 Monday morning O. L. Stranahan went to the boat landing with his buggy for the purpose of meeting Mrs. Jewett, who was to come over from White Salmon to assist in awarding premiums. While waiting a big cotton wood came crashing down behind his buggy, missing it only by a few feet.
 Among the other exhibits at the fair were several pictures, the work of Miss Kate Coe. They attracted much attention, and are evidences of talent of a high order. Miss Coe has had less than a year's instruction, yet her work would attract attention anywhere. Given opportunity for her genius to develop, we predict for her a brilliant future.
 The Harbison boys exhibit at the fair was unique. They had flour, oatmeal, cornmeal, ground barley and other products of their mill, and these were exhibited in a neat cabinet, the timber being sawed and planed, and the cabinet made by them. In the bottom drawer was a collection of potatoes weighing nearly two pounds each, and "found in the bottom of the sack."

S. E. Bartness will sell for cash only and at a reduction of from 5 to 10 per cent.
 We have not pushed any of our subscribers for amounts due this office, but we will have to ask that they adjust their indebtedness at the earliest possible date.

DIED.

In Hood River valley, Saturday, September 30th, at 9:20 a. m., Eliza S., wife of H. A. Pratt, aged 56 years.

The funeral services were conducted at the house by the Masonic fraternity, of which Mr. Pratt is a member, the interment being in Idlewild cemetery Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Pratt was born in New Brunswick and was married to Mr. Pratt in Astoria in December, 1875. Mrs. Pratt came to Hood River about six years ago, Mr. Pratt being at the time in the employment of the Union Pacific in the shops at The Dalles, not joining her here until a year later. No children were born to them, but a large circle of friends will mourn her loss.

A Fair Suggestion.

A local correspondent, after paying a glowing tribute to our fair, which lack of space prevents our printing, gives this hint to our friends at The Dalles:
 "If our neighboring fair managers of The Dalles would follow Hood River's example and dispense with the 10 per cent. entry fee on fruits and vegetables, they would be considerably more certain of their fair being a financial success than is at present probable. After a man from here has paid his way to The Dalles, freight on his exhibit, expressage to the grounds, bought his admission tickets and paid for board and lodging, he does not feel like paying large entry fees in addition. The entry fees are an unnecessary evil, because in the fruit and vegetable classes the state pays the premiums anyway. In my opinion there will be but few exhibitors from here until they are dispensed with. It costs too much."

Resolutions on the Death of Wm. Ellison.

Whereas: God in his inscrutable wisdom, has removed from our midst our dearly beloved brother, William Ellison; Therefore by the officers and members of Idlewild Lodge No. 107 I. O. O. F., be it

RESOLVED: That in his death a loving and tender husband and father, a sincere friend and a generous and honest man and brother, has been taken from among us.

RESOLVED: That this lodge of which he was an honored member tender its sympathies to the bereaved wife and children in their irreparable loss.

RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be spread upon the minutes, and that they be published in the Hood River GLACIER.

Carl Perham Killed.

A sad accident occurred at the Clackamas bridge, on the East Side electric railway line, at Oregon City, Wednesday evening of last week. It resulted in the death of Carl Perham, who, with other bridgemen was repairing the bridge, which two weeks ago sprung out of line. The men had been at work all day upon the upper chords of the bridge, tightening up the rods, and had been passing to and fro on the lateral bases between the chords. They used the electric wires, which are strung upon the bridge, for support as they passed. A little before 5 o'clock Carl went across the bridge after an auger. In taking hold of the wires, he probably seized a live wire at a point where the insulation was broken. The first his fellow-workmen knew of the accident was seeing him stagger and hearing the buzzing sound usual to a connection between live electric wires. In a moment he fell back with his head across another wire. They were powerless to help him, and were obliged to stand by and see the flames burn his hands. A half minute later he fell from the upper chords to the main chords of the bridge, where he was caught by his brother, H. W. Perham, the foreman in charge of the work. His body was apparently lifeless when he fell. He was immediately taken to the bank, where his body was carefully examined. It was found that aside from his hands, which were burned to a crisp back to the palms, there was no other mark. Death had probably been instantaneous with the first contact of the live wires, which were carrying 5000 volts. They are the wires used in supplying East Portland with its commercial lights. These wires were not used until 4:20 when the current was turned on, and this probably accounts for the fact no accident had occurred earlier in the day.
 Perham was a young man of good habits and had no family aside from several brothers and his mother, who live in East Portland. The body was taken in charge by Coroner Holman, who decided that it was not necessary to hold an inquest, for the facts connected with his death were all known.
 Deceased was formerly a resident of this place, being a son of Judge Perham.
