the fight and they were not engaged in it. C. J. Fleming testified that Thomas Eaton was not a participant in the riot, he saw him while the fight was going on and he was taking no part.

J. T. Moffatt, a deputy under Sheriff Cunningham, testified that it was commonly believed that the non-union men intended to have revenge for the beating of Guard Williams. He described the breastworks, and said that rifles were sent up on a special train to the Frisco. The first shots came from the Gem mill. He heard the shots, and running to the door, saw the smoke rising from the Gem breastworks. Guards stationed on the hill back of the mill were also firing. Thus Eaton was warning people to keep out of the way of the bullets. He saw Tom Whalen, R. Robinson and others of the defendants and they were all unarmed. No shots were fired in the town of Gem. He saw Daniel Harrington, who was unarmed. He saw the non-union men after the surrender. No shots were fired at them. There were no bullet-holes in the mill, but the buildings in the town were riddled. A number of other witnesses gave similar testimony. The defense will probably finish to-morrow.

WARDNER, Aug. 9.—Forty-two prisoners here who refused to sign the parole were released to-day on bonds ranging from $300 to $1000. They are the men whom Captain Johns examined and recommended for parole, the evidence against them not warranting their being held for any crime. Two companies are under orders to conduct the remainder of the prisoners to Wallace. It is expected that headquarters and the remaining troops will be moved to the same place in a short time. It has been definitely decided by the war department to retain four companies in the vicinity of Wallace until Governor Willey decides their services are no longer necessary as a protection to life and property. Other troops will be withdrawn on the 1st.

Cosmopolitan Cooking.
There is a belief current that whatever can be procured for money can be had in this city, especially if it is anything to eat. The people who flock here from every part of the country are apt, sooner or later, to import their native dishes, and to make them acceptable to gastronomic New York.

New England, no matter how lightly her cooking may be estimated, has had notable success of this kind. Baked beans, pumpkin pie and Boston brown bread are with us. The western man and his pork are known and appreciated. The Frenchman, the Irishman, the Englishman, the German and the Italian can go into any restaurant and find his national food.—New York Evening Sun.

An Old Time Conductor.
We had a conductor named William Ford, who was the most pompous and imposing man I ever saw. He was no good, and the boys called him Windy Bill on the sly, but the hardest of them dared not say anything less than Mr. Ford to his face. He was a big man, and dressed in the best broadcloth and walked about as if the earth belonged to him. One day he walked into the office at a station where my wife and little boy were sitting in the waiting room. As he passed through every one made room for him or tried to show him attention. My little boy watched him quietly till he disappeared, and then he whispered to his mother, "Ma, was that God?"—Locomotive Engineer.

An Old Fort Abandoned.
Fort Marcy, established at Santa Fe, N. M., when that territory came to the United States by conquest in 1846, has been abandoned. The fort marks a place where soldiers have been stationed, more or less continuously, for more than 300 years. Near to the fort is a cemetery, in which lie the bodies of more than 500 soldiers, some of whom fell in battle or yielded to disease or hardship.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The principal causes of death in one year in New York city were: Pneumonia, 5,817; consumption, 5,160; diarrhoeal diseases, 3,585; Bright's disease, 2,503; heart disease, 2,287; violence, 1,957; bronchitis, 1,834; diphtheria, 1,863; scarlet fever, 1,221; influenza, 838.

During the Eighteenth century, to satisfy the demands of enthusiastic amateurs, a large business of counterfeiting antique intaglios and cameos was developed. This was assisted by forging the signatures of classic artists.

The undersigned being located near Hood River, wishes to inform parties who may be desirous of having surveyed lands, that he is a practical surveyor of many years experience, and that work entrusted to him will be performed with dispatch and correctness. He takes pleasure in referring to Mr. A. S. Blowers, (who for years was county commissioner in Minnesota,) and for whom he did county work as county surveyor, as to his ability. Parties wishing me at Hood will receive prompt attention.
