FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

Representative Outwaite of Ohio is the latest to verify the report that Congress will convene in extra session in September next. Outwaite does not take any stock in the statement that immediately after the adjournment of the House committees a recess will be taken until the first of December. He said: "It is my opinion that Congress will be in continuous session, barring the usual Christmas holidays, from September until the following June."

It was learned at the State Department that the refusal of the Russian Consul in New York to vize the passport issued to Mrs. Sadie Schwartz by the State Department, on the ground that she is a Jewess, is in accordance with the laws of Russia. The danger of an uprising in Corea against the Christian missionaries in that country has passed. The news that mobs of natives had threatened to exterminate the whites was received by the State Department some weeks ago by cable. Protection from the United States government was requested, and accordingly the Navy Department sent the steamer Alert from Shanghai to Corea, with orders to remain until affairs had assumed a peaceful aspect. Admiral Harmony called the department that the Alert arrived at her destination April 24. The other day another dispatch was received from him stating the Alert had returned to Shanghai. While nothing concerning the condition of affairs was contained in the dispatch, it is certain the Alert would not have left Corea if any serious trouble had existed.

The International Monetary Conference, which adjourned to reassemble in Brussels on the 30th inst., will not reassemble on that date. The general feeling expressed by the representatives of the leading powers is that the end of May is not a suitable time for recommencing the labors of the conference, and as a result a consultation was held between the President, Secretary Gresham and some of the delegates of the United States. It was determined to cable the announcement that the reassembling of the conference would be postponed until some time in next November. Governor McCreary of Kentucky, who, as well as Senator Jones of Nevada, will continue to serve upon the commission, expresses much gratification at the change of date, and believes it will increase the prospect of the conference accomplishing some solid results.

"Are you busted?" is now the common salutation of the World's Fair people and visitors from the Northwest. The opening day hotel rates and restaurant charges were more than doubled, and great dissatisfaction prevails. G. V. Calhoun, executive of the Washington Commission, wired the following to the Spokane Review: "Would not advise any one to visit the fair for the present. Nothing ready; weather bad; everything confusion and insolence."

When asked for an expression of opinion regarding his visit to the World's Fair President Cleveland replied: "We received a very cordial welcome, and everything that could be done was done for our comfort and pleasure. It was an occasion I shall always remember with a gratified at the enterprise, skill and taste displayed in the arrangement and appearance of the buildings, and the results so far attained bespeak to my mind a great success for the World's Fair."

From present indications the music trouble at the World's Fair is about to become a scandal. Evidence was produced at a recent meeting of the National Commission which tends to show that Musical Director Thomas, not satisfied with using a contraband piano, is bent on boycotting pianos in his department at the fair. The evidence was of such a forcible nature that the commission adopted a resolution directing President Palmer to appoint a special committee of six to investigate the matter.

Ready with His Proverb.

"She was a bright young Yankee school marm," said Thompson H. Herndon. "She came highly recommended to a prosperous and aristocratic neighborhood not far from Little Rock a few months ago, and was long in building up a good school. Time wore on, and her pupils advanced wonderfully in their studies. She conceived the idea a few weeks ago of giving an exhibition of her most proficient class, and invited all the neighbors to come to the little school-house on Friday evening, that they might see and hear for themselves the progress that had been made by her teaching. There was a good crowd present. She had all the little girls and the little boys stand up. She questioned this one about one thing, and another about something else. Their answers were gratifying to the pretty teacher and to the parents of the children.

"Now," she said to them toward the close, "I want each of you to repeat some old proverb."

"Said Johnnie, 'All is not gold that glitters.'"

"Very good," said she; "very good."

"Be virtuous and you'll be happy," said Jimmie.

"That's splendid. Why, you boys remind me so much of a school I once taught in Boston," responded the fair teacher.

"The germ of ambition is the chrysalis of wisdom," said Willie.

"And so on down the class she went until she got to Peck Smith. He wasn't very bright, and she intended to skip him, but he seemed anxious to say something, and she asked him if he knew any old proverb. He did.

"A stump tailed yaller dog is the best for coons," was his answer.

"Peck's father grabbed him up joyfully, and before he left paid a year's tuition for Peck in advance."—St. Louis Republic.

Not So Bad as It Seemed.

The young man was talking to a very pious acquaintance of his.

"Miss Follins told me today you were at her house last night," she said.

"Yes," he replied.

"I presume of course you had a very pleasant time. She's such a charming girl."

"Lovely. I never had a better time. You see there was some one playing the piano in the back parlor and Miss Fannie and I quietly stole out into that big dining room they have, and in about a minute I slipped my arm about her waist."

"Sir!" And Miss Prim almost had a fit. He was cool as a cucumber.

"I said," he went on, "that I slipped my arm about her waist and she put her soft white hand on my shoulder!"

"I beg your pardon," interrupted Miss Prim, "but I cannot permit this conversation to continue. If Miss Follins thinks no more of herself than to permit such liberties from a gentleman, surely he should think enough of himself not to tell of them."

"The young man snickered.

"Of course, of course," he said; "but wait till you hear it all."

"No, sir; no, sir," she protested. "I have heard too much already."

"Why, there isn't anything told yet," he persisted. "As I said—"

"I shall not bear it, sir." And in high dudgeon she arose to depart.

"My dear miss," he said very contritely, "we were only beginning to waltz and everybody was looking at us."

"Oh," she exclaimed with a sudden collapse, and the young man laughed.—Detroit Free Press.

A Gameless Country.

The West Indian archipelago, with its four islands and numberless islets, is called the gameless country because in a region of more than 100,000 square miles there are no monkeys, no bears, raccoons, wild hogs, jaguars, panthers, lynx, wildcats, foxes, wolves or jackals. There are not even woodchucks to be dug out of the many caves.

On the highlands there are no bison, deer, antelope or rabbits. Dogs and cats, too, are unknown, and this lack of household pets seems to have driven the aborigines to expedients, for in a book called "Ogilby's Voy
