EXERCISE.

One reason for the fact that the general health of the community is growing better every year is that more people take regular exercise. Exercise, however, has its difficulties. FIVE DOLLARS A JOB.

I am a clerk in London, where by dint of slaving from morning till night I managed to earn the magnificent salary of £50 a year.

By my fellow clerks I was looked upon as a sort of Crossus because I always had plenty of spare cash, dressed well and stood treat to any amount. The following story may throw a little light on how I managed to supply my purse:

One morning I saw in the columns of The Daily Tattler the following advertisement:

"To Gentlemen With Limited Incomes-Gentlemen who are fond of dancing and would like to increase their income should apply between 6 and 8 p. m. to X. Y. Z., 5 Sixth avenue."

At 7 o'clock I found myself in a dingy little sitting room in the presence of a sharp eyed man. On my entrance this gentleman scanned me from head to foot and was apparently well pleased with the examina-tion, for he rubbed his hands and mut-

"Ah, that's just what I wanted. Young man, can you dance well?

I replied that I was a very fair dancer. He then informed me that he was an agent of Blackley, the great provider; that ing handsome young men for evening par ties, and he added:

"A good looking young man like you we can send to the best houses, and you can Traders' and the Harlem River banks earn at least £1 a night if you like to put were successfully robbed by dishonest emyour name on our books."

On my asking what sort of places should be required to go to he replied that Mrs. Verdant had asked to be supplied with two dancing men tomorrow night, and I might go there if I chose.

It ended in my putting my name on the books, putting down £5 as security for my respectability and promising to attend Mrs. Verdant's on the following evening.

"One word more, Mr. Hartley," said the gent. "Our customers generally prefer agent. men with some title before their name. suppose you were never in the army or in the volunteers or anything of that kind?"

"Two years ago I was captain of the Bull's Ferry Bicycle club," I replied.

"That will do capitally," said the agent, rubbing his hands cheerfully. "Just get a few cards printed with 'Captain Hartley' on them, and don't forget to have the silk facings put on your dress coat, and be sure and go to the party in a cab. Good even

Next evening in no little trepidation, I directed the cabman to drive me to Mrs

Outside the door were carriages and cabs without number, and I did not feel altogether comfortable as I was ushered up the wide electric lighted staircase into a most beautiful drawing room. As the footman announced Captain Gordon Hartley, Mrs Verdant came forward and shook hands with me most affably.

Her conversation soon put me entirely at sase, for I perceived that I was to be treated inst as an ordinary guest. In a little time she introduced me-alas that I ever met her-to the most lovely girl I have ever seen in my life-Miss Gladys Murison. She was, I discovered, an orphan and heir to a large amount of money.

After sending a telegram to the office I the park. I was sanntering along lazily when I was suddenly aroused from my reverie by hearing the noise of horses approach-

Turning round I perceived Miss Gladys Murison galloping along on a fine bay, followed at a little distance by a smart groom. As she perceived me she drew up.
"Good morning, Captain Hartley," she said, "isn't it a lovely day? How did you enjoy the ball last night? Are you going to Mrs. Graeme's on Friday week?"

I replied that I did not know, but that I should very probably go. After a few more words she rode off and in a little time was joined by a smart looking military man, whom I afterward found out was Colonel Varnay and whom I afterward had great

During the next week or two I attended several "At Homes" and saw my ideal two or three times. But at last the fatal evening came—the evening when I had to renounce any hope I ever had of obtaining my ambition.

It happened in this wise: Mrs. Laidlaw Varnay, the mother of the colonel I have already mentioned, had requested Blackley to supply her with three dancing men for a great ball she was going to give.

I was among those chosen. It appears that Mrs. Varnay had set her heart on her son, the colonel, marrying Miss Murison, and she was very jealous of any one else paying any attention to that roung lady.

In the course of the evening I managed to obtain a dance with Miss Murison, much to Mrs. Varnay's disgust, and at the finish of the waltz she took me aside and said: "One moment, Mr. or Captain Hartley l employed you to come and dance with those ladies who do not easily find partners, not with those whom every one wishes to dance with." In spite of this cut I felt determined to try and get another dance with Miss Muri-son. I was so madly infatuated that I was ready to risk anything. It was the last dance but one on the programme, and I was once more waltzing with Miss Murison. Little I then thought that it was to be the last that I should ever dance wito her, and I enjoyed it to the utgest that you should be a little more caremost, but at last the end came.

"I must go now Captain Hartley," she said, with a tender glance. "I wonder where my aunt has got to. Oh, there she is at the door talking to Mrs. Varnay." "Yes, Captain Hartley ought to dance well," Mrs. Varnay was saying. "You see, my dear-I say it entre nous, you know-it's his profession.' "Why, isn't he an army man, Mrs. Varnave Oh, dear, no. He is one of the men I

I have given up dances now. Never shall I forget the look on the aunt's face as she saw me escorting Miss Murison to the door.

It's all over. I know my ideal can never be attained, but still it's hard—it is very discovered at the bank." hard.-H. C. Reynolds.

ROBBERIES OF BANKS.

Insiders Get Most of the Spoil-A Book keeper's Confession.

Here is a list of the most important lootings of New York banks by trusted officials and employees during the past four or five years. It will be seen that it amounts to more than $1,250,000; that it does not include the defalcations of John C. Eno, inasmuch as the records examined do not extend as far back as the discovery of his crime. According to the New York Press, which compiled the list, these sums exceed in the aggregate the total amount stolen from New York banks by burglars and professional swindlers for a quarter of a century and more. Here is the list: Shoe and Leather bank cheated out of $354,000 by a bookkeeper and one or more confederates.

Chemical bank robbed of $15,000 by naving teller. Mechanics and Traders' bank robbed of $35,000 by bookkeeper and two depositors.

Manufacturers and Merchants' bank

Ninth National bank robbed of $450, 000 by the president. National Park bank defrauded of $95,-000 by the cashier.

nulcted in $38,000 by a bookkeeper

United States National bank robbed of $43,000 by a bookkeeper. Bank of the Republic mulcted in $15, 000 by a discount clerk.

Tradesmen's National bank robbed by discount clerk of $12,000. Harlem River bank robbed of $26,000 by a bookkeeper. American Exchange National bank rob-bed of $33,000 by a bookkeeper. St. Nicholas National bank robbed by the receiving teller of $42,000.

There have been many expressions of surprise that in a bank doing so large a business as the Shoe and Leather the old fashioned plan of keeping one bookkeeper on the same set of books for a long term of years was so persistently adhered to; owing to the increasing lack of dancing but, judging from the experience of other men Blackley was in the habit of supply-banks, the dishonest taking of the bank's money might have been done, no matter what the system employed. The old Union bank, the Continental, the Mechanics and ployees, both with and without confederates, notwithstanding the most complicattimes fails, and here is a story in point. It was related to a Press reporter the other day by the defaulting bank employee him-self, with the proviso that his name and the name of the institution by which he was employed should not be made public. "It was about 15 years ago," said this man, "that I began to take money from the bank in which I was a clerk. I was not dishonest. I was sorely tempted. I was Oh, cruel fate, that I was not born rich, for then might my life have been happy! I crate salary. Still it was ample for my personal needs, but when my father died and left the family penniless, and at the same time my mother became a hopeless had breakfast and then went for a stroll in invalid, it was at once evident to me that I must in some way procure more money for there were four younger children in the family, all unable to contribute a cent to the general fund. I first tried to get an increase of salary, but failed, and then I began to take small sums from the bank.

"It was because of my defalcations that I stuck closer to my desk than any other of the clerks and worked harder, I knew that if I took a vacation I should inevitably be found out and then all would go for naught. It was because of my appar ent devotion to the interests of the bank that my salary was gradually raised, so that just three years after I began to steal I was certain I should have to steal no more. I even hoped soon to be able to pay up, but it was three months afterward before I began that difficult task. Then my brother, next younger than myself, began to earn money, and I told him the whole story. He acted in the most noble fashion and turned over to me as much of his earnings as he possibly could, and little by little, as the ant takes an atom of earth at a time we reduced the balance against

"Oh, it was slow work and far more trying to my nerves than had been the stealing, but I never had the slightest impulse to continue covering up the shortage beyond the earliest possible date at which I could repay the whole. My salary now began to be increased every year, and finally, nearly ten years ago, and but a little more than five years after I began to steal, I paid back the last cent. During all this time I had been economical even to parsimony in my personal expenditures, never buying clothes until I was absolute ly forced to do so, and never owning but one suit at a time. Finally, the day after I had made everything good and covered all my tracks, the vice president asked me to come into his office for a private talk. My heart was in my mouth. He said afterward that I turned as pale as a sheet, and I know I nearly fainted, but I went in and as he offered me a good cigar and asked me to be seated I began to take heart.

"'We have decided, Mr. Blank,' he said. 'to offer you the post of cashier, for all have been watching your course with apful as to your dress. You are really shab-by, although your salary is large enough to enable you to be clothed at least fairly well. It's rather a delicate matter to speak of and may seem trivial to you, but if you become cashier here, you should dress as becomes the situation."

"I gasped and asked for time to consider it. That night I was taken down with brain fever. The strain had overcome me at last and I was kept to my bed for three months. When I recovered, I was offered hire from Blackley's to come and dance. I the place in the bank again, but I wouldn't pay them £1 an evening." In fact, I have never trusted myself to

AN EMINENT LAWYER'S LONG CONFLICT WITH DISEASE.

Twenty-Five Years of Prosperity, Adversity and Suffering - The Great Victory Won by Science Over a Stubborn Disease.

rom the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.]

Foremost among the best known lawvers and farmers of North Carolina stands Colonel Isaac A. Sugg of Green-ville, Mr. Sugg has resided in Green-ville twenty-two years. While nearly every one in Pitt county knows Mr. S.'s history, perhaps all do not know of his return to business again after an illness of sixteen years. No man has gone through more than he and lived. It was through more than he and lived. It was a case of the entire breaking down of the nervous system, attended by excru-ciating, agonizing, unendurable pain. Opiates and stimulants only quieted temporarily, and all treatments failed him. Only his love of family and friends prevented suicide. He told a reporter the following interesting story:

"I kept at my work as long as I could, but nature gave way at last and I suc-cumbed to the inevitable. My entire nervous system had been shattered by the stimulants and opiates I had taken; my blood had actually turned to water; my weightinad dropped from 173 pounds to 123, and it seemed to everybody that the end was in sight. Why, I could not bear the gentle hand of my wife to bathe my limbs with tepid water. I was simply living from hour to hour. I had made my will, settled my business and waited for the last strand of life to snap.

It was at this time that a somewhat similar case as my own was brought to my notice. This man had suffered very much as I had; his life had been de spaired of as mine had, and yet he had been cured. Think what that little word meant to me—CURED. The report stated that the work had been accomplished by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. 1 investigated the report thoroughly, and found that it was true in detail. Then I procured some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began taking them, and began to get better. I began to sleep like a healthful child, sound, calm and peaceful. My appetite came back, and my nerves were soothed and restored to their normal condition and I felt like a new man. But the greatest blessing was the mental improvement. I began to read and digest, to formulate new plans, to take interest in my law practice, which began to come back to me as soon as my clients realized that I was again myself. After a lapse of ten years I ride horse back every day without fa-
