The prospects for a good strawberry crop this year are very promising, and the strawberry men are jubilant; and well might they be so, for another year as disastrous as was the last would bankrupt most of them.

Indian Dave and his dog met a train on a long railroad treatle. Dave escaped death by climbing over the side, and the dog, after crossing and recrossing the track several times, followed his master's example and crouched on the extreme end of a tie.

M. F. Sloper, one day last week, had a fall in his barn while climbing from the hay mow and dislocated his hip. He managed in some way to twist it into place, but it has since been quite sore and painful and he is compelled to use a crutch in getting about.

About twenty young people gathered at Mr. Shute's last Monday evening, the occasion being the 19th anniversary of Henry's birthday. A pleasant, social time was enjoyed, games indulged in, and last but not least, an excellent lunch was served. All dispersed to their homes, wishing many returns of the day.

Ray McKinsey, a 14-year-old boy working for Mr. John Waters of Mosier, we learn from The Dalles Chronicle, was gored by a helfer at that place Saturday. She thrust her horn through the boy's neck, near the jugular vein. Dr. Morgan happened to be near at hand and brought the boy to Hood River for treatment.

The residence of Mrs. E. L. Smith on Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are the model host and hostess, and every one of the large party who filled their rooms enjoyed the pleasant evening. The party was favored by songs from Mrs. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Armor, Mrs. Woodard, Mrs. LaFrance and others. A duet by Mrs. Travers and Mrs. Lewis was especially well received. Recitations by Arthur Soesbe and Master Woodard were heartily applauded. Coffee and lunch were served to ninety persons, after which a collection was taken, which will be applied to the purchase of a bell for the Congregational church.
