

Hood River Glacier.

HOOD RIVER, OR. DEC. 16, 1893.

The Wilson tariff bill is meeting with opposition from all sides, and it is doubtful if it can be passed. That this is so is quite natural since, as Hancock asserted, "the tariff is a local question." The wool grower naturally objects to his product being put on the free list, the sugar grower does likewise, and so on through the entire list. If a tariff bill could be framed that would benefit every citizen alike, opposition to the theory would at once cease. This can not be done since many callings from their very nature are incapable of being protected, the publishing of a newspaper for instance. To offset this the special plea is made that, while such occupations cannot be protected directly, they are so protected indirectly by sharing in the alleged prosperity superinduced by the protective system. This may or may not be true; but if so, the indirect benefits are not plain enough to satisfy the unprotected. The cattle raiser can scarcely admit that the sheep feeding on the government ranges should have his hide or wool protected while the patient cow feeding by its side sheds its hide in the slaughter houses to reach the market in competition with that of his species from South America. It is the unavoidable discrimination of the system, that gives to one class of citizens that which it exacts from all, that makes the tariff objectionable. The democracy can no more get around the difficulty than the republicans could, and designate 30 per cent revenue is as objectionable in principle as republican 40 per cent. We believe in the doctrine of free trade, because, like every other person in Hood River, we belong to that class which puts up its coin for the benefit of others and is not benefited itself.

Last Friday a dozen or so of Mr. Peeler's friends and neighbors gathered at his place and had a genuine old-fashioned wood-cutting bee. After a hearty dinner prepared by the better halves they went at it again "fit to split" and got him up enough wood to last all winter. All enjoyed it so much they voted to meet again Tuesday and cut for Grandma Clark and Mrs. Seymour. Pursuant to adjournment, some seventeen men and three or four teams met and cracked their jokes while they cracked the knots. The "women folks" furnished them "pie'n things," but nothing would do but they must fill the big woodshed full and running over, with plenty of pitch to make it go. Remarks were frequently made that of all good neighborly places to live in, Hood River valley was good as the best.

We are in receipt of the first copy of the Tomahawk, a weekly democratic paper published in Portland, which was first permitted to see the light on the 12th inst. The paper asserts that it is going to assist in making Oregon democratic with its little hatchet. This may be, but we think our new contemporary will find a scalping knife, Gatling gun and torpedo boat necessary to the accomplishment of that laudable undertaking. The first issue is gentle as a cooling dove and mild as milk and water. It has neither the swaggering bluster of the tom-tit nor the valorous bombast of an enraged hen, but we fancy it will make the republicans tired—if they take it regularly.

The trial of Lotar, Mulkey and others in the United States court at Portland, charged with smuggling opium, is going on. The prosecution is being conducted by Hon. John M. Gearin, than whom there is no more brilliant lawyer on the coast. Arranged against him are twenty of Portland's ablest attorneys, but slowly and surely he is weaving a web around them, and it does not seem possible they can escape. The testimony shows there was a regular company formed for the purpose of smuggling both opium and Chinese and implicates both Lotar and Mulkey, Blum, one of the conspirators, testifies to paying Mulkey $1200 a month to "stand in."

The situation in Hawaii remains unchanged, and according to the latest reports the queen still remains licentious, etc. While the venerable senator with the licentious name calls for the impeachment of the president, the latter gentleman pursues the even tenor of his Ha-waii and remains unruffled in temper and disposition.

One by one the facts of history are getting knocked in the head. Now it is asserted that Cesar did not say "et tu Brute," but died "silent and fighting like a wolf." It is probable the last words attributed to the deceased were invented for the purpose of "scoping" the other papers by a reporter on the Forum.

We suggest that the Hawaiian question be submitted to Corbett and Mitchell for arbitration, according to Marquis of Queensbury rules. The best man to take the queen and gate money, the other fellow to be nuzzled for life.

Salem is going to contest the locating of the soldiers' home at Roseburg and the branch insane asylum in Eastern Oregon. The next legislature should provide the means for getting a new constitution or relocating the state capital.

RAND, DENT & CO.

The bill extending the time for making final proof on forfeited lands to January, 1897, has passed congress and awaits only the president's signature to become a law.

The state board of equalization is in session at Salem. It is hoped it will not be able to inequalize the assessments as thoroughly as it did last year.

The bill admitting Utah as a state passed the house Wednesday. It is probable that all the territories will be admitted to statehood.

The indictments against County Clerk Powell, Sheriff Kelley and Treasurer Malarkey of Multnomah county, have been dismissed.

A sewer system is absolutely necessary, but it is probable incorporation will have to come first.

A Million Friends.
A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's new discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. If you have never used this great cough medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of throat, chest and lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free. Large bottles 50 cts and $1.00 at Hood River Pharmacy.

Electricity in Oyster Culture.
Electricity is about the last thing to be thought of in connection with oysters, yet a very close association between them has been established by M. Lacasse-Duthier, the well known authority on oyster culture. He makes use of the electric light in examining the stages of development through which the spawn passes. A glass cylinder is mounted in a cylindrical skeleton cage which serves as a support, and into this glass the water containing the spawn is placed. At the bottom is a silvered reflector, and the cover forms a parabolic reflector, in the center of which is fixed a small incandescent lamp. The reflector and sides of the glass cylinder act in such a way that but few rays of light emerge from the apparatus directly, hence the liquid is suffused with a soft illumination which is admirably suited to the examination of the contents. A modification of this little apparatus is now being employed in various researches into the life processes of ferments and the culture of microbes.—New York Telegram.

Robert Shaw, of Snow's Falls, Me., went to sleep in a field the other day, and when he awoke he was minus a good pair of trousers. Field mice, which swarm in Oxford county, had gnawed the garment into shreds and carried it away.

SUMMONS.
In Justice Court of Wasco county, state of Oregon, for delinquent property taxes, Charles J. Noble, plaintiff, vs. Richard Bowen, et al. (defendants).
To Richard Bowen, the above named defendant:
In the name of the state of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled court, on or before December 21, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., and to file with the clerk of said court, on or before December 21, 1893, a true and correct copy of the answer, together with a true and correct copy of the labor and material furnished by you in carrying out and performing the duties and obligations of said defendant, as set forth in the complaint, together with a true and correct copy of the account rendered by you for the same, and for his costs and disbursements herein.
This summons is served upon you by publication in the Hood River Times, a newspaper published weekly at Hood River, Wasco county, Oregon, for six successive weeks, by order of Joseph A. Knox, Justice of the Peace and said present and county, which is hereby made public and entered on the 25th day of October, 1893.
