Judge Cheney of Nevada has decided a very important water suit at Lovelocks, Humboldt county. He gives the plaintiffs just water enough to irrigate their land under the best management. They claimed the right to all their ditch water, and asked for the removal of the Pitts dam, higher up in the Humboldt, which was refused.

Experienced irrigationists in the San Joaquin Valley think it is possible to work an improvement in the system in two directions. One is to make use of the high waters of winter and spring, which now run to waste; the other is to dispose largely with surface wetting of the ground, which produces sickness and calls for much work that can be done away with.

Mrs. Ruth Townsend was accidentally shot and killed at Salt Lake with a target rifle in the hands of Leovina Harkard, the sweetheart of Mrs. Townsend's son, Arthur. Miss Harkard was aiming at a target and Arthur Townsend, who was endeavoring to steady her aim by resting the rifle on his arm, suddenly dropped it at her request, changing the aim. Mrs. Townsend, who was standing to one side, received the discharge of the rifle, and died in ten minutes.

At Astoria Attorney Warren has commenced suit in the Circuit Court against Mayor Crosby and the city of Astoria, enjoining them from levying and collecting taxes for 1893. The complaint alleges that there is no City Assessor authorized by law, and that the Council has no authority to levy a tax for this year. The case was heard before Justice McBride. City Attorney Hamilton defended the complaint, but the Judge overruled the demurrer and granted the injunction, saying that the city, and not the city, could be allowed to levy the tax according to the last State law. The case will be appealed to the Supreme Court at once.

The Executive Committee of the San Francisco Midwinter Fair gives out the following information: H. Wallenstein, who has a large flour-milling exhibit at Chicago, communicates relative to the establishing of his exhibit at the California Fair. Several additional offers have been received from gentlemen who believe they can be of assistance to the fair and tender their services, free of any cost except traveling expenses, to work among the different Pacific Coast States. A great many offers have been received from paint manufacturers, offering to paint the buildings and also to cover the roofs with various materials. One concern has requested the privilege of covering the office of the buildings at the fair for the cost of the material and labor. Applications from mercantile houses of all sorts are coming in every mail. A local firm representing a large number of Eastern manufacturing houses say they intend to get up a very elaborate exhibition of different proprietary articles. Some of these exhibits are promises. Several of the Columbian Exhibition features of these will be brought to California. The Chinese Six Companies have subscribed $5,000 to the Midwinter Fair. In addition to this they will bring the Chinese exhibit from the will go Fair to San Francisco, and will Chicago Fair to San Francisco, and will bring a number of new features. Among the things promised is a floating Chinese village. The Executive Committee will appoint an international jury of awards. The general reception of exhibits will commence October 15, and no article will be admitted after December 20.

At the recent ceremony in Vienna of the conferring of a Cardinal's hat on the Bishop of Groswardine—a most imposing ceremony because of the number of the church dignitaries present and because the Emperor knelt there prostrate at the altar—the most impressive figure was that of the young papal envoy, who attracted all eyes. This youthful prelate, the son of a Spanish nobleman, was easily the center of the brilliant scene on account of his youth, his manly beauty and the dignity beyond his years which lent effectiveness to his address to the Emperor. He is the son of Senor del Val, was born in England and is famous in Rome for the fine sermons he preaches in the English tongue.

FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

Secretary Carlisle has begun the reorganization of the Treasury Department. A number of clerks have already been dropped and others reduced as far as possible under the civil service rules.

Much interest has been aroused among statisticians by the discovery that the figures of the balance of trade against this country for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, as shown by the record of the bureau of statistics of the Treasury Department, were about $40,000,000 out of the way. Instead of an adverse balance of $63,000,000 the corrected returns have shown only about $50,000,000.

Special Supervising Agent Tingle says that the Treasury Department is doing all it can with the money on hand for the enforcement of the Geary exclusion law. He claims that, if the $50,000 available July 1 should be broken into immediately for the purpose of entering into the wholesale deportation of Chinese, very soon there would be nothing left to pay the special agents and other officers of the Treasury engaged in keeping the Chinese out of this country. He says that officers of the government are at present engaged in gathering information as to the Chinese who are illegally here, and that the Treasury intends to enforce the law.

The report of Chinese Inspector Scharf on his investigation of the fraudulent entry of Chinese at the port of New York has been received at the Treasury Department. No report from Collector Hendricks as to Inspector Scharf's allegation of collusion by New York officials is yet received. It is alleged in Washington City that the customs officers at New York have been extremely lax in issuing Chinese certificates, and that whenever the Treasury agents or inspectors have undertaken to investigate matters they invariably have been given the cold shoulder. This state of facts is said to apply to no particular administration. To some extent the same condition of affairs, it is said, exists in other cities, where the customs officers seem to think the Treasury agents have no right to investigate their acts.

So far as the State Department is informed, there are no American citizens residing in Siam except missionaries. It is not believed to be necessary to take any special measures for their protection. The United States has no representative in Siam, and the Consul-General at Bangkok, Mr. Boyd, is in this country at present, leaving the office in charge of his son, the Vice-Consul. If the welfare of our missionaries should be threatened, which is unlikely, they can without doubt secure protection on application to the Minister of some other nation, as will be the case with the French residents. The commercial interests of the United States in Siam are insignificant, the exports being very few and the imports being made up of teak wood, used in shipbuilding, and some trifles of Oriental and Malayan decorative work.

It is said at the Navy Department that Admiral Harmony's recent retirement, for which the department has been criticized, was in strict accordance with his written request. He called the department from Hongkong March 13, asking to be ordered home and retired upon his arrival in the United States. He suggested June 7 as the most convenient date for his departure. In a letter of March 7 he after asking for detachment said: "Upon my arrival in the United States, which fact I will report by telegraph, I ask that I may be placed on the retired list, as authorized by the statute, having served over forty years continuously in the navy of the United States." April 24 the President approved the application, to take effect upon the Admiral's arrival in the United States, which was June 26, as reported by the naval agent at San Francisco. An order was accordingly issued placing him on the retired list. The next day the Admiral telegraphed his arrival, and asked to be retired June 29, but it was impossible to change the date, as the order had already been issued and was mailed to him.

CHICAGO EXPOSITION.

Although up to the present time there have been nearly 6,000,000 paid admissions to the World's Fair, the officials are disappointed in the attendance. The most sanguine exposition experts say that under the most favorable conditions the total attendance cannot reach 20,000,000. Before the exposition opened the officials thought the attendance would reach 30,000,000.

When completed, the Yerkes telescope, which has been donated to the University of Chicago, will be the largest in the world. The mounting of the telescope is now being put together in the manufacturing building. The square iron pier supporting the tube was put in place in the north end of Columbia avenue last May. It was about thirty feet in height, in four sections. The tube was in five sections, which together are sixty-four feet in length and weigh six tons. The head and axis weigh thirty tons.

Chairman Thatcher of the executive committee of the bureau of awards, speaking of the system of awards, said: "The bureau has intended from the start to cause a most complete and exhaustive examination to be made of the exhibits to the end that it might obey the injunction of Congress requiring the bureau to disclose to the world the progress made in the arts, industries and sciences. The commercial side of the awards question sinks into insignificance when compared to the instructive side. To know that John Smith received a prize for his exhibit tells the world nothing. What the people want to know is the merit or improvement over the past disclosed by his exhibit. It would have been easy enough to adopt the old-fashioned, meaningless system of making awards, and then everything would have been done with a flourish, but what educational results would there have been?"

THE HEALTHFUL CELERY.

Ways of Serving it Cold and Hot—How to Make Celery Salt.

Celery Salad—Celery salad is the choice of salads for game, especially for small game. Cut the best and whitest parts of the celery into small pieces and serve with mayonnaise or French dressing. Arrange the salad on lettuce hearts and garnish with nasturtium blossoms. A very excellent salad is made by adding finely shredded and bruised cabbage to the celery—a half a head to three heads of celery. Cut the best and whitest parts into half inch pieces, mix with the cabbage and cover with the following dressing: Beat together the yolk of one raw egg, two tablespoonsful of olive oil (or melted butter), a tablespoonful of sugar—level full it should be—a teaspoonful each of salt, pepper and mustard. Stir in a half cupful of vinegar and the powdered yolks of four eggs which have been boiled for ten minutes. Pour over the salad at serving time.

Boiled Celery—Cook the celery with as little water as possible, with a pinch of soda added. Season with salt and butter.

Chicken Celery—Cut cold boiled chicken in small pieces, mix with the same quantity of celery, season with salt and vinegar or cover with salad dressing. Turkey and veal (cold boiled) may be served in the same manner.

Steamed Celery—Wash two or three heads of crisp white celery. Reserve the best parts, cut in pieces, sprinkle with salt, add a lump of prime butter and place in the steamer in a dish suitable to serve it in. A few minutes before removing from the fire add some rich cream. Celery cooked in this manner is regarded as one of the daintiest and most appetizing of celery dishes.

Celery Salt—Wash and rinse celery roots until quite clean, and then scrape them. When dry grate and mix with one-third fine table salt. Use for soups, gravies, hashes, oysters, etc.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Americans Who Travel.

Somebody was saying the other day that women who travel in railway trains are often not so careful as they should be about speaking to strangers, particularly strange men. "Strange men" has a dreadful sound, and it might be said of the comment in general that probably women, like men, are often not so wise as they should be. In regard to railway travel and its resulting acquaintances, it is notable that Americans are much freer in their traveling habits than foreigners, a fact which testifies very interestingly to the greater social safety of our public conveyances.

"In England or France," says an American lady, "men seldom offer to help a woman who may be traveling in a railway carriage, not because they are less willing to extend the courtesy of reaching a satchel or anything of that kind, but because they would be very likely to get a freezing look and the cold shoulder. Continental women of respectability feel themselves obliged to wear a panoply of reserve that sometimes seems amusing to an American. Of course the reason is that our society is a purer society and one in which women have a better status. This American freedom undoubtedly begets many abuses. Women of the utmost respectability not only exchange words with men they have never seen before, but often do not hesitate to 'strike up an acquaintance.'"—New York Recorder.

Arrested for Selling Branded Peaches.

A peculiar case of innocent violation of the revenue laws has developed in Decatur. F. S. Fox bought a quantity of imported branded peaches. He took them to Cerro Gordo and sold them at his restaurant. Jacob Leslie's boy became intoxicated on the peaches, and this started quite a run on the peaches. Fox had to order a fresh supply. Mr. Leslie had Fox arrested for violation of the liquor law, and the trial will take place at Cerro Gordo. A Decatur chemist analyzed the peaches, and found that one bottle contained 37 per cent. of alcohol.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Captain Goodell's share of the winnings thus far foots up $750,000.—Bangor Letter.
