WHERE THE DRUMMERS ARE AT REST.

A Comfortable Retreat For Superannuated

Commercial Travelers. The knights of the gripsack are bestirring themselves to build and endow refuges for the superannuated and disabled members of their fraternity and for the widows and orphans of those that are dead. One such institution is already assured. It is to be built at Binghamton, N. Y., and Chauncey Depew is to lay the cornerstone in April. The home will cost $150,000 and accommodate 250 in-mates. It will have a training school for children attached and will be supported by an annual tax of $1 each levied on the mem-bers of the society which is erecting the fulldings.

This is known as the Commercial Travel-Petitions for the establishment of a National Board of Health are pouring in ers' Home association and was organized in Elmira in 1891. Branches have since been formed in Rochester, Albany, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and many other places. A number of towns offered generous in-ducements to have the home located within their borders, but Binghamton's offer was considered the best and was accepted by the association at its last general meeting in Syracuse. The city gives an eligible she PROJECTED COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' HON of 100 acres of land and $15,000 in eash The drummers have secured additional contributions amounting to $25,000 and have no doubt of their ability to raise the entire amount required. When the home at Binghamton is completed, others will be built in the south and west.

There are over 480,000 traveling salesmen in the United States, and last year they sold upward of 600,000,000 tons of goods and spent $172,000,000 in railroad fares. The life they lead is beset with danger and filled with excitement. Every year many of them are crippled in railroad accidents or become prematurely incapacitated for work in consequence of the irregular mode of living which their calling makes necessary. Ap-peals in behalf of unfortunate members of the fraternity are made at nearly every gathering of their different associations, and many business houses feel compelled to practically support men who have bro-ken down while pushing their trade on the road.

The establishment of the Binghamton home will lessen the necessity for much of this relief by providing a refuge for broken down members and their families. There are three such institutions in England, but none has hitherto been established in the United States. J. H. Aldrich of Detroit is president of the association which has pro-jected the first American home, and W. H. Booth of Binghamton is secretary.

A Second Season Miss.

It was at one of the large receptions of the season that after a spin about the ballroom a young matron and her partner started for the conservatory to discuss the ethics of dancing in leisurely fashion. As they entered the place and stood for a moment to note the beauties of an unusually fine palm there came from behind the thickly clustered foliage a most familiar sound, as though "an artillery of bliss were let off in one tremendous kiss." A moment of silence, and then with a little laugh came the remark in a fresh, young, girlish voice, You kiss just like Jack W-Washington Post.

THE MIDWINTER EXPOSITION. CALIFORNIA MIDWINTER INTERNA-TIONAL EXPOSITION - DEPARTMENT OF PUBLICITY AND PROMOTION. [Weekly Circular Letter-No. 16.]

An incident occurred in connection with the Midwinter International Exposition a few days ago which furnished an interesting commentary on its international character, and which established in an unmistakable manner the fact that this great fair follows, in many respects, the lines laid down by its illustrious predecessor on the shores of Lake Michigan, and that at the same time, it posesses an individuality which will give it a prominent place in the future history of the expositions of the world.

One of the most prominent concessional features of the exposition has been the Wild Animal Arena' where Colonel E. Daniel Boone has been giving performances with lions and other animals, which is said by those who have seen both to surpass the famous show given by Hagenbeck on the Midway in Chicago. Boone had an assistant in this work in the person of Carlo Thieman, a brave, bold tamer of lions, who was only less familiar and less foolhardy, if one may use that word, than Boone himself, in his associations with these big beasts. But, one night last week, Thieman entered the den of the lions to prepare them for their usual appearance in the Arena, when suddenly the lights went out. Parnell, the biggest of the lions, fearful perhaps of some danger which he could not see, made a savage attack on the keeper. The other lions fell to with him and poor Thieman was at their mercy in a moment. Boone, the master of the beasts, forced his way into the cage with a crowbar and beat the Near to these were the Indians from the banks of the Yaqui river, and a delegation from the Esquimau village. Half a dozen of the Turkish dancers had come across the South Drive to mingle with the crowd at the funeral. A company of South Sea Islanders were there, and a quartette of native Hawaiian singers furnished the music for the occasion, singing in their native tongue words set to old, familiar hymns. A big Cossack stood ered with floral offerings. Hundreds connected with the exposition walked in the long line that reached from one end of the grand court to the other and that wound its way between the beautiful industrial palaces, out to the plrce where dust was to be returned to dust.

Yet this was but an incident. The next day the lions roared in the Arena again, and happy crowds of men, women and children rapturously applauded. It was only a drop in the great sea of events on which the California Midwinter International Exposition is sailing, and it has been given prominence simply as one of the characteristic features of the fair.

The Supreme Court of Oregon has af firmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of the State vs. Hansen, appellant, from Clatsop county. The appellant, from Clatsop county. The ap-peal was on the ground of error being made in admitting certain evidence and giving and refusal of certain instructions by the court. On Wednesday, July 26 last, he murdered his wife, Caroline Hansen, while she was engaged in pick-ing raspberries at their home in Clatsop county. The deed was committed with county. The deed was committed with a stick about a yard in length, with a knot on the end. The blow was upon the head. It occurred about 4 p. m. Hansen made a confession on the followm. ing Saturday to Sheriff H. A. Smith and F. I. Dunbar. His wife died almost instantly, and after remaining by her side for about an hour Hansen went to a neighbor's place and told him what he had done. During the evening he burned the stick in a stove in his home. He was indicted and convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree. A motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge T. A. McBride, and Hansen was sentenced to be hanged. The defendant's counsel contended that in the confession made in the presence of the Sheriff every-Gning shows that Hansen was insane, and that the subsequent confession was made after recovering from the effects of liquor. It is not in the province of court to question the policy of law or say that the rule established in cases is inhuman, or if the accused can offer sufficient evidence to raise in the minds of jurors a reasonable doubt of his sanity, then the State must establish this fact, like all others, beyond reasonable doubt. Swarthy Mexicans from the '49 Mining Camp sat, sombrero in hand, and heads bowed down, and dark-eyed senoritas shed tears of sympathy as they sat among the mourners. It was an interesting company of people and such an one as had probably never before assembled on a similar occasion.

A band of 50 pieces occupied a position out of sight of the audience and its music came to the ears of those present in a somewhat muffied tone. But there were other muffied tones that fell upon the ears of this funeral gathering during the exercises, which were neither so sweet nor so pleasing, but which brought a terrible reminder of what had caused this polyglot assemblage. The cages of the animals are located under the raised seats of the amphitheatre, and the beasts became restless as the hour for their usual performance passed by and they were not summoned to play their part. The big lion whose paw had dealt the fatal blow to poor Thieman, growled and roared at intervals all during the clergyman's address, and when the music of the band suggested to these knowing creatures that there was a crowd in the Arena, they seemed to unite in a chorus of protest and disap proval. Strong men shuddered at the suggestion conveyed by these loud mouthings. Women shed tears and some of them were so overcome with fear and emotion that they passed hurriedly out of the auditorium. It was a scene that will never be forgotten by those present.

Then came a procession through the grounds. A cordon of guards occupied the right of line. Back of them marched the band, playing a funeral march. Keeping step to this slow rythm walked the Indians, the Turks, the South Sea Islanders, and all the representatives of the different concessions, who had udgment is affirmed.
