HARRISON BROS.

J. J. Luckey has sold his interest in the blacksmithing business to his partner, John R. Nickelsen. All persons knowing themselves indebted to the old firm will please call and settle and save costs.
The GLACIER has received from the Pope Manufacturing Co. of Hartford, Conn., one of their unique and useful table calendars for 1895. It can be obtained from this company, or from any Columbia bicycle agency, for five 2-cent stamps.

It is hoped the fruit growers of Hood River will bring in their nicest specimens of apples to Hon. E. L. Smith, who will pack and ship them to the great meeting of horticulturists to be held in Portland about the 28th of January.
There will be a watch meeting New Year's eve at the Odd Fellows' hall. The fore part of the evening will be devoted to literary entertainment. The ladies of the missionary society of the U. B. church will serve lunch and give out souvenirs. Everybody invited.

For the Universal Exposition at Portland the O. R. & N. Co. will sell tickets to Portland and return, including two admission coupons to the exposition, for $3.60. Tickets will be sold only for train No. 1, leaving Hood River at 5:02 a. m. Tuesdays and Fridays.
O. B. Hartley and party who went over to Washington last week on a wild hog hunt, succeeded in bringing in four of the porkers. They found the game more wild than deer, and would not have succeeded in getting any of them if it had not been for the snow on the ground.

Belmont M. E. church was crowded Christmas eve by an audience mostly of young people who had gathered there to see what Santa Claus had placed on the Christmas tree for them. An immense Christmas tree was hanging full of presents, besides they were heaped in piles around and under the tree. After an interesting programme was gone through with, M. P. Isenberg read off the names of those receiving presents, and half a dozen active young men distributed the gifts throughout the audience.

Chas. Rogers has a cow that he has been keeping in a pasture. The other day he went as usual to feed the cow and found that she had not eaten the feed given her the night before. He examined the cow and found about three or four inches of her tongue cut off. Mr. Rogers is unable to account for the loss of the cow's tongue. He doesn't know that he has an enemy in the world and is slow to believe any one would be guilty of such a dastardly act.
The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held on Wednesday. The reports submitted from the different departments of the church work made a very encouraging showing. The following officers were chosen: Geo. P. Crowell, J. H. Dukes and J. N. McCoy, trustees; H. C. Bateham, clerk, and Mrs. Rose McCoy, treasurer. The church voted to become a member of the library association about to be established in Hood River.

We are informed by Van Johnson that on section 20 no less than eight new houses have been built within the last year, among which are those of Prof. P. A. Snyder, A. E. Curtis, Mr. Hansen, John Kelley and John Hakell. Mr. Hakell, who bought land of Van Johnson, has built a neat log house and cleared three acres of land. This is one of the best apple districts in the valley. Van Johnson sold his apples this year for $1.50 a box.
Friday morning the GLACIER received several communications from different parts of the valley, relating to the good times had Christmas eve at the different churches and other matters of interest. We did not have time to set up any one of them, and so all were crowded out. All communications should be sent in by Thursday to insure publication, and Monday morning would suit much better.

Scott Peterson arrived in Hood River Christmas from Spokaue, where he has been confined to the hospital for six weeks with typhoid fever. He was in the railroad wreck at Summit Tuesday morning. Mr. Peterson stopped at Riparia on his way down, where he found the Hood River boys working with L. Nell all in good shape.

Mr. U. S. Loughary and bride reached Hood River Friday morning and are the guests of his brother-in-law, Rev. J. L. Hershner. They were married at Spokane on Christmas day. Mr. Loughary is in business at Independence, Oregon.

The Christmas programme rendered at the Congregational church was highly enjoyed by the large audience present. There was no seating capacity for all who came. Santa Claus and his reindeer team were present to the great delight of the children.
A happy throng gathered at the Methodist barracks to celebrate the return of Christmas. The place was very tastefully decorated with evergreens, white mottoes placed on the walls showed the spirit of the church.

Hon. A. R. Byrkettt has purchased of Rev. C. W. Wells the residence property adjoining the U. B. church.
No prettier decorations were ever seen in Hood River than those at the U. B. church Christmas eve.

R. A. Byrkettt and family have moved to Hood River from Trout Lake for the winter.
A large stock of shoes will soon be received at D. F. Pierce's harness and shoe store.
The thermometer Friday morning marked 26 degrees above zero.

Ladies' and Misses' walking hats at the Racket Store. Price 25c.
Meeting of Fruit Men.
Under the auspices of the Oregon state board of horticulture, about the 28th of January will convene at Portland the Oregon horticultural society, Washington horticultural society, Idaho horticultural society, British Columbia societies and the Northwest fruit growers' association. These societies will receive the American pomological society, who have been invited to meet with them after their annual meeting in California. There will also be present a large number of commission men from the Northwest and East; an executive committee has been appointed, and the business men of Portland are showing great interest in this meeting. The railroads will all issue cheap excursion rates. It is intended to make this the largest and grandest meeting of fruit men ever held on the Pacific coast. The ladies will also assist and make a grand display in the line of floriculture.

Services at the Congregational church next Sunday at 11 a. m. Subject of sermon, "Life's Unrealized Ideas." Mrs. Travers, a graduate of the Conservatory of Music at Rome, will sing a solo at this service, entitled, "O for the Wings of a Dove."
Bishop N. Castle will preach in the U. B. church Saturday evening, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and evening at 7.30.
Regular services are held at the M. E. barracks morning and evening of the first Sunday of each month; in the evening the remaining Sundays of the month. The fourth Sunday evening occupied by T. D. Gregory.

Obituary.
Written by Jos. W. Morton, Salem, Oregon, November 1, 1894.
C. R. Morton, a former resident of Hood River, died at Salem, Oregon, November 1, 1894.
Charles Reed Morton was born January 5, 1820, in the state of Ohio, of sturdy pioneer stock, and with his parents emigrated to Illinois in the early days of that state. He remained with his parents until fully matured manhood, and in the year 1852 crossed the plains to the state of Oregon, and re-crossed again to the state of Iowa, in 1854, and married Caroline Wallace in 1859, by whom he had six children. He remained in Iowa until 1875, when he again came to Oregon, where he remained until his death. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss.
This good and honest man died near the close of life's setting sun, and while his last rays were still shining over the western slope. He may not have reached the highest point that marks life's highway, but he climbed far up the heights, leaving all the dogmas and superstitions below. The only religion he knew was his duty to his fellow men, and in doing this he cast aside all hypocrisy and met the world with an open face. He had an abiding hope in something better and grander than this world can bestow upon humanity, in the short race from the cradle to the grave. We that are living know that birth, by natural consequences, brings death, but we do not know whether death is the end of this life or the door of another, or whether the darkness here is not somewhere else a ray of light. Every cradle asks us, whence? and every coffin, whither? We do not know; we cannot tell. The

A Perilous Trip in the Mountains.

William Otto of Portland passed through Hood River Thursday on his way to Portland from Trout Lake. He was one of the searching party that went out after Clinton Allison. While at the lake he had quite an adventure himself. In company with one of the Coonhausen brothers of Camas prairie, about a month ago he went on a hunting and trapping expedition in the mountains north of Mt. Adams. They met with good success, killing four bears, a number of foxes and other furbearing animals. While in the mountains a terrific snow storm came on, and they started for home in the driving blizzard. They lost their way and were compelled to throw away their skins and furs, and even their blankets, to make headway in the deep snow. For five days they wandered through the trackless forests in the storm, without food and blankets. Finally they cut down green tamarac trees and hewed out snow-shoes with an axe, and thus were enabled to reach the settlements. During the five days they were without food they saw no game, not even a jaybird.

Mr. Otto is one of the best mountaineers in the country. Seven or eight years ago he had an encounter with a cougar, near Trout Lake, in which he received scars he will carry through life. He had shot a cougar, and while engaged skinning it, the cougar's mate came on the scene and sprang upon his back. He could not use his gun and was compelled to fight the cougar with his hands and feet until he managed to reach his knife that had fallen to the ground, when he ended the battle by stabbing the cougar to the heart. The cougar managed to about strip him of his clothing and scratched him fearfully about the face and breast.

Fatal Railroad Accident.
At 3:30 Christmas morning as No. 1, the westbound passenger train, was passing what is known as the Summit, eight miles east of The Dalles, it came in collision with a freight train on the sidetrack, wrecking both locomotives in a fearful manner. W. J. Sherman was engineer on the passenger train, and as and his fireman were thrown out without receiving injury; but the engineer on the freight train, J. W. Ready, was caught by the overturned tank, and it is presumed, instantly killed. His fireman escaped by jumping from the cab. Descriptions of the accident differ in some particulars, but they all agree that the freight train was on the sidetrack, and the open switch was the direct cause of the collision. The freight had forty cars attached to the locomotive, while the switch would only hold thirty-eight. A long train like this managed to pass another by what is termed "sawing," and Mr. Ready was forced to do this to let the passenger train pass.

The Military Ball.
The military ball of Company D, to be held New Year's eve, promises to be the greatest event of the season. Every arrangement is being made to make the ball a great success. The cascade orchestra has been engaged, which insures good music. Supper will be served in the hall.

He had an abiding hope in something better and grander than this world can bestow upon humanity, in the short race from the cradle to the grave. We that are living know that birth, by natural consequences, brings death, but we do not know whether death is the end of this life or the door of another, or whether the darkness here is not somewhere else a ray of light. Every cradle asks us, whence? and every coffin, whither? We do not know; we cannot tell. The heathen Hindoo mother weeping over her innocent dead can answer the question just as intelligently and satisfactorily as the robed priest of the most authentic creed. There is one satisfaction to us all: we know the dead do not suffer. Mother Earth that nourished them claims them back to her relentless bosom, where all sorrow and pain ceases forever. Those sorrowing ones who, with bleeding hearts, stand around this grave need have no fear, for as life wears on they, too, will follow those who have gone before, in the same footsteps and run the same race our father's have run, until these graves will finally come to them to be a place of peace and rest, almost of joy. We have no fear; we are content to journey on life's road, learning and doing our duty. We believe in religion, and it is this: "Help for the living, hope for the dead."

"Oh, what is life? 'Tis like a flower that blooms and is gone.
Youth is the morning, bright and gay with all its beauty on;
But almost old age comes in a wintry day
And cuts the lovely flower away."

MARRIED.
At the residence of Troy Shelley, on the East Side, Dec. 20, 1894, Jacob Lenz and Clara B. Knox, both of Hood River valley; Rev. Troy Shelley officiating.
At The Dalles, Dec. 26, 1894, by Rev. Bronsgeest, L. V. Nealeigh and Miss Mary Beauty, both of Hood River.

Writers often express wonder that any fruit or vegetable should be found without seeds, the acme of surprise seeming to be with respect to the seedless orange. The fact of the case is that such examples are met with in almost every variety of fruits and in several kinds of vegetables. An instance which can be cited in the apple is Mennecher's Noreore, so named because of both core and seed pits being entirely absent. The Rutter pear is a so-called seedless variety of that species of fruit, but I believe that abortive seeds are occasionally found in isolated specimens. The "zante" or seedless currant of the grocery stores is not a currant at all, but a small species of seedless grape. Two or three years ago I told the readers of the Republic how they could raise their own seedless cucumbers, and for fear that it may have escaped the notice of some who may see this I will say that the whole secret lies in covering the first joint of the vine after it starts to "run" and then cutting the vine from the original stalk as soon as the joint takes root.—St. Louis Republic.

Dr. E. T. Carns, Dentist.
Has returned to Portland. He will be in Hood River again about the first of March, prepared to do all kinds of dentistry work—examine, fill, extract, regulate and make new teeth; also, crown and bridge work.

ESTRAY NOTICES.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY.
Standard of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court and of nearly all the Schoolbooks.
Warmly commended by every State Superintendent of Schools, and other Educators almost without number.
A College President writes: "For ease with which the eye finds the word sought, for accuracy of definition, for effective methods in indicating pronunciation, for terse yet comprehensive statements of facts, and for practical use as a working dictionary, Webster's International excels any other single volume."
The One Great Standard Authority.
Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, writes: "The International Dictionary is the perfection of dictionaries. I commend it to all as the one great standard authority."
"A saving of three cents per day for a year will provide more than enough money to purchase a copy of the International. Can you afford to be without it?"

INFLUENZA,

Or La Grippe, though occasionally epidemic, is always more or less prevalent. The best remedy for this complaint is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
"Last Spring, I was taken down with La Grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breast seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and no sooner had I begun taking it than relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid and the cure so complete. It is truly a wonderful medicine."—W. H. WILLIAMS, Crook City, S. D.
