HOOD RIVER, OR. JUNE 16, 1894.

SHUT OUT THE SLAVS.

Where is the end going to be and through what channels will it be reached? This is a question every American citizen, whether native born or naturalized, may well ask himself as he reads the dispatches concerning the labor riots in the East. The fight is not now between labor and capital; it has come to that stage where it is a fight between American labor and American principles, and foreign labor and anarchy. The fact that the mine owners are reaping what they have sown is of little satisfaction, though it is strictly true. Under the cry of "protecting American labor, a protective tariff was placed upon iron and coal, among other things, and then the coal and iron mine owners imported foreign cheap labor to operate their mines. The temporary gain became to them a permanent loss, for competition brought prices down until now American labor, or intelligent labor, can hardly be found to work the mines. The mine owners have supplanted American labor with foreign labor of the very lowest class, and now they must put up with it. The mining regions have become practically foreign countries, where even the English language is not understood. They have become so foreign that the laws are violated and the authorities defied. So foreign that no later than Monday, the dispatches tell us, a mob of Slavs captured four American laborers, hung placards on their backs, marched them from one of their camps to the other to be reviled and spit upon by woman and children who did not understand or speak the language of this country, and when through with this the men—American citizens—were spirited away and perhaps murdered to avenge the killing of a few of their number by officers of the law. Where will it end? We do not know. But if the blood in American veins has not turned to water, it will end in the annihilation of the lawless mobs. It will end by American forgetting for a while that they are republicans or democrats, and electing a congress and a president pledged to stop this class of immigrants from passing the gates of Castle Garden. The idea that this country is an asylum for the downtrodden is growing obsolete. It is getting to be an asylum for the insane, and the insane are trying to run it. What we as American citizens want is to better citizens and poorer politicians, better patriots and poorer party men. We want to quit voting a tariff tax on articles in which foreign labor is used in their manufacture, and that whether they are manufactured in Europe or the United States. The last election has settled the tariff question. Protection has won. Let us then carry it to its legitimate and proper conclusions. Let us protect American labor by shutting out foreign labor here as well as elsewhere. We care not what party has the courage and the patriotism to take up this issue. If it is the republicans, as it should be, then it is our party, but whoever or whatever it is, we stand solid with it. Certain classes of foreigners make the best of citizens, but the Slavs, and some others, are far more injurious to the country than the Chinese. We believe America is for Americans. If not, whom is it for?

HOOD RIVER ALL RIGHT.

The proper way to measure one's condition is to use that of your neighbors as a yardstick. By this rule Hood River is prosperous. All that we have lost is a portion of our berry crop, and perhaps a portion of the price. The Dalles has been pretty well drowned out, suffering not only severe losses, but a world of annoyance. Grant is destroyed, swept out of existence, drowned. Columbus is not much better, while every town along the river from its head to its mouth has had a taste of Columbia river water. Portland has been a sea and has suffered severely. With us the situation is already growing decidedly brighter. Our berries can at least find a market, and all our other small fruits will sell. This fall, owing to severe frosts all over the country, our apple crop should command the best of prices. Eastern Oregon will have a phenomenal crop of wheat, and so will make a fine market for wood. Besides all this we are going to have a republican congress and senate, and good times, for the Wilson bill is suffering from a severe attack of senatorial wind on its little stomach. Hood River is all right, and three months from now none of us will know that we ever experienced any difficulty in shipping our berries or anything else.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it.

The Railroad Condition.

The prospect of rail communication with the balance of humanity seems dismal enough. After having for years enjoyed the convenience of two mail and passenger trains a day, to be cut down to no trains at all and only one steamboat, it seems a hardship indeed. The Union Pacific commenced work at the Cascades, on the 11th, with about 200 men, and the proposition is to rush the portage road through as fast as men and money can build it. The road from Portland to Bonneville is not seriously damaged, but from that place to Coyote Station, twenty miles from Umatilla, the situation is serious enough. Thousands of feet of bridges have been carried away on the flood and thousands more have been wrecked though still remaining. When it is remembered that between Portland and The Dalles there are nearly twelve miles of bridges, and that, with few exceptions, all have been lifted from their foundations and rendered useless until repaired, and from the fact that most of the bridges are built on piling, and in many places only a little above low water mark, and also that miles upon miles of embankment have been washed partially or entirely away, the seriousness of the situation is apparent. And to us the situation is serious; it is more than serious; it is a calamity. Having passed through a year of unparalleled business depression, looking forward to our berry crop to pay our indebtedness at the stores and to buy food for families for the ensuing year, now to have the very ground washed from under our feet, as it were; our only available market completely flat, with no possible chance of reaching an eastern market, the berry grower can only fold his hands and gloomily see his acres of luscious fruit rot on the vines, while Omaha, Denver, Montana, and other markets are clamorous for every berry we have at richly remunerative prices.

The following letter from Governor Penoyer and resolutions by Canby post were crowded out of last week's issue. It will be remembered that Canby post requested the governor not to talk politics at Hood River on Decoration day, to which, May 28th, he made the following characteristic reply:

"The resolution of your post was duly received and considered. Although the Savior of mankind, while on earth, allowed on the holy Sabbath the pulling of an ox or an ass out of a pit, yet your post objects to any effort on Decoration day such as the pulling out of the pit of financial disaster the starving men, women and children of our unfortunate country. I, however, cancel my appointment at Hood River pursuant to your request.

SYLVESTER PENYOYER."

WHEREAS, Canby post, No. 16, G. A. R., department of Oregon, received a communication from his honor Sylvester Penoyer, governor of Oregon, canceling the date of his campaign speech here on Decoration day, May 30th, therefore be it

Resolved, That we as a post tender him our thanks for his consideration of our regard for the day that we cherish with unfailing memory.

And be it further resolved, That we tender to Co. D, Third regiment National Guard, our sincere regards and thanks for their presence and assistance in helping us to decorate the graves of our deceased comrades; and we assure them that they, as well as we, have reason to feel proud of their soldierly bearing and military advancement. By order of the post.

C. J. HAYES, Adjt.
Hood River, June 6, 1894.

Killed a Bear.

J. O. Eastman killed a large cinnamon bear at his place Friday evening last. The bear was first seen by Mr. Eastman's little boy Roy, near the barn. Brain was casting longing glances toward a calf staked near the barn and paid little attention to Mr. Eastman when he came with a gun, but leisurely retreated some distance towards the brush until he found an ant hill and proceeded to gather the ants. Mr. Eastman waited for him to turn his head again in the direction of the calf and then gave him a shot through the heart.

The Salmon Run.

Salmon commenced running at the Locks Tuesday, and Wednesday they had increased in numbers until they could be seen in countless myriads, climbing, struggling, darting by rocks and leaping over obstructions. One wheel caught two tons Tuesday night, and all the others did as well or better. Parties with dip nets bring up from one to three at every haul, and everybody who can find a net is at work. Those posted say that this is the delayed May run, the fish being nearly all bluebacks. They usually take a week in making the trip to The Dalles, and next week the harvest will commence there. It is indeed unfortunate that so many wheels have gone out, but no doubt our energetic townsmen, the Winans Bros., will find means to get some of them. We hope so, at least; and that they may also be able to get their wheels back in time to make up for their severe losses. Energy and pluck should meet with success; if it does our boys will make a killing on the salmon yet.

Question.

Did Adjutant Hayes have in mind the wild charge on Pilkington's strawberry patch of Company D, at the close of the services at the graves on Decoration day, when he wrote of their "soldierly bearing?"

Not Discouraged.

The Winans brothers have met with heavy losses by the unusual high waters of the Columbia, which have swept away all their fish wheels. Their wheels stood higher water than any previous record, but were not built to stand the waters of '94. However, the boys are not at all discouraged and will rebuild all their wheels, and more, so solid that they will stand even the next flood as high as '94, although such a flood may not be seen again during their lifetime. They are now at work constructing temporary wheels in order to catch as many fish out of the big run as possible, and will also use nets and all possible devices. The never-ceasing energy of these men has brought them through many other tight squeezes of this kind, and they will come through this in good shape. They are getting out 500,000 feet of dimension timber at Winans, at the forks of Hood River, and will build their wheels all anew as soon as the water recedes sufficiently. With them there is no such word as fail.

For The Cascade Locks.

If pleasant the steamer Irma will make the round trip to the Cascade Locks tomorrow (Sunday) leaving at 7:30 a. m. sharp. Take your girl and see the mighty river as it was never seen before, and never will be again. Fare for round trip 75 cents.

M. Hammerly, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg, from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."

MIDNIGHT.

Will serve during the season of 1894 at OLLINGER & BONE'S Stables, Hood River Oregon.

DESCRIPTION.

MIDNIGHT is a coal-black Hambletonian, 6 years old, 18 hands high, weight 1460 pounds. Sired by Shaw's Hambletonian; Dam a Copperbottom mare. Midnight is a good dispositioned horse, a Tobby driven and quite a trotter for a horse of his size. Midnight's service fees will be $5 for a single service, to be paid at time of service, or $10 for the season due August 1st following service, or $15 to insure with foal payable April 1, 1895. Insurance cannot be given after first service or other terms. Mares failing to catch on single service may be bred by the season by paying the additional fee. Great care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should they occur. For further information apply to Eph Olinger at the barn of F. C. Brosius, owner.

CARE OF YOUNG COLTS.

This is the time of the year when much loss occurs to the farmers in the loss of young foals. A Canadian horse breeder of much experience says: Carefully watch your colt for the first ten days, and see that its bowels act properly, as the first ten days are the most critical in a foal's existence. If you can get them over the first ten days they usually require very little attention if the mare is fed judiciously. The mare should be fed some two or three weeks before she is due to foal and some time after soft food, such as boiled oats, bran and linseed that has been boiled for twelve hours, or longer, so as to loosen the system and provide generous flow of milk. If from some cause the mare should not have sufficient milk the best substitute is cow's milk, one-fourth water and a tablespoonful of honey to a pint of milk. Costiveness, diarrhoea, and inflammation are the principal ailments a young foal is subject to. The two first careful treatment will overcome; the last is, in most fatal. The following are well tried and the best remedies that have come under my notice: Costiveness—Rectal injections of luke-warm water every half hour, or syrup of rhubarb with a few drops linseed oil; dose, tablespoonful. Nothing acts more powerfully than injections, and the advantage is they do no harm. Diarrhoea should not be stopped suddenly table-spoonful brandy with teaspoonful of tincture of gentian and two tablespoonfuls lime water in a cupful linseed tea every three hours. Inflammation—Apply blanket, thickly folded and wrung out in very hot water, to belly; rub the legs well; give teaspoonful laudanum in two ounces of water. Repeat dose in two hours if necessary.

Hood River Pharmacy's

Directions for Mixing the Acme Compound.

Weigh out ten pounds of the Compound and put it in a barrel or large kettle; then pour on five gallons of boiling water gradually, until the mixture is of the consistency of soft soap—stirring it all the time. After it is thoroughly dissolved add the balance of the water (forty-five gallons), hot or cold—hot preferred. Do not boil the mixture. It is then ready to apply. Be sure and have your kettles or barrel clean (also your spraying tank) and free from other mixtures, in order to avoid clogging your spraying nozzles. Do not spray when the blossoms drop, then again four weeks after, which will destroy all other insects that may appear. Apply by means of a spray pump or a florist's syringe.

Testimonials.

Corallito, Cal., March 26, 1894.—Watson, Erwin & Co.: I used one hundred pounds of your Acme No. 1, and it had the desired effect; it not only gets away with the insect but it cleans up the tree and leaves it in a healthy condition. I will guarantee it will do just what it is recommended to do. Yours truly, J. E. MORTIMER.

Niles, March 14, 1894.—I have had six years' experience spraying, and used various washes to quite an extent. For the last two seasons I have used Acme Insecticide, and find it the best wash, and that it gives the best results of any I ever used. It is a very pleasant wash to use, and easily prepared.
