

Hood River Glacier.

HOOD RIVER, OR. SEPT. 2, 1893.

Queries by Kicker.

Why is it that the Oregonian has for the past two weeks quoted California apples at $1.25 to $1.50 per box and Oregon at 50 to 75 cents? Is it possible that the boasted Gravenstein apples of Oregon do not compare with the same kind from California?

S. A. Clarke vouches for the Earl Fruit Co. Who will vouch for Sam Clarke?

Why is it that the Regulator charges six bits for a round-trip ticket to Mosier while that grinding monopoly the Union Pacific railroad charges but 35 cents?

When a man has been patronizing the merchants of Hood River to the extent of all his cash while his crops are growing, and when his wheat is thrashed and he takes a load to town and finds the market overstocked by a couple of sacks brought in by a man more fortunate than him, is it not discouraging? And while he is drawing his load that he expected to trade for groceries back to his mountain home his feelings we might appreciate but not express in words. And still some people wonder why such cattle as anarchists exist in this free land! When wheat is selling here for six bits a bushel our farmers who do not raise wheat should buy of those who do and take it to Harbison Bros' mill, where they can get it ground into first-class flour, far superior to any that is shipped here from Eastern Oregon. Hood river valley grows wheat of first quality and most of it is used for chicken feed. Let us use more home-made flour and buy Sherman county's shriveled wheat for chicken feed, which is going a-begging at 37 1/2 cents a bushel.

KICKER.

The Storm on the Atlantic Coast.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The storm which swept over this city and surrounding country last night from midnight till eight o'clock this morning, like the one a few days ago, originated in the West Indies, but instead of following the coast swept more inland. It reached out in every direction for more than 1500 miles. Many houses in this city were unroofed or demolished and the wires of all descriptions are broken. The Long Island and Jersey shore resorts suffered more than from the storm of last week. Railroad communication between Jersey shore and Philadelphia has been cut off. The Delaware river is higher than for years. The drydocks of Cranip's shipyards were damaged to the extent of $10,000 by the high tide. Heavy damage to property was done at New Haven, Conn., by the storm. Shade trees were torn down and chimneys and roofs blown off in profusion. The oyster beds are thought to be entirely ruined. The fruit orchards of Connecticut suffered much and some were ruined. It is impossible to accurately estimate the damage at present, though it must amount to over $1,000,000 in New Haven county alone. In the vicinity of Savannah, Ga., about 100 lives were lost by the hurricane and floods, and the damage to property will amount to $1,000,000. Many public buildings and private residences were wrecked at Charleston, and at Port Royal 100 lives were lost and the damage will reach half a million.

The Apple Crop.

Still further decline in the condition of apples is shown by the August returns to the Department of Agriculture. The indication that the commercial crop would be very light is confirmed. In many States a complete failure is reported.

The Maine apple crop is a light one, the drought having caused an unusual dropping of the small setting fruit. Baldwins and russets are a general failure. The scarcity of the Baldwin is comparatively new trouble, it having been formerly reckoned upon as one of the surest bearers that the orchardists could plant.

In England, on the other hand, the apple crop promises to be much superior in extent and quality to that of recent years. In addition the crop is so far advanced that it will be placed on the market three or four weeks ahead of the usual time. This last is an important point, as the foreign supplies which reach England later will not have to compete with the full weight of the crop.

The President's Cancer.

The Philadelphia Press publishes a four-column article reiterating the statement that President Cleveland submitted to an operation on the yacht Oneida for the removal of a cancer, requiring the cutting away of a considerable part of the jawbone. So far there has been no serious effect. The Press says Cleveland is still very sick, and his physicians fear mortal disease is still lurking in his system. A few days ago Colonel Lamont said in New York: "The president is a sick man; how sick we cannot tell." The Press says this operation took place at the time of the president's previous visit to Buzzard's Bay. The wound seemed to heal easily. Naturally, now the physicians hope all virus was removed and a full recovery may result. The report is discredited by members of the president's official family at Washington.

The Wilson bill, repealing the silver-purchase clause of the Sherman act, passed the lower house of congress Monday by a vote of 239 to 110. Bland's amendment for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 was defeated by a vote of 123 to 226.

The Cholera.

The New York Herald's correspondent at Valparaiso cables a dispatch from the correspondent in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, which shows that the steamer Carlos is on the Atlantic Ocean, bound for no port, filled with persons afflicted with the cholera and having a record of 105 deaths on her voyage across the ocean. The dispatch says the steamer Carlos arrived at Rio Janeiro Aug. 23rd from the Grand Island canal, and that 105 persons on board of her died of cholera on the way over. When the ship got into the harbor and made her report she was refused permission to land or even put her crew and passengers in quarantine. She was escorted out of the harbor by the warship Republica and ordered not to land at any Brazilian port.

Reports from Galicia indicate that the cholera raging there is of a far more virulent type than that which scourged Hamburg last year, and the danger to Europe from that quarter is most serious. Nearly all the cases are fatal. Reports from Hungary are scarcely more reassuring. The water supply at Buda Pesth is very bad, and the plague is certain to cause heavy ravages. It has already reached the confluence of the Theiss with the Danube.

Cholera has been raging in Nantes the past two weeks. As many as 25 new cases were reported in one day, and 50 per cent of the persons attacked succumbed to the disease.

A woman said to be suffering from genuine Asiatic cholera was taken to the city hospital at Jersey city Wednesday.

White Salmon Side.

WHITE SALMON, WASH., Aug. 31. EDITOR GLACIER:

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Jewett who have been in Portland the past week returned Thursday evening.

Geo. Hixon lost his dwelling house by fire Wednesday, as the family were away at the time it is not known how the fire originated, fortunately for George it was insured, which will make the loss less than it would otherwise have been.

Mrs. W. L. Morris and children returned Thursday from a visit to her parents at Centerville.

We understand that our proposed saloon will be a barber shop, and that the saloon idea has been abandoned, of course, we all swallow the story. We know a barber could make as much as six bits per month if he rustled hard enough. We presume that the suspicious looking barrel that was put off the steamer here some time since contained bay rum or shampooing fluid for the barber shop; too thin.

Howard Isenberg, of Hood River, was in our little city Tuesday.

W. H. Overbaugh and family are expected up from Portland Friday afternoon.

School will open here Monday Sept. 4th, with Henry Howe in charge. Mr. Howe is an old teacher, holding a first grade certificate, and we predict a successful term of school under his management.

J. R. Rankin is having his dwelling painted which adds greatly to its appearance. CHINOOK.

While Roger B. Sinnott of The Dalles was in attendance at the world's fair (so called) in Chicago, he spent much of his time about the Oregon buildings, and we have it from reliable authority that its only while he was there that anybody raised a voice in the interest of Eastern Oregon, the Inland Empire, Wasco county, The Dalles or Hood River. All of our display went to advertise the Webfooted Nation. Those Hood River strawberries that caused visitors to rub their eyes and take a second look before they could believe that berries had grown to such proportions and flavor, didn't do the Hood River producers a particle of good. Now when a man comes along seeking the location in which those berries were raised he is steered past the place, gets buccooed in Portland, lands on Puget Sound some where, becomes disgusted with the entire country, and goes back east never to return again. We herein but partly state a monstrous fact, and it is time for a revision of the sucker programme that has been so everlastingly run upon this division of the state, for the benefit of others.—Wasco Sun.

Cheap Homes, Secure one Now.

For 60 days I will show government lands in Hood River valley, suitable for homesteads, to parties wishing to locate, charging from ten to twenty dollars per claim for my services. I settled on government land six years ago, at the falls of Hood river, and live there now; am well pleased with the location, have spent much time and money building roads and bridges leading to these lands, and to improve the country. These lands have plenty of wood and water, and are among the best for fruit and vegetables, as well as for general agriculture. If you want a home of this description, do not fail to see me at the falls.

A Bear Hunt.

Markham, Soesbe and Nicholas repaired to the base of Mount Defiance last week to interview the bears that had been reported to be chasing people into the lake, and although the beligerent bruin and cuis could not be found, sufficient evidence was at hand to show that the vicinity was claimed and quite well settled by various members of the tribe, and are the evening shades had fallen Markham had run afoul of an apparent relative of the aforesaid bear, for he got up on a log over which Claude was attempting to cross, and showed his teeth in a very threatening manner. Nicholas says he was only forty paces distant when Markham yelled "Bears!" but before he could run that distance the bear's hide wouldn't hold shucks, and the rapid firing that intervened reminded him of the day when the rebels chased him at Sabine Cross Roads. Claude also caught a 300-pound buck "on the wing" and laid him low on the second bound with an explosive bullet. Nicholas says, "If you want to have any of the glory of a hunt, don't take Markham along, for he will kill everything in the woods before you get sight of it."

NIMROD.

Peary's Expedition.

The Labrador mail steamer reports having spoken Peary's steamer Falcon at Davis inlet, northern Labrador August 2d. She had been storm bound two days. Peary had been engaged in visiting the coast settlements for the previous two weeks endeavoring to get dogs, but had not succeeded and then proposed visiting the Moravian settlements to the north and then going to Disco, as he was certain to get dogs there. His plan had been seriously disarranged through the expected delay. The steamer reports also a volcanic eruption at Cape Harrison, Labrador, Wednesday, August 2d. Fishermen engaged on the cape heard great noises and saw the whole cliff alive. They landed and found a portion of the hill had collapsed and immediately flames, stones and cinders were issuing therefrom. The steamer's officers report having seen a rare many miles away. The flames were intense and plainly visible at night. As there are no woods, forests or buildings near by to cause this, it might be of a purely volcanic origin. In the opinion of those at St. Johns acquainted with the locality, the affair is the result of the agitation of the earth's interior fires, as Labrador is not far north of the sphere of volcanic action.

A Bad Time to Laugh.

As a matter of fact a boy never should laugh as his father until he (the boy) is eighteen years of age at least. Earlier than that, according to the Minneapolis Tribune, is not safe. A boy over near the university has for several evenings stood up to eat his meals, and all because he neglected the above rule of conduct. His father takes great pride in a Hambletonian colt he is raising. The old man fairly delights in pattering around the stable and he can hardly wait until that colt is four years old and trots a mile to harness in 2:05, as it surely will. The other morning the pater was fussing around in an old silk hat and equally venerable greatcoat, pitchfork in hand, and while he was working about the colt's heels the boy gave the animal his feed. The colt does not allow any familiarities while feeding, and when the old man in a stooping position, backed up against him the colt lashed out with both feet. The man stood so near that the kick broke no bones, but he was shot as from a catapult right through the clapboards on the side of the barn. His head was driven through his tile, and when he extricated himself from the splinters the rim of his headgear hung around his neck like a ruff. He regarded the whole business as rough, and delivered an oration through his hat which the boy regarded as amusing. First he stood and laughed, and then he laid down and laughed and rolled over and over and hugged himself and still laughed. But when the devoted father got clear from the wreckage he seized the nearest strap, and the boy has not smiled once since. The boy knows now that he is not big enough to laugh at his father.
