THE STORY OF A DOG.

A Bright Little Canine Was Befriended by an Athletic Young Woman.

The other day a well dressed man and woman were walking in one of the up town streets. Attention was attracted to them by the antics of a blue Skye which capered from one side to the other, leaping at their heels in the most extravagant spirit. Not long after some boys were teasing a dog in an area. A young woman, whose heart goes out to all the things that have four legs and cannot talk, put on her hat and jacket and went to the rescue. It was the same dog, now lying in an evident stupor. The young woman picked up the dog and carried it to the apple woman at the corner, whom she bribed to take care of it.

The dog revived and won the apple woman's heart. She took him to the stand every day, where he kept steady and warned off the boys. His funny capers and cheerful spirits made him known to everybody in the neighborhood. He became the special friend of the athletic young men whose training ground is back of the old woman's apple stand, where they let him in for a run.

On Sunday evening he darted across the street with a bark of joy to an approaching couple. He leaped at their sides, he tugged at their clothes with every expression of a dog's delight. "Why, it's Bruno!" they exclaimed, and at the sound of his name the dog leaped higher than before. "You see," said the woman, "he was your dog. We were fond of him, but he would chew up lady's." "When he chewed up a young lady's $7 bonnet and we had to pay for it," added the man, "we felt we must get rid of him," resumed the woman, "so we fed him on biscuit soaked in whisky until he was drunk; then we took him out to walk so we could lose him."

"No, we don't want him any more," said the man. "Yes, he is very fond of us; goodby, Bruno," and this couple of amiable heathens passed on. Bruno the dog, the athlete and the neighborhood mourn. —New York Evening Sun.

A Big Tree Story.

An Elmer (Or.) paper publishes this remarkable story: "A citizen of this place has just finished working up a fir tree which grew on his place. He received $12 for the bark; built a frame house 14 by 20, 18 feet high, with shed kitchen 8 feet high, 8 feet wide and 20 feet long; built a woodshed 14 by 20 feet, made 320 rails, made 334 railroad ties and got 12 cords of wood 8 feet long and 4 feet high, all from that one tree, and still has a part of the tree left."

The First Preaching in Maine.

The earliest church permanently established in Maine is said to have been Episcopal. Services were held at Saco in 1637. At what is now Popham services were held frequently in 1607, the first instances of the performance of the rites of the Episcopal church in any part of the United States north of Virginia, and the first Protestant worship and preaching by an ordained minister in any portion of this vast territory. —Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

Electricity and Tumors.

As to the alleged therapeutic value of electricity, physicians are well aware that that agent exercises an important influence upon tumors, both benign and malignant—including cancers—whereby, when accompanied with other assistant treatment, such ailments are removed from the system without the use of the knife or caustics. —New York Tribune.

Some Maine Mothers.

"Talk about the decadence of American families!" exclaims our Ashland correspondent. "There are now living within a radius of 10 miles of Ashland 8 American women who are the mothers of 102 children, 80 of whom are living in the enjoyment of good health and sound minds." —Lewiston Journal.

If one watches the water falling over the rock at Niagara, he may see it of an emerald green near the upper part of the fall. Much the same effect is produced when billows are just curving into breakers on the beach directly in front of us.

It is said that a really indelible ink and a kind of vinegar can be produced from the juices contained in the banana peel. The fiber of the peel, it is said, can also be utilized in making cloth of great strength and remarkable beauty.

Nearly every man is managed by some woman, consciously or unconsciously on the part of the man. The men who are unconscious of such management and would resent the intimation are the most managed of all.

In the manufactures of Great Britain alone the power which steam exerts is labor of 4,000,000,000 men, or several times more than the number of males supposed to inhabit the globe.

Good Employment For Saturdays.

"Tommy! Tommy! Dostop that shouting, my boy!" "But, mamma, what's the use of hollerin' you can't holler!" —Harper's Bazar.

A SENSATION IN CHURCH.

An Inquietude Far Created Conteration In a Puritan Congregation.

"Some curious stories are told in connection with old Puritan church customs," said Mr. Hezekiah Butterworth. "Some of the old customs seem very funny as we see them now. 'It was little less than a crime not to attend church in those old days unless detained by sickness. In fact, a person was thought very little of who even came late to Sunday worship."

One Sunday morning in early autumn a Puritan woman, whose reputation for housekeeping, spinning and church attendance was excellent, was belated in her morning work. She took her long necked pitcher and went to the pasture where her cow was waiting to be milked. This duty done, she found—for she could see people on the road—that she hadn't time even to carry the milk back to the house and get to church in season. So she took her long necked pitcher along with her and sat in the gallery right near where the singers and bass viols were displayed. After the singing was over and the long sermon had begun—sermons were an hour or two long in those days—she grew sleepy.

Her long necked pitcher sat on the floor near by and near the front of the gallery. She was soon oblivious of either milk, sermon or a dog that came pitterpating up the gallery stairs. The milk soon attracted the dog. He smelled and wagged his tail, then smelled and wagged again, then looked inquiringly at the unconscious milkmaid. He made up his mind very soon, and into the long neck went the dog's head, neck too. He couldn't get much milk and wanted to pull back and try again.

"But he couldn't. His head was wedged fast in. He pulled and used his paws and tried to back away. Binded of course by the pitcher, his steps were erratic, and suddenly to the astonished people below there appeared a sudden puffing of the balcony curtain, an almost blood curdling yell was heard, and there was a dash and downpouring, straight in among the four unconscious deacons in the deacons' pew beneath, of snow white milk, long necked pitcher and a milk soaked, frightened dog.

"For once there was a great awakening in that church, but the poor woman was frightened nearly out of her wits, and the superstitious deacons were greatly scandalized." —Boston Journal.

A Coal Mine in China.

The coal mines at Wang-san-shih are very interesting. There are here three seams of 24 feet, 3 feet and 14 feet, which are at an angle of 50 degrees, nearly due south. A perpendicular shaft has been sunk 105 feet with no fault. The first 25 feet were through alluvium, thence through quartzite and a few bands of shale in quartzite. The shaft is being deepened at the rate of four inches per hour. Wang-san-shih is only three miles from the line of railway and six miles from the iron mines. In summer a creek comes within half a mile of the works, and it was up this that the heavy machinery was brought to the mines by the following ingenious process:

A raft drawing only an inch to the ton was constructed, and the machinery being shipped, was dragged up the creek till it grounded. Then a dam was built behind which caused it to float, and this was successively and successfully done until the machinery was got to within a half a mile of the mines. Hand porters took it the rest of the way.—Invention.

A Narrow Escape For Butler.

It is not generally known that Oliver Stevens, the present district attorney, once saved General Butler's life. It was at the Charleston convention, more than 30 years ago. General Butler's course in the convention had been conspicuously bold and courageous, and his antagonism to certain elements had been noticeably unflinching. Jack Cavanaugh, a well known figure at conventions and caucuses in those days, after many bloody threats, finally one evening loaded up his revolver and himself and made for General Butler's quarters. He would have found the general unprepared and unable to defend himself, and he undoubtedly would have shot him, but Oliver Stevens intervened and sprang him away and at the same time sent word to General Butler. —Boston Globe.

Life's Cares and Pleasures.

The bride had just left the altar, and the dear old grandma was kissing the fresh cheek of her blushing young descendant. "And now, my dear," whispered she of the white hair and timeworn face, "remember that life's cares must be life's pleasures." —New York Times.

Keeping Up With the Times.

"Oh, mamma!" said a little girl, "I singed in Sunday school today." "Did you?" said her mamma. "Could you keep up with the others?" "I dess-I could! I kept ahead of them all the way through!" "That is about the way many of us keep time as we go through life—a little ahead of our fellows or lagging behind." —Boston Herald.

"It must have been dreadfully hard to wear those old suits of armor." "Yes, they have the appearance of being hardware." —1 axas Siftings.

INFLUENZA,

Or La Grippe, though occasionally epidemic, is always more or less prevalent. The best remedy for this complaint is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Last Spring, I was taken down with La Grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breast seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and in a few days I began taking it, and relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid and the cure so complete. It is truly a wonderful medicine." —W. H. WILLIAMS, Crook City, S. D.
