ENGLISH LIFE.

As It Is Viewed By an Educated Native of the Orlept.

Behvamji Malabari, of India, who ested in the apple crop about prices, visited England in 1890, considered the English climate as the most remark-able of all the things that came under his notice. He thinks a race that could everything. The quantity and the manner of their eating puzzled and sometimes frightened me. Men and women eat freely at shops, in the streets, train, 'bus, or railway carringe. There is an absence of delicacy and deliberation about the matter, at which the grave In no respect, perhaps, does the average Englishman show himself so slow of imagination and wanting in taste as with respect to his daily food. He cats what his fathers ate before him. The cook knows nothing of regular dinner with friends while in England, being unaccustomed both to their hours and their dishes. But I have had to put in an appearance at

The host then asked me slyly what I thought of the food and their mode of eating. I, replied, instinctively: "It is horrible. The reply set the gentlemen roaring, and my hostess blushing. But I could not help saying what I felt. How can a little stomach hold such an enormous lunch? The waste of vitality in their climate, and under their conditions of life, must be enormous; and it has, of course, to be replaced.

BURIAL OR CREMATION? What the Noted French Authors Have to Say Concerning Them. Some of the noted French authors have been giving a Paris editor their preferences in regard to burial or cremation. The Boston Herald summarizes their expressions: Alphonse Daudet says, as to being buried or cremated, that either would be exceedingly disagreeable to him, and when one remembers that Daudet is a great sufferer from an incurable disease his answer is a triumph of hope. Henri de Bornier frankly curses the editor for spolling his dinner by such a query, and Armand Sylvester is very French and poetic, for his says: "To become a

NAMED AFTER THE PRESIDENTS

Philadelphia Maintains Her Record for Patriotism in Her Nomenciature. Of the twenty-three presidents of the United States John Adams has the largest number of namesakes, twentythree, in the Philadelphia directory. James Buchanan ranks next, twentyone men of nearly as many vocations bearing the name of the only Pennsylvania president. There are fifteen Andrew Jacksons and fourteen Andrew Johnsons. The name of the father of his country is borne by eight day laborers, one cateror, two waiters, one janitor, and one real estate dealer, or SPOKANE. thirteen men in all, says the Record. The grandfather of Benjamin Harrison has three namesakes, while one laborer and one upholsterer have the name of Tippecanoe's grandson. There are four James Monroes and the same number called John Quincy Adams. One hostler, one puddler, and a weaver are known as James Madison, and a bartender, a clerk, and a superintendent answer to the name of Zachary Taylor. There is but one Thomas Jefferson, whose occupation is not given, and the only John Tyler is a weaver. A brakeman and a minister of the Gospel are Franklin Pierces, but there is nobody with the name of Presidents Van Buren, Polk, Fillmore, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, or Cleveland, except as a handle to the surname.
