HOOD RIVER, OREGON, MAY 27, 1893.

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF IT.

The Rev. Edward F. Payson, preaching last Sunday in New York, on the Chinese exclusion law, branded it as "unjust and unchristian." Then as he warmed up to the question he says:

"I do not hesitate to say that it has given more varied benefits to the world than any other nation of the earth. The Chinese proved themselves strong intellectually and commercially, as is shown by what they have accomplished in the 10 years following the war which resulted in the breaking down of the Chinese wall of exclusion and the admission of Christian missionaries."

After more rot of this kind his zeal got the better of his very common sense and he enunciated the following remarkable doctrine:

"Thus have we, a christian nation, broken faith with the Chinese, whom we, in our righteousness, designated as a nation of pagans but even if we have the right to exclude and deport Chinese, we have not the power. No act of congress can keep them out. The principles of christianity say we must welcome all strangers within our gates, to our schools and churches, and teach them the lesson taught us by Christ."

It is passing strange how readily a religious zealot can clothe with imaginary attributes a people whom he desires to inculcate with his doctrine. It would, perhaps, bother the reverend gentleman to point out the "varied benefits to the world than any other nation of the earth," and it would furnish serious employment for a long time to demonstrate that any good has been accomplished by the admission of missionaries to China. According to statistics there are 110,000 Chinese in the United States, all exposed to christianity, but few inoculated with it. In San Francisco where there is now, and has been for years a regular Chinese city, the conversions to christianity are few, and these few have in most cases been accomplished through the efforts of young lady teachers, the religion lasting only while the term of the teacher lasted. The Caucasian and the Mongolian will no more mingle than oil and water. Race lines and race prejudices are too strongly drawn on both sides to be ever broken down, and it is right that it should be so. The civilization of today will not join hands with that of 2000 years ago as represented by the Chinese, and neither treaties by the government nor prayers by the missionaries can bridge over the chasm between them. As for the proposition that congress can not keep the Chinese, or any other people or persons out of the United States, we refer the reverend zealot to the decision of the supreme court, and the logical conclusions of common sense. The first duty of any government is to its citizens, and not to those of some other country. It matters not what the demands of christianity are, or what claims the Chinese may have on the religious world; if they are a detriment to our people and to our country, it is our duty to keep them out of it. We may sympathize with the leper, and humanity would dictate some provision for his care, but bigotry itself would scarcely demand that he should be admitted to our firesides. The time when these United States are to be looked upon as a great receiving hospital for the world, has gone by. The fellowship of man, unless it is an agreeable fellowship, is an obsolete doctrine. The United States government is for its own people, and neither its duties nor its powers, demand of it a religious crusade. What the religious denominations may do is their own business, but neither mistaken zeal, nor fanatical bigotry will be successful in opening wide our gates, that our country may be flooded with human cattle, to furnish the raw material for possible converts.

A WORN OUT DOCUMENT.

Oregon has outgrown its constitution, and needs a new one. It was made to suit the wants of 20,000 people, and is not large enough for 400,000. The middle over the soldier's home emphasizes this. That the constitution says that all state buildings should be located at the state capital, is beyond question; and that the locating of any state building away from the state capital is unconstitutional is an undeniable sequence. The constitution has been trampled upon and ignored so often that it has lost respect and force. The people have acquiesced in this treatment of it. There is scarcely a county in the state but that has a debt in direct violation of the constitution, and we believe Marion county is in that condition. Salem cares little for the soldier's home being located elsewhere, and the suit was brought not to prevent the locating of the soldier's home, but to prevent the locating of the branch insane asylum in Eastern Oregon. It will not work. The matter may be delayed, but Salem has started a conflagration that is now beyond her control and the matter is going to be settled, and settled right, even though it requires a change of both constitution and capitol to do it.

Read This and Profit by it.

Olinger and Bone, proprietors of the Big Red Barn, in addition to their live stock and stage business, are handling grain, chop-feed and hay. They are also agents for the Knapp Pump & Co. machinery. Bain wagons, buxels, Oliver Chilled Steel plows, garden cultivators, plows and harrows; and will sell their Mt. Hood coaches, hacks and buggies, now in use, in order to open in the spring with an entire new outfit. Call and price their goods.

"World's Fair Travelers Will Have It."

The public demand through service when traveling. It is old-fashioned to change cars. On the through solid vestibule trains of the Chicago, Union Pacific and Northwestern Line, from or to Chicago, Omaha and intermediate points, there is no change. This is the finest and fastest road.

A. C. Stranahan has opened his stand on Oak street, and will keep a stock of fine candies, fruits and cigars; and during the summer will serve lemon and lemonade. Besides this he will carry a fine line of fishing tackle.

J. T. DEIK, Applicant.

CONCERNING TAXES.

The state board of equalization last year, went beyond their powers and made a new assessment. Unimproved land here, that was assessed at five times what the same class of lands were rated at in other parts of the county had to stand a raise just the same as the latter. In Sherman county this year the assessor is rating improved farm lands at $80.00 per quarter section, or $5.00 per acre, and grazing or other unimproved lands $3. per acre. Personal property is being valued by him as follows: Range horses $15, to $20, work horses $40, to $50., cattle $10, and credits at 50 per cent of their face. Our improved lands are generally worth much more than the wheat lands of Sherman county, but the unimproved lands here are worth no more. This may serve for a pointer to our people in giving in their assessments. Every citizen should cheerfully bear his portion of the burden of taxation, but taxing unimproved lands at $20. per acre, is taxing simply future possibilities.

Reports from Southern Oregon gold fields, show that occasionally some lucky prospector takes out $500.00 in a day. This is naturally exciting, but it must be remembered that there are probably 1000 men prospecting 999 of whom did not find anything, and the gold found would not be a "grub stake" for all of them. This is the reverse side of the mining picture.

Hugh Gourlay is now editor of the Goldendale Sentinel, and its readers will note a marked and permanent improvement from the first issue. It will be as readable as when our old friend W. R. Dunbar penned its editorials, and this is good enough for any body.

Out of Sight.

The traveling public are now fully alive to the fact that the Chicago, Union Pacific and Northwestern line offers the very best accommodations to the public from and to Chicago, Omaha and intermediate points, not only during the world's fair, but all the year around.

"MIDNIGHT."

Will make the spring season of 1893, at convenient places throughout the valley and White Salmon Washington. Time and place subject to future appointments.

Description and Pedigree.

"Midnight" is a coal-black Hambletonian, 5 years old; 18 hands; weight 1400 pounds; bred by Shaw's Hambletonian dam, a Copper-bottom mare. "Midnight" is a good dispositioned horse, a lumpy driver and quite a trotter for a horse of his size.

"Midnight" services will be $10 for single services, due at time of service, or $15 for the season. Persons breeding by single service and mare failing to catch, can breed by the season for the additional payment of $5. Season to close July 15, 1893.

For terms and other information apply to, A. L. PHELPS, Manager.

CARE OF YOUNG COLTS.

This is the time of year when much loss occurs to the farmers in the loss of young foals. A Canadian horse-breeder of much experience says:

Carefully watch your colt for the first ten days, and see that its bowels act properly, as the first ten days are the most critical in a foal's existence. If you can get them over the first ten days they usually require very little attention if the mare is fed judiciously.

The mare should be fed some bran or some time after soft food, such as boiled oats, bran, and linseed that has been boiled for twelve hours or longer, so as to loosen the system and provide a generous flow of milk. If from some cause the mare should not have sufficient milk the best substitute is cow's milk, one-fourth water and a tablespoonful of honey tea pint of milk.

Constiveness, diarrhoea, and inflammation are the principal ailments a young foal is subject to. The two first careful treatment will overcome; the last is, in most fatal.

The following are well tried and the best remedies that have come under my notice: Constiveness—Rectal injections of lukewarm water every half hour, or syrup of rhubarb with a few drops linseed oil; dose, tablespoonful. Nothing acts more powerfully than injections, and the advantage is they do no harm.

Diarrhoea should not be stopped suddenly; tablespoonful brandy with teaspoonful of tincture of gentian and two tablespoonfuls lime water in a cupful linseed tea every three hours.

Inflammation—Apply blanket, thickly folded and wrung out in very hot water, to belly; rub the legs well; give teaspoonful laudanum in two ounces of water. Repeat dose in two hours if necessary.
