MAN.

A short dissertation on "Woman," last week, has caused a few of our many thousand "woman" friends to request that we give our opinion of Man. We would gladly respond, but there are two insurmountable objections. First, we have not the intellect to give the rascal his deserts; and, second, the columns of our paper are neither long nor numerous enough to contain the measure of his make up. If, however, some woman who would like to express her opinion publicly on the subject, will pencil her ideas, we will gladly give them space, even if we have to set out the advertisement of every merchant in the town.

A HEFTY ARGUMENT.

The following is clipped from the dispatches of Tuesday, being a part of the debate on the Wilson bill: The amendment changing the rate on sugar of milk from 20 per cent ad valorem to 2 cents per pound occasioned considerable debate, the republicans declaring it was a new industry inaugurated in 1890, and the proposed reduction would ruin it, and protesting against bringing up our children on imported articles. Imagine an able-bodied man, with intelligence enough to get forced into congress, seriously taking such a position. In one breath the industry is said to be only three years old, and in the next it is pitifully pointed out that it would be an outrage on our "infant industries" to bring up our children on imported articles. The "infant industries" of this kind will industriously suck a bottle filled with diluted sugar of milk, and never question the place of its manufacture. Besides, as the "infant industry" of making sugar of milk for our genuine and only "infant" industries is only two years old, we rise to ask what "our children" were brought up on before some fellow demanded protection for the purpose of providing home-made pabulum for "our children," and what kind of "spoon vittels" the congressman in question imbibed as an "infant industry" that he has grown so great? When the theory of protecting the home market is carried to the extreme that some bass-wood ham yankee must have protection against foreign competition to raise the price of the food of helpless infants, it is high time to give the home market a rest. Two cents a pound, or twenty per cent ad valorem on baby food, may encourage the "infant industry" of making adulterated pap, but it seems to us it strikes at the root of American progress and is decidedly discouraging to the poor people who are engaged in the "infant" industry. An ad valorem duty on wet nurses of foreign manufacture should be added to the schedule.

THE MID-WINTER FAIR.

The mid-winter fair is adopting the plan, worked so successfully by the Chicago management, of getting a great deal of advertising for nothing. The big city papers are paid, but the marks of the advertisement are left off, and then the city papers are asked to get in. As a matter of fact, the mid-winter fair is a small fake that will be a large fake as time passes. Its buildings are tawdry, its grounds just now being worked up into a sea of mud, and its management simply spectacular. That there will be a good exhibit of California products, say along in April or May, is conceded, but until then the fellow who spends his coin under the mistaken idea that he is going to see something, will illustrate the old proverb about a fool and his money. Here in Oregon an attempt is being made to raise $25,000 for putting up an Oregon building and having an Oregon exhibit. A stock company has been formed with shares valued at one dollar each, and trusting Webster are asked to subscribe to this stock, if for no other reason, to keep the shares as "a souvenir." In these days of financial depression most of us look upon the good old iron dollar as about as interesting souvenir as we can carry around, and certainly as the most valuable one. As for us, we are not hunting any mid-winter fair souvenirs, and we are not giving a hundred dollars worth of printing to California speculators. The only thing we have ever seen of value from any of the fairs offered as a grand prize for newspaper work is a pass to "Boone's Wild Animal Show," which will be on tap at the mid-winter fair; but that has not much value for us—first, because we can't afford to pay railroad fare to San Francisco, and, second, because we are a democrat and can get in the conventions for nothing.

Hood River valley is destined to be a vast orchard, and every treeplanted is a step towards her destiny. Plant late and early, whenever the opportunity affords—but plant. It takes several years to get returns from fruit trees, so that every year's delay in planting puts off the day of income.

GIVE HIM A CHANCE.

Lionel Stagge, who was appointed bank examiner last summer, is an ex-convict, having served a year in the penitentiary at Salem. He was sent up for uttering a forged check of the value of about $30. He was a stranger in Portland at the time of his offense, and on being liberated, went at once to Portland, and under the assumed name of Lionel Stagge, started a newspaper, and in the course of a year or two married. He was appointed bank examiner last summer, and proved a valuable and efficient officer. He handled vast sums of money and brought order quickly out of confusion for a number of banks. No one suspected he had been in the pen, but when charged with it he did not deny it. He promptly sent his resignation to Washington, but up to date it has not been acted upon. The case is a peculiar one, principally in that it shows a young man who, having suffered the disgrace of being a convict, thoroughly and absolutely reforms—choosing good instead of evil, and having expiated his offense, honestly and earnestly trying to be a man. We can see nothing to condemn in his concealment of his situation after leaving the penitentiary, for, unless he descended to concealment, no possible avenue was open to him for reformation. He had the alternative to choose a life of crime, or, hiding himself under an assumed name, seek to begin anew. The case awakens in every true breast only a feeling of sympathy and of commendation for his act. If it is true that there is more rejoicing over the one that was lost and is found than over the ninety-nine that went not astray, this case should prove peculiarly gratifying. We sincerely hope that Mr. Stagge's resignation will not be accepted. He has been punished for his offense. Let the full measure of commendation for his subsequent career be given him.

There has been considerable discussion of the manner of dividing Hood River precinct. Under the Australian ballot law, whenever a precinct has more than 250 voters, the county court must divide it, and as this precinct showed 318 votes at the last election, the county court has no discretion in the matter. It is proposed to divide the precinct north and south, dividing the town on the line of Third street, thence south to the north line of section 36, thence west to the west line of said section, thence south on section lines to Hood river, and thence up the river to Baldwin precinct. This would enable both precincts to hold their elections in town, and will prove the most convenient arrangement that can be made. Each precinct would have about 150 voters at the coming election, and before another two years the town will probably be incorporated, and the valley will have population enough to cause a general rearranging of precinct lines.

The Hawaiian situation has now settled down to hard pan, and the whole matter is in the hands of congress. Minister Willis made a request to the provisional government to step down, which it very promptly refused to do. Queen Lili at first refused to consent to pardon those who deposed her, but insisted on her divine right to behead them. A subsequent survey of the situation caused her to change her mind and consent to a general amnesty. She has given up all hopes of being replaced on the throne and will endeavor to collect heavy damages from the United States for degrading her government. If Lil, Corbett, Mitchell, Plexoto, Mello, De Gama and the Associated Press manager could be put in one small sack and dropped overboard from the Nicholas, a long suffering people in these United States would have several sizable signs of relief.

Multnomah county, through its local press, vows by its tutelary divinity, the almighty dollar, that it will not pay its taxes as fixed by the state board of equalization. The local press claim that suburban property is assessed too high. This is no doubt true; but unfortunately for Multnomah's contention, so are "suburban" lots all over the state. The humble cottage that gives us shelter is assessed, with two lots, at $1500, and unimproved lots here at from $100 to $250. They are not as valuable as lots in Portland assessed at less than these amounts. We are certain that if Multnomah refuses to pay her taxes, the other counties of the state will do the same, and then a pretty kettle of fish would be on hand to be cooked.

The Oregonian of Wednesday says: "Money is going begging in New York at 3 per cent." What we would like our big contemporary to explain, is: Why "money will go begging in New York at 3 per cent" and here in Oregon it can scarcely be had at all, and when it is found the owner exacts from 15 to 30 per cent a year. Is it owing to the tariff? Did the repeal of the Sherman bill cause it? Is it the threatened danger to the tariff beneficiaries of the East, that makes money cheap and abundant in New York and scarce and dear here? What makes money go begging in New York at 3 per cent a year and the farmer of this country go begging for money at almost that much per month?

It is barely possible that this year will see the completion of the locks at the Cascades and the steamers that now ply the lower Columbia reaching The Dalles. It is not probable, however, simply because the contractors have had exceptionally bad weather and conditions for the work. The Columbia never reached low water mark last year, and in the fall, when generally conditions for work at the locks are the best, the river marked several feet above its customary line. The winter has been open, but so wet that but little progress could be made, although the contractors have pushed the work to the limit circumstances would admit. If not completed in '94, it is safe to say that the spring of '95 will see the long-drawn-out job finished.

Baker City is realizing that the pathway of righteousness is beset with thorns, and that it is decidedly hard to be strictly good. The city dads levied war on the gamblers and their lady friends, for the avowed purpose of running them out of the city. This they have in part accomplished, but in doing so they have accomplished something else they were not counting on. La Grande became a city of refuge for expelled sinners, and the hardy miners who heretofore spent their earnings in Baker City have suddenly found that La Grande has a finer climate and is generally much more attractive than Baker City. Their money is now being spent in La Grande, and Baker City is wrestling with the problem of how to retain the miner and her self respect at the same time.

NEWS NOTES.

The Iowa legislature has elected Geer to the United States senate.

The Chinese are registering, but slowly. It is thought the Chinese consul at San Francisco will issue a proclamation calling on them to obey the law, and that this will cause them all to get a move on.

Sibley, democrat, of Pennsylvania, has prepared a bill to pay pensions in a new issue of 2 per cent bonds. He proposes to offer it in the house in case a bill is presented for a general issue of bonds. The bill is designed to give pensioners the benefit usually accruing from bonds and to give the government a ready means of meeting pension obligations. The plan is to make them of denominations of $20 to $100, and to make them a legal tender, which would allow them to circulate as money. His plan contemplates the issue of such bonds until the amount reaches $50 per capita for the population of the country.

While playing on the ice on Carson river, near Empire, January 18th, three children broke through. In endeavors to rescue them three others fell in. Johnny Crow, 14 years old, took five out in turn. When he went after the sixth he found he had disappeared under the ice. He immediately plunged in, and getting hold of the child, swam forty feet under the ice to a hole caused by rapids, and landed his precious burden on the bank with the assistance of onlookers attracted by the screams of the children. The brave boy was more dead than alive when taken from the water, and was resuscitated with difficulty.

A bill was introduced in the Colorado legislature, Wednesday, authorizing the governor to present a bar of bullion at the United States mint for coinage, and appropriating money to carry the case through the courts if the government refuses to coin the silver. The senate was not in session. Members who have stood out for immediate adjournment held a caucus this evening. It is understood, with one exception, they will hold together and prevent any legislation whatever. If they do so, no appropriation bill can be passed to defray the expenses of the extra session, and the members of the house will be unable to cash salary warrants.

A Gentleman

Who formerly resided in Connecticut, but who now resides in Honolulu, writes: "For 20 years past, my wife and I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and we attribute to it the dark hair which she and I now have, while hundreds of our acquaintances, ten or a dozen years younger than we, are either gray-headed, white, or bald. When asked how our hair has retained its color and fullness, we reply, 'By the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor—nothing else.'" "In 1868, my affianced was nearly bald, and the hair kept falling out every day. I induced her to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and very soon, it not only checked any further loss of hair, but produced an entirely new growth, which has remained luxuriant and glossy to this day. I can recommend this preparation to all in need of a genuine hair-restorer. It is all that it is claimed to be."—Antonio Alarum, Bastrop, Tex.
