HARBISON BROS.

Miss Charlotte Roberts, who graduated the 30th of May at the Pendleton academy, with high honors, is expected home in a few days.

Mr. Ed Martin, late candidate for county clerk, has been confined to his bed for a week with an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

Mrs. C. G. Roberts was in town several days this week from her home at Mt. Hood. She made a trip to The Dalles, returning home Thursday.

The Hood River box factory has the agency for the combination fence made of wire and pickets. The best and cheapest fence made. Call and see it.

Two crates of berries were sent up the river Wednesday to fill an order from Prineville. If they go through all right that place will take a dozen or twenty crates a day.

The railroad between The Dalles and Celilo is not very badly damaged, and if the U. P. gets at it it can be put in running order in a week. This would open the market to the east for us.

I have arranged for handling strawberries and other fruits the coming season, and having had ten years experience in the commission business, feel confident of getting the best returns for my customers.
C. R. BONE

The Union Pacific has 300 men at work just below the Locks, trying to get a grade built around the sliding mountain. Up to date they are not accomplishing much, as the mountain caves off faster than the grade can be made.

The long flume which is to run from N. J. McCoy's place will bring water as far down the valley as A. B. Jones'. The greater part of it is already done, and as the rest is a straight shoot with good fall, it will be completed before dry weather.

Novelty Tea, next Tuesday evening, June 19th, in the M. E. Church. Given by the Epworth League. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Dr. Edgington and family of Wasco, are guests of O. B. Hartley, arriving Thursday morning. Dr. Edgington is Mr. Hartley's brother-in-law.

W. O. Sturgeon and wife left by Regulator Tuesday evening for Kansas, making the transfer on the upper river. Mr. Sturgeon is Capt. Ferguson's uncle.

To make the hair grow a natural color, prevent baldness, and keep the scalp healthy, Hall's Hair Renewer was invented and has proved itself successful.

G. D. Boardman while working on his house last Monday, fell from the ladder a distance of twelve feet, dislocating his shoulder. Dr. Brosius repaired the injury.

The Hood River Box Co. has put in its machinery and is prepared to roll barley or wheat. The Co. also keeps on hand all kinds of rough and dressed lumber. Agents for combination fence.

The Fruit Growers Union shipped a large number of crates of berries by the Regulator Thursday. They will be transferred at Celilo and received by the express agent at that point and shipped east.

D. F. Pierce has purchased the west half of L. Neff's block and will commence at once the erection of a dwelling house and a building for a harness shop. Mr. Pierce came to White Salmon with the Jewett colony, but has concluded that he likes Hood River better.

Rev. J. L. Hershner of Independence, Oregon, will preach at the Congregational church next Sabbath. Mr. Hershner is well and favorably known by quite a number of Hood Riverites who have heard him either at Portland or at state associational meetings.

James Feak will preach at Belmont chapel to-morrow at 11 o'clock. Rev. McKenzie will preach at the Barracks tomorrow at 11 o'clock, and Rev. T. G. Hodgson will preach in the evening at the usual hour. From now until the annual conference at The Dalles, the 22d of August, there will be services both morning and evening.

The Dalles, after a long spell of wet, has gotten into a state of semi-dryness. The water has left the streets, but it is left from an inch to four of slickens, fine mud, which will, when it is worked up by travel, make a particularly fine lot of dust. Of course there has been considerable damage done to paper and paint, but that will soon be mended, and the loss will not be figured. Several of the old shacks along First street have gone out, but in spite of the story of Rosenblatt, about the Umatilla house going by Vancouver, and of some other Blatt about it being aloft, it is still doing business at the old stand, perfectly dry in spite of the fact that it has a very large and very nice fish in it.

The railroad situation is decidedly bad. Between here and The Dalles six miles of trestle have gone out and much other damage done. Towards Portland the damage is slight, with the exception of the distance between the Locks and Bonneville, but that is bad enough in all conscience. The whole mountain is sliding, and when or where it will stop no man can tell. As soon as the water goes down work will be commenced, and the road will soon be put in condition for travel, with the exception of the Cascade Locks slide, and what will be done with that the Lord only knows, and He won't tell.

Hawthorne and Rowe, who robbed the store of Mays & Crowe, at The Dalles, about three weeks ago, and fled, have been depredated on the stock of the Indians of Warm Springs reservation. The Indians becoming tired of their work, went in search of the outlaws, tracked them to a thicket and were fired upon from ambush. There were but three Indians present at the time, and in the fight that followed Karpolis, the leader, was severely wounded and has since died. Though badly wounded, Karpolis shot Hawthorne, and he will die. Rowe escaped, but is followed by posses from the reservation and will probably be taken. The outlaws had a tent stretched and had a stove.

Later.—Rowe came into The Dalles Friday morning and surrendered himself to the sheriff.

EXCURSION.

There will be an excursion to the Cascade Locks Wednesday, June 20th, on the steamer Regulator. Round trip, 50 cents; children half fare. Call on M. Y. Harrison and get your tickets.

NOTICE.

AFRAID TO RISK IT.

Something That Made a Bride Hesitate to Make a Courtroom Marriage.

Among the applicants for marriage licenses who were before Judge Eller were Fred W. Randall and Bertie Brubaker, who had come up from Beatrice to be joined in matrimony. They were both up to the requisite age, and Mr. Walkup did not hesitate to draw up the preliminary affidavits. When he had dotted the last i and crossed the last t, the young woman, who had apparently been buried in deep thought, remarked:

"I don't believe I care to get married."

"You don't?" cried the startled bridegroom.

"No, I guess not," and started out. The young man followed her, and they held brief conversation among the books and papers of the outer office, when Mr. Walkup, with dreams of an elopement in mind, suggested that they might have the inner room for a private discussion if they desired. They entered and were for some time engaged in earnest talk, the bridegroom expectant arguing for all he was worth. Finally the girl gave in and agreed to carry the affair through, and the judge was called from the bench to fix it up before she could again change her mind.

"By thunder! it was mighty lucky, and it was nearly unlucky that you had a judge around handy then," observed the newly married man as he wiped the perspiration from his brow.

"What was the matter?" the clerk inquired.

"Why, there's some kind of a lawsuit going on in there, isn't there?" indicating the direction of the courtroom, from which the voices of attorneys in dispute were heard. It was a case in which one member of a family living in South Omaha was trying to get money from another, and some vigorous family truths were being told. "Well, she had been listening to the way they were testifying about family troubles, and it had scared her out."

It was true. The dissension bred by marriage in the South Omaha family and wafted over the transom had nearly spoiled the hopes of another couple.—Omaha World-Herald.

The Afghans.

Of all the races with which the English have come in close contact, the Afghans are the most uncivilized in nature and grain. They are fierce, bloodthirsty, fanatical and treacherous; their good qualities are of the elementary, domestic kind, and their highest virtue is courage, which they possess to a conspicuous degree. They are uncivilized in the sense that they are without any national cohesion or responsibility. Each man is independent of his fellows and rejects the authority of even tribal chiefs. No doubt there are in every clan or tribe men of prominence for their wealth or prowess or cunning, who command a certain following.

But their influence is personal and temporary and vanishes as quickly as it has sprung up. In some quiet Utopia, where the individual might be allowed to develop in peace, this intense individuality might be no disadvantage. But it is otherwise in a country like Afghanistan, torn with intestine discord and jealously regarded by powerful neighbors.—Fortnightly Review.

A Woman Buying Stamps.

"How many stamps do you sell for a quarter?" she said to the stamp clerk at the postoffice.

"Twenty-five one-cent ones or 12 2-cent ones, ma'am."

"Don't you give back the odd cent change?"

"Certainly."

"Are they the Columbian stamps or the old kind?"

"I can give you either."

"Don't the old style ones come a little cheaper now?"

"No, ma'am."

"I thought they would. They're out of style, you know."

"The government receives them the same as the new ones in payment of postage, and many people prefer them."

"But their red color doesn't match some styles of envelopes."

"I can't help that."

"Couldn't you sell me a dozen of the old 2-cent ones for 15 cents?"

"No, ma'am."

"Couldn't you on Friday?"

"No, ma'am."

"But that's bargain day in the stores."

"Possibly, but not at the postoffice."

"When is your bargain day?"

"We don't have any."

"Not have any bargain day! Well, I never! And my husband told me the postoffice was run on business principles. Why, you don't know the first principles of business."—Harper's Bazar.

The Faces of Men.

Physiognomists tell us that the human face resembles that of some animal. Those who remember the late Henry Bergh will have no difficulty in recalling the equine profile and expression of his face. It was remarkable. George Eliot was another blessed with the equine expression on her countenance. Dickens' head and face were often likened to that of a fine dog.

In England and America, where dogs and horses are more thought of and better cared for than in other civilized countries, we find more men whose faces are strikingly canine and equine in profile and expression. Among successful men we often see the piercing eyes and long, bent nose of the eagle. This eagle profile, so seldom found in men of commonplace talents, is much admired by physiognomists, but physiognomists condemn the eagle's face when a woman bears it.

The vast majority of men and women of our race resemble sheep, and this accounts for the stupidity and susceptibility of the average man and woman. But those who think or have been told that they look like a horse or a dog must remember that there are "balky" horses and some mighty snappy and miserable dogs.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

A Holy Oil.

The love of the marvelous in the thirteenth century was not less remarkable in this age than in those which had preceded it. In the old French account we read of new wonders in Palestine not mentioned before, and of the Sinai convent we learn that "there lies St. Catherine, virgin and martyr, in a very fair marble tomb, which tomb is so holy that a sort of oil from it heals many ills, and the grace of God is shown, in that many wild beasts, which are on that mountain, live on nothing save by licking the tomb of my lady St. Catherine and by the mana which falls on the mountain."

At Tortosa also was now shown St. Luke's portrait of Our Lady, and at Sardenat a Syrian monastery on a rock north of Damascus was the miraculous image of the Virgin, which distilled oil from its breast. By special treaty the Templars were allowed to visit the shrine and collect the oil, which was in high repute and sold for a great price in Europe. It is often mentioned in the inventories of churches in France as one of the treasures of the church.—Edinburgh Review.

It Fetched Him.

A down town lawyer borrowed a book from a friend in the same office, took it home and forgot to return it. Several times he was reminded of this by the owner of the book and as many times forgot to put it in his pocket when he left his house. At length, stung to desperation by his friend's gibes, he sat down, and addressing a postal card to himself at his residence he wrote on the back of it this: "If you do not attend to that matter within 24 hours, you may expect the worst." "There," he said grimly, "if that doesn't fetch me, nothing will."

It did fetch him. It fetched him out of a late sleep the next morning immediately after the postman's first visit to explain to his white faced, terrified wife that she was not likely to be made a widow. He offered explanations—and took the book back, but he is not sure that his wife does not believe that he has committed some crime or in some way got into the clutches of a blackmailer.—New York Times.

The Deadly Cutlery Trade.

A foreign statistician has recently compiled figures relating to the baneful effect of the unavoidable inhalation of metallic dust by cutlers and file cutters. Assuming, he says, that in the case of an ordinary active existence in a healthy atmosphere the number of deaths per 100,000 artificers is 100, the figure of mortality resulting from consumption and other lung complaints among the first named workmen would be 333, and among file sharpeners 336. The death rate prevalent in the cutlery trade would, it seems, be much heavier were it not that the allied handle manufacturing trade is included in the statistics. Altogether the number of fatal terminations to pulmonary diseases among cutlers and file cutters is nearly equivalent to the aggregate deaths among fishermen from all causes, including accidents, which are numerous.—London Iron.

Real Balm of Gilead.

The real balm of gilead is the dried juice of a low shrub, it is said, which grows in Syria. It is very valuable and scarce, for the amount of balm yielded by one shrub never exceeded 60 drops a day. According to Josephus, the balm or balsam of gilead was one of the presents given by the queen of Sheba to King Solomon. The ancient Jewish physicians prescribed it evidently for dyspepsia and melancholia.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Latter Day Marriage.

Downton—So you are really going to be married?

Upton—Yes, it's all fixed. We've rented a furnished flat, and I've hired a dress suit for the occasion, and Marie has borrowed her cousin's wedding rig, and a new caterer has agreed to lend us his plaster of paris show cake, provided I mention his name in the papers.—New York Weekly.

A FRIEND

Speaks through the Boothby (Me.) Register, of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. They will do good."

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

[Timber Land, Act June 3, 1878.]

United States Land Office, The Dalles, Oregon, March 24, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," James M. Hoag, of Hood River, county of Wasco, state of Oregon, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement No. for the purchase of lots two, three, four and nine, of section thirty, in township No. one north, range No. nine east, W. M., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber and stone than for agricultural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before the Register and Receiver of this office at The Dalles, Oregon, on Monday, the 11th day of June, 1894.

He names as witnesses Herbert Ellsworth, Marion Loy, George C. Jones Jr and John Dyer, all of Hood River, Oregon.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 11th day of June, 1894.
