IT WAS ALL FUN.

And the Blod Old Man Was Just the Or For Fun, You Know.

He was a man about 45 years of age. He had on a blue woolen shirt, his pants were tucked into his bootlegs, and his gait was that of a man walking over plowed ground.

As he sauntered up Brush street he met a policeman, and as he blocked the officer's way he whispered: "Hush! Keep quiet! Don't give me away!" What's the matter with you?" demanded the officer. "Nothin the mat-

HOW VLSSELS ARE NAMED.

the Carlous Titles Selected by American Craft Owners.

People who are called upon to name ves els sometimes have strange ideas as to the fitness of things, and the list of merchant vessels sailing or floating or being pushed of dragged along under the Amer ican flag shows how affection, gratitude, political preference, imagination and humor are all used to furnish names for sailing craft. System is adhered to only by regularly established lines, and by only few of them, even the big steamers of the American line, the New York and Paris, having been named before they hoisted the stars and stripes and "City of" being dropped when that interesting ceremony took place. The largest list of strictly American vessels where a system is followed is in the case of the Southern Pacific fleet, running between this city and New Orleans, the names of the steamers all be-ginning with the Spanish "El," while the Ocean Steamship company, running to Savannah, called upon cities and rivers of Georgia for names for its vessels.

Von Blumer-Your wife tells me you are doing the marketing this week. Witherby-Yes. You see, old man, I've got the most extravagant wife you ever saw. I don't blame her for it. She can't help it. Born in her. But it is nevertheless a fact. Why, sir, you haven't any idea how much that woman squanders in butchers' bills alone!

Von Blumer-I see. And so you have taken it into your own hands?

Witherby-Well, not altogether. We had a dispute about it the other night, in which I criticised her in a mild sort of way, you understand, and she told me to do the marketing myself and see how I came out. So this week I am buying all the food. Von Blumer-Oh, yes! How are you coming out? Witherby-Splendid! It was just as I expected! Why, sir, it is amazing how much a man can squander on his table when he gives his wife full swing!

Von Blumer-And so your market bills are not so high this week?

Witherby-Not by one-half. Von Blumer (reflectively) - This thing may be worth looking into. My wife-

The Children.

A clergyman was explaining to a class of boys the passage of Scripture, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the king-dom of God." He told them that this very strong expression was meant to show the extreme difficulty, adding, "You know it would be impossible for a camel to go through the eye of a needle." "Of course it would, sir, on account of its bump," responded the naturalist of the class.-Youth's Companion.

Mrs. Gladstone.

Sir Andrew Clark has often been heard to say that Mrs. Gladstone is quite as much entitied to the name of the Grand Old Woman as her evergreen husband is to that of the Grand Old Man. On Jan. 12 last Mrs. Gladstone's eightieth birthday came round, and she passed the morning in writing letters to her friends in England, a task which she accomplished without wearing glasses of any kind as aids to her sight. In fact, she has never yet known what it is to need spectacles, and yet her eyes are as bright as those of a young woman.

A trap was set for the forgers, and the asincome $34,010 was from tuition fees, sistance of the chief of police and his detective bureau and of a big trust company was secured. It was necessary to consum mate some transfer or deal on the forger ies or obtain the forged document itself. Secrecy was the only hope of gaining proof of guilt, as the law does not touch the holders, but only the makers of forged deeds.

Attorney Bisbee was to delay filing a bill in chancery to quiet the title to the property until the thieves were caught. But the minute Mrs. Green, who was at Far Rockaway, heard of the arrangement she hurried to Chicago and hired another lawyer to file the necessary bill. She had a stormy interview with Mr. Bisbee, in which she declared that she had not the slightest interest in bringing the forgers to justice, and that he should have known better than to take any chances. "You look after my interests, Bisbee," she said sharply, "and keep the titles to my property clear. That's what I pay you for. Let the police catch their own thieves."-New York World.

Railroad Crockery.

There is a tradition among the Hudson River railroad folk that the dwellers along the tracks north and south of Poughkeep sie keep themselves in crockery from the cups, saucers, plates and tumblers fired from the car windows. Travelers snatch-ing a hasty luncheon at the restaurant in the station levy on such utensils to carry food to companions unable to get out, and the trains move off often before the cup or plate is released from duty. As a deposit has been paid largely in excess of the value of the article, and as most passengers have no desire to preserve this crockery merely as bric-a-brac, it having no other civi-lized use outside the railroad restaurant, the car window usually offers a prompt and easy solution of its disposition.

And these literal wrecks of time, built to stand more than mere pitching from a flying express, rest by the roadside to be garnered by the track gleaners of the neighborhood .- New York Times.
