ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Another Scion of a Distinguished Family Selected by the President. Edward B. Whitney, who was nominated general, is a very successful lawyer

in the city of New York, a member of the firm of Bur-

His appointment

to his present posi tion is said to have been strongly urged by the most prominent mem-bers of the "antisnapper" convention, in which he took a potent and prominent part. EDWARD B. WHITNEY. Among his indorsers were such men as ex-Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Fairchild and ex-Mayor of New York William R. Grace.

Mr. Whitney worked hard for the nomination and election of Mr. Cleveland to the governorship of New York in 1882 and has ever since been among his stoutest supporters, doing some very effective work for him during the presidential campaigns in 1884, 1888 and 1802. When the National Association of Democratic Clubs was organized in 1888, Mr. Whitney was elected secretary, and he was also secretary to the state committee organized by the Syracuse or "antisnapper" convention, from which he was a delegate to Chicago.

Mr. Whitney was born in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 17, 1857, and after attending the Hopkins grammar school entered Yale college in 1874, graduating from the academic department in 1878. After a law course in New Haven and at the Columbia college law school in New York he was admitted to the bar in 1880 and has since then built up a very extensive and lucrative practice in New York city. FAITH AND REASON.

Two travelers started on a tour With trust and knowledge laden; One was a man with mighty brain, And one a gentle maiden. They joined their hands and vowed to be Companions for a season. The gentle maiden's name was Faith,

The mighty man's was Reason. He sought all knowledge from this world, And every world a-near it: All matter and all mind were his, But hers was only spirit.

If any stars were missed from heaven, His telescope could find them: But while he only found the stars She found the God behind them

He sought for truth above, below. All hidden things revealing; She only sought it womanwise. And found it in her feeling. He said, "This earth's a rolling ball," And so doth science prove it.

He but discovered that it moves, She found the strings that move it. He reads with geologic eye

The record of the ages: Unfolding strata, he translates Earth's wonder written pages. He digs around a mountain base And measures with a plummet: She leaps it with a single bound And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the secret force In nature's labyrinth lurking And binds it to his onward car

To do his mighty working. He sends his message o'er the earth And down where sea gems glisten: She sendeth hers to God himself, Who bends his car to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art, In common they inherit: But he has only clasped the form, While she has clasped the spirit.

He tries from earth to forge a key To ope the gate of heaven! That key is in the maiden's heart,

And back its bolts are driven. They part! Without her all is dark, His knowledge vain and hollow, For Faith has entered in with God,

Real Kindness

A blind and crippled old man sat at the sdge of the icy stone pavement grinding out his few tunes on a wheezy hand organ, and holding in one hand a tin cup for pen- from the light, until it ceases to east nies. The cold wind blew through his rags, and he was indeed a pitiful object. Yet few of the passers by seemed to pity him. They were all in a hurry, and it was of the flame. It is apparent that the too cold to stop and hunt for pennies in shadows thrown are to a great extent pockets and purses.

A sudden gust of wind blew the old man's cap off. It fell by the side of the pavement, a few feet distant. He felt around for it with his bare, red hands, and then with his cane, but he could not find. it, and finally began playing again bareheaded, with his scanty gray locks tossed about in the wind.

People came and went, happy, well cressed men and women in silks and velvets and sealskins, in warm overcoats and gloves and mufflers. But none of them paid any attention to the old man.

By and by a woman came out of an al ley, an old woman in rags and tatters, with a great bundle of boards and sticks on her bent back. Some of the boards were so long that they dragged on the ground behind her, and it had evidently taken her a long time to tie all the boards and bits of lumber together and get them on her back.

She came along, bending low under her burden, until she was within a few feet of the old organ grinder. She saw his cap ying by the pavement. She saw him sit ting there bareheaded.

She stopped and untied the rope that bound the bundle to her back, and in a moment the boards were lying on the ground. Then she picked up the cap, put it on the old man's head and tied it down with a ragged string of a handkerchief taken from her own neck. "Cold, hain't it?" she said.

He nodded. "Ain't gittin much today?"

He shook his head again.

She fumbled in her ragged skirts for a noment and flually brought forth a cop per. She dropped it into his little cup, hoisted the great bundle on her back and went on her way .- Youth's Companion.

Mr. Green Understood It.

Some good stories are told of Thomas Reynolds, who began his duties as an as sociate justice of the supreme court of this state early in September, 1822. Not all of them are true, and the one that follows has been denied, but it may be worth repeating nevertheless. Governor Ford is authority for it:

Judge Reynolds presided at a court in which a man named Green had been convicted of murder, and it became his un pleasant duty to pronounce sentence of death upon the culprit. He called the prisoner before him and said to him: "Mr. Green, the jury in its verdict says you are guilty of murder, and the law says you are to be hanged. Now, I want you and all your friends down on Indian creek to know that it is not 1 who condemns you, but it is the jury and the law. Mr. Green, the law allows you time for preparation, and so the court wants to know what time you would like to be hauged."

The prisoner replied that he was ready to die at any time the court might appoint. The judgethen said: "Mr. Green, you must know that it is a very serious thing to be hanged; it can't happen to a man more than once in his life, and you had better take all the time you can get. The court will give you until this day four weeks. Mr. Clerk, look at the almanac and see it this day four weeks comes on Sunday. The clerk looked and found that it came on a Thursday, and the court informed Mr Green that he would be hanged on that Measuring Candle Power.

The method of measuring the candle power of light is simply to move an object along a graded scale, away a shadow; a mark on the scale at this point indicating the candle power dependent on the intensity of the light. Thus water gas, which gives a more intense light to a given area than coal gas, casts a strong shadow in the measuring machine, but when put to practical use it does not illuminate a room so well, not having so

DECIDEDLY SHAKY.

A trembling hand, an uncertain step, fidgeti-ness, indicated by restless shifting from one place or posture to another, usually mental an-noyance at unexpected noises, are among the indications of extreme nervousness. These seem trifling, but the health of men and women in this condition is "decidedly shaky," liable to be overthrown disastronsity by causes which the vigorous might dety. To fortify the ner-vous system general vigor must, through the medium of reinforced digestion and a renewal of an impaired power of sleeping at night, be reised to a healthful standard. A gnarantee of this is Hostetter's stomach Bitters, which tre-establishes digestion, bile secretion and the habit of body on a permanently regular basis, thus renewing that bodily equilibrium, which is followed by a gain of strength and nerve tranguillity. For kidney complaint, the iras atack or subsequent return of malarial disor-ders, this medicine is without a peer. Thrice daily take a wineglassitu.

While it is over thirty years ago since ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS were first introduced to the medical profession and public, the marked success and unprecedented popularity which they met with not only continues, but steadily increases. No other plasters have been produced which gain so many testimonials of high value as those continuously accorded to Arrocs's POROUS PLASTERS, and the only motive for these exceptional tributes lies in the fact of heir being a medicinal and pharmaceutical preparation of superior value. Additional roof of the true value of ALLCOCK's POR-US PLASTERS lies in the fact that they are being largely initated by unscrupulou persons, who seek to deceive the public by persons, who seek to deceive the public by offering plasters which they claim to be the "same, "equal," as good" "better." Mr. Whitney comes of a distinguished New England family. His father, William Dwight Whitney, professor of Sanskritand philology at Yale university and editor of the "Century Dictionary," has a world-wide reputation as one of the greatest living philologists, while his uncle, Josiah Dwight Whitney, the eminent geologist, has been of great service in various state surveys and has now a more than national fame.

The First American Bible

In 1663 the first Bible printed in America was published in Cambridge. It was unlawful to print an English version of the Scriptures, that right being a monopoly enjoyed by privilege and patent in England. The one printed in Massachusetts was Eliot's famous "Indian Bible," and although 1,500 copies were struck off they are quite rare, and 'sealed books," as the tongue in which they are written is literally a "dead language," the tribe and all who had a knowledge of the dialect being long extinct.

Eliot's work is unique, being at once a monument to his piety, perseverance and learning. Its literary successor was Newman's "Concordance of the Scriptures." This was compiled by the light of pine knots in a log cabin in one of the frontier settlements of Massachusetts. It was the first of its kind, and for more than a

Meaning of the Word "Either." The legal meaning of the word "either" has been gravely argued in an English court of record. A certain testator had left property, the disposition of which was affected by the "death of either" of "either" meant both, and in support of his views he quoted Richardson, Webster, Chaucer, Dryden, Southey, the Smartly-Solomon's first wife was the best one he had. Mrs. Smartly-How do you know? Smartly-The Bible says that she was one woman the there is a story of the crucifixion and a passage from Revelation. The judge suggested that there was a song in "The Beggar's Opera" which took another view, "How dear charmer away."

In pronouncing judgment the court ruled that "either" meant one of two. and did not mean both. He said that it might have that meaning occasionally in poetry, but never in an English court of record.-Exchange.

An Unexplorable French Pit.

The wonderful pit of Creus de Souci in France is situated in a sheet of recent basalt on the south side of the Puy de Montchal. The opening is 82 feet in diameter and 38 feet deep, but at that depth a hole about 10 feet wide communicates with a hollow 70 feet deep, at the bottom of which is a stagnant pool overladen with carbonic acid, which forbids access to the water surface. The interior is a vast hollow, apparently Suffered Every Minute formed in the basalt when semifluid, by an explosion of volcanic gas. The temperature falls from 54 degrees Fahrenheit in the open air to 34 degrees near the water .- Pittsburg Dispatch.

Sock and Buskin.

In the early ages theatrical performers disguised their faces with wine lees or a rude pigment. Eschylus, the famous tragic poet, introduced masks, which were of various kinds, expressing every age, coun try, condition and complexion. All were constructed with the greatest nicety and precision. The dresses were also adapted to the characters assumed by the actors. What was known as the buskin was a hunting boot. Those worn by tragedians had soles three inches thick, composed of layers of cork, and were laced up in front as high as the calf.

Sandals were also worn, and many of these had thick cork soles. The colors of the foot coverings were various, red being the favorite hue for warriors and purple for other characters. Slaves wore a low shoe, bearing the name of sock, which was also the ordinary footwear of comedians. From this circumstance arose the well known phrase of "sock and buskin," so generally associated with the drama.-De troit Free Press.

Some Mothers' Superstitions.

The superstitions concerning babies exist in almost every household. If the baby's nails are cut before it is a year old it will have a propensity to steel. If it is measured it will cease to grow. It is lucky to take a new born babe up stairs. It is unlucky to take it down stairs. I know a very intelligent mother who, because of a superstition of ill luck, will not name any happy I could be with either, were tother of her children until the rite of baptism is about to be performed.
