THE CHOLERA.

For weeks the dispatches have been boasting about the strict watch being kept at New York and other scaports, to prevent the cholera getting a foothold in this country. Wednesday the steamer Moravia direct from Hamburg, sailed into New York harbor, up amongst the shipping, east anchor, remasined until late next morning and two sailors were allowed to go ashore. All this happened before the (according to the dispatches) ever vigilant quarantine officers boarded the vessel-When they did they discovered that cholera had broken out among the passengers the first day out, that :4 infect the foul stream that empties on of the American people. our shores, it should have been, should A it is, it is quite likely that the disease has already got a foot hold in New York City, and that the privilege granted a few plague stricken passengers to land upon our shores, will be paid for with hundreds of thousands of Ameri- peopled.
