HUNTING PRESERVES.

The Portland Alpine Club can give pointers to the effete aristocracy of Europe in the matter of game preserves. A hunting ground 30 miles wide, by nearly 200 miles long, has been set apart for these proxy mountaineers; a tenth part of the state, to consummate the villiany, and cap the climax of the crime, his royal highness, W. G. Steele, of Portland, should be placed in charge. The people of the state do not yet realize the injury it has received. The foothills of the Cascade range are the best fruit lands in the state, and the proof of it is in the products of this section. When such apples as were shown by D. R. Cooper at our fair, can be raised within ten miles of the snow line of Mt. Hood, it becomes evident that the choicest fruit lands in the state are practically removed from it. There is no sense in it, no reason for it. The stockmen will be shut off from their summer ranges, and intending settlers will be forced into Washington to find homes. On the other hand no possible good can come from it, for the members of the club never visit it except by proxy, if we except Mr. Steele who owns a summer camp on the southern side of Mt. Hood, where he goes to rest his tongue when he tires of licking government stamps, and make the readers of the Oregonian regret his absence with adipose accents of what he does not know about that sadly describable wart on the earth's outside. The state has received incalculable injury and all to satisfy the vanity of the Alpine club, most of the members of which never climbed anything higher than a street car platform, or pursued the wild animals indigenous to the state except that familiar urban variety of pin-feathered birds, except in old style English, "Ye Chyppye."

BROKE WITH A BILLION.

When the Delph bill forfeiting the Northern Pacific grant from Wallula to Portland passed congress, President Oakes of that corporation boasted "that this action confirmed the company's title to lands worth one billion of dollars." The company now has a suit pending on appeal before the U. S. supreme court resisting the payment of taxes on the land because it was not yet patented. It is truly a sad state of affairs when a corporation gets so much property given to it that it can't afford to pay the taxes on it. This should be a warning to congress not to again distress a struggling corporation with such an overdose of generosity. With lands enough given to it to build and equip a dozen such roads as it has built, this poverty-stricken corporation goes into the hands of a receiver to avoid paying its debts, and asks the government to relieve it of the burden of taxation. If the taxes are such a burden that the company cannot pay them, it would be a generous act on the part of congress to restore the lands to the public domain and let poor folks have them who could divide the burden amongst them and contribute towards supporting state and county governments. This county carried a load of untaxed property held out by the same poverty-stricken corporation, but now it is located and paying taxes, the result of which will be shown in greatly reduced rates this year. We know not what quillots of the law the company relies on, but decency, justice and right demand that the Northern Pacific own their granted lands for all purposes, including taxation, or none.

Monday was Chicago day at the world's fair, and citizens celebrated in grand shape. The attendance was 751,026, the largest crowd ever gathered for the purpose of amusements. The jam at the boat landings and depots was terrible, many persons being injured and four killed. The fireworks at night are said to have been the finest ever attempted. The burning of Chicago was reproduced in four scenes—the first being Mrs. O'Leary's cow, and the third showing the city with the fire under full headway, closing with "Chicago in Ruins." The display covered an area of 14,000 square feet.

An attempt is being made to have the time in which payment can be made on forfeited railroad lands extended. Owing to the fact that this has already been done once, it is possible the extension may not be granted. We would suggest in the interest of the present holders that when the Northern Pacific failed to complete its contracts, the time for earning these same lands was extended for it several times. The individual land claimant should receive at least as much consideration as a corporation.

Owing to the big strike in England, most of her coal mines are shut down and a coal famine is on. Ships are being chartered to "carry coals to Newcastle," however foolish the idea may seem. Another result of the coal strike is that the paper mills are out of fuel, and there is liable to be a heavy call on this country for news paper. What the ramifications may yet be is uncertain, but England without coal is much in the condition of an individual without food.

THE CAUSE OF IT.

We had intended to clip from our exchanges whatever they might have said, good, bad or indifferent, concerning our fair. As our exchange list is largely from Eastern Oregon, and as our visitors were from the valley or Washington, the returns are, so far, meager. We made a special request of such members of the association as did not exchange with us to send us a copy of their respective papers, and every individual member promised to do so. Up to date we have received but three, and as we are not yet prepared to believe all newspaper men are liars, we patiently wait for the other promises to be heard from. We fancy the wine supper and Miss Friedlander's dissertation on woman's rights must have laid most of the boys out; but Charley N. Clark and Ira Campbell are of too heavy jowl to fall under such a fire. Will some of the fraternity let us know what has become of them?

IN RECEIVER'S HANDS.

The Union Pacific railroad and all lines operated by it went into the hands of receivers Friday. This was caused by a suit of Oliver Ames and others in the U. S. Circuit Court of the district of Nebraska.

Recently a resident of this community stated to us that he would "take the GLACIER, but that it was too little." Our friend neglected to take note of his surroundings. We suggested to him that a newspaper is a reflex of its surroundings; that if he would plant a tree in stony and stubborn soil, deprive it of water and care, "that he would be foolish to complain that the tree was small. The truth is the GLACIER came here before there was population to support it. It lived here in patient and hopeful waiting for grass, but it struck a succession of seasons that the grass forgot to grow. It has been planted in stubborn soil and left without support. We have kept it going when the income would hardly buy soap to keep the devil clean, and have tried at all times to make it a credit to the place, and we feel that we have succeeded in so doing. The paper is small and so is its income, yet it is large enough to hold all the local news, and in the opinion of many of our people, go it alone. The time will no doubt come when a larger paper will be needed, when a power press will be used, when the price will be reduced, but this will be when the people give it patronage enough to meet the expense, and it will not be before that time.

The proposition to issue $100,000,000 in bonds payable in gold, for the purpose of getting the gold back into this country is the acme of silliness. Because gold is scarce the proposition is to get this amount and return it with interest, in gold, added. In the meanwhile silver will continue to go down, the question will be as far from settlement as ever. The question needs settling at once, and if it is on a silver basis, gold will go to a premium and business can again go ahead on the specific contract plan. In the near future, if we get down to the silver basis, we may try the populist government money, loaned at 2 per cent, to those who have security but still beyond the reach of the imppecunious. Then when these government promises to pay, are redeemed with newer promises to pay, the money question will be settled.

Senator Stewart of Nevada recently remarked that "this country would have been a monarchy to-day if it had not been for the U. S. Senate." He did not give his authority, but in the light of the recent actions of the body which Mr. Stewart adorns, the people are ready to wish that it was a monarchy for a little while, and an unlimited monarchy at that, with neither peers nor parliament. There are cases when even Miltiades wouldn't be a bad man to have in charge of the law-making department.

J. Arrell Johnson of Topeka, Kansas, claims to have discovered a liquid preparation that will change the color of the negro and make him a white man. This may or may not be true, but just at present the white man is having such a tough time that the African is foolish if he makes the change. Better a contented negro than a dissatisfied pale face.

The Americans still maintain first place as builders of fast yachts. In the recent contest between the American yacht Vigilant, and the English yacht Valkyrie, the former proved herself the better boat in every trial. Three races were sailed, the Vigilant winning in all of them.

There is just one thing prevents the average Portland merchant from being classed as a pig—his age.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

On Saturday, October 28, 1893, at The Dalles, Or., I will sell at auction the "Harrison Corum Farm," one of the finest farms in Hood River Valley, on Neil creek six miles distant from the town of Hood River, 280 acres level land, house, barn, spring, orchard, meadow, never failing water supply with perfect water rights, irrigation ditches etc. For full particulars, terms etc., address the undersigned administrator estate Harrison Corum, deceased, at The Dalles Oregon.

J. W. CONDON.

In Memoriam.
BY LUCY ELLISON.
We miss thee from our home, dear father;
We miss thee from thy place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast;
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
We miss thee at the table,
We miss thee in our prayer;
We miss you at the bedside—
We will soon meet you there.
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care;
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

County Fair Notes.
THE DALLES OR., Oct. 12, 1893.
EDITOR GLACIER:
Perhaps a few items from The Dalles fair will be of interest to your readers and may also serve to assist us in making our Hood River fair for '94 a greater success by avoiding the mistakes even if we can not find much worthy of imitation. The fair is 48 hours behind time in getting started, and entries which were advertised to close Tuesday at 10 a. m., are still open on Thursday. This gives the latest exhibitors a decided advantage as they can see how much competition there is, and enter or not accordingly.

Although the premium list is fairly complete, people seem inclined to prefer entering articles for which there are no premiums offered. The woman with her forty-seven varieties of dainties, lambrequins etc., are the bane of the secretary. He fumes and swears in vain and goes ahead. It seems to be the main idea of these present to get the premiums, not to see the exhibit; and the first three days of the week there was scarcely a person on the grounds but officers and exhibitors. Quite a number of Hood Riverites are in attendance; among the number are F. H. Button, C. J. Hayes, M. P. Isenberg, H. A. Pratt, Frank Soesbe, H. C. Bateham and Peter Moir. Several who had been in attendance upon the Hood River Horticultural fair were very emphatic in their praises of our fair and the management.

Although no charges were made the merchants, for space for exhibits, there was not a single business man represented. This noon, entries are still being made and the pavilion is completely filled with exhibits but not with people; however the races in the afternoon drew a good crowd, and pool sellers are hilarious. Pigeon shooting by the gun club attracts and interests another class of people.

Thank You.

Whereas, The Union Pacific railroad, with their proverbial magnanimity, did furnish and send a special train from Portland to Hood River, carrying the press associations of Washington and Oregon to attend the horticultural fair at Hood River; and
Whereas, The presence of the members of said associations did contribute largely to the success of our fair and the future pomological interests of our valley; and
Whereas, W. H. Hurlburt, the general passenger agent of said railroad company did contribute in many ways to the successful carrying out of our programme; now, therefore, we, the committee having the matter in charge, do hereby tender our sincere thanks to the Union Pacific railroad company and W. H. Hurlburt for their valued assistance.

C. P. HEALD,
Committee.
