ANTICS OF LIGHTNING

SOME OF ITS QUEER FREAKS IN PENNSYLVANIA AND OHIO.

A Lancaster Man Ran Across Some Experiences In the Buckeye State That Beat Anything He Had Seen at Home-Havoc Among the Sheep-In Big Oil Valley.

I was once driving over the Martic hills, in the lower part of this county, with my wife and baby, flying from a thunderstorm while and baby, flying from a thunderstorm that was coming up rapidly in the valley, but I only did not escape from the storm, but ran right into another one equally heavy on the very summit of the ridge. When the two storms traveling in opposite directions met directly over our heads, streaks and balls of fire began playing account like the activities and consider of around like the spitting and exploding off-shoots of a miscellaneous collection of Fourth of July pyrotechnics. Lightning danced and flashed on every bit of metal there was in my horse's harness, whirled around with the tires on all four v-heels and ran about and zigzagged everywhere about the buggy frame, until we were lit erally sitting in a fiery chariot drawn by a horse incased in flaming harness.

Neither myself, my wife nor child suffered the slightest physical injury or inconven-ience from that awful play of electricity about us, and the horse seemed to be improved by it, but the nervous strain on us all was terrible. That extraordinary elec-trical disturbance lasted at least a quarter of an hour.
Well, I thought that a little the queerest sort of an experience with lightning that any one ever had or was likely to have, but I have just come back from a visit to Ohio, and I want to say that that experience of mine might have been the boss queer one up to this summer, but it isn't any more. I ran across some others in Ohio that can beat it. Take the one, for instance, at Bailyville.

got to Bailyville at about noon one day. A thunderstorm had just passed over that locality, and the clouds had nearly all "No one knows except myself the amount of suffering I endured for upward of four years, from what I was told was catarrh of the stomach." The speaker was Mr. J. P. Fox, one of the broken away or rolled to the southward. The sun had come out and all uneasiness on account of the storm had passed away—for thunderstorms in that region are nearly always attended by more or less damagewhen the most terrific thunderclap ever heard there or elsewhere, so close to the earth that the earth trembled as if from an earthquake, and preceded not more than a second by a flash of lightning of blinding sharpness, broke from the cloudless noonday sky. The sudden appearance and terrible nature of the startling phenomenon par-alyzed the farming community with alarm, and it was several minutes before any one ventured forth to see what damage had been done by the thunderbolt.

Some very amazing things were discovered. In a field on the edge of the village a large flock of sheep were pasturing. The sheep had all huddled together as sheep will during a thunderstorm, and were still huddled when the surprising clap came. When the owner of the sheep went to the field to see if anything had befallen his flock, he found every sheep standing just as they had huddled in the storm, but out of the 40 in the flock 18 were dead. Not one of the dead sheep had fallen to the ground. That was strange enough, but the 18 dead sheep were black sheep, all the others being white and unburt. Each dead sheep had a hole in the back of its neck around which the wool was burned away.

On a farm a short distance from the village a big flock of sheep had gathered in a circular bunch during the storm, and every outside sheep was killed, 20 in all, and all white fleeced. On that same farm, but in another field, was a small flock of sheep. all white except one, which was a big black ram. The ewes all huddled about the ram better view of life, the gnawing sensa-tions in my stomach disappeared, I ceased to belch up gas and had no feel-ings of vomiting after eating, the sore-ness in my throat went away, and, well, within a month I ventured out of the house. I kept on with the pills, and— well as well as while the storm raged, and when the thun-derclap came the ram was killed, no harm befalling one of the other sheep. More than that, the ram's fleece had been turned by the shock as white as that of any other sheep in the flock. That was all the damage that was reported during the hour I was in Bailyville, but it was enough to con vince me that Ohio lightning knew a few tricks that Pennsylvania lightning hadn't My friend Simon Frey lives at Big Oil tribute my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can use my Valley with his wife and 7-weeks-old baby. One day Simon was hurrying home from the valley trying to get there before a name if you want to, and I shall be pleased to tell of the great benefits I have derived from the use of the big thunderstorm that was coming up caught him. The rain began falling before he got there, and was coming down for certain when he drove into his barn. Simon ple are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenec-tady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never stood in the barn door waiting for the rain to slack up, when his house was struck by lightning. It seemed to hit both chimneys at once, and a streak of fire ran from one chimney along the peak of the roof, and midway between the two chimneys it met another streak of fire that was flashing along the peak from the other chimney, or, rather, where the chimney had been, for both chimneys had been knocked into brick dust by the lightning. When the two flery currents met in the center of the ridge pole, there was an explosion like the discharge of a cannon, and a fountain of bluish flame that threw off snapping and zigzagging sparks and jets of fire, shot up into the air at least 10 feet. Then all was over, the whole exhibition lasting not more than three seconds.

Simon was only three rods away from the house, but felt not the slightest effects of the terrible shock. He ran to the house, not knowing what horrifying sight might await him there, as it seemed impossible that his wife and baby could have escaped death beneath that terrible electrical bombardment. But they had, and after the first shock of his fright was over Simon couldn't do anything else but lie down and almost burst with laughter, the lightning had brought about so ludicrous a situation in the house. Mrs. Frey was sitting on the kitchen table, her head resting against the wall. In one hand she held a rolling pin while the other was buried to the wrist in a roll of dough. She was covered with flour from head to foot. The baby lay in a basket of newly washed clothes in a far corner of the kitchen, yelling at the top of its lungs. The baby's cradle was turned upside down in the center of the room Aside from a severe nausea that troubled Mrs. Frey all the rest of the day, neither she nor the baby suffered any ill effects from their extraordinary experience. - Lancaster (Pa.) Letter in New York Sun.

A Bit of Realistic Acting.

Henry Irving's story of Charlotte Cush-man gives you a better idea of the methods and style of this great artist than a dozen impersonal and well padded essays would. She was acting Meg Merrilies. In one scene in answer to her appeal for money, told me a week ago that if you were alive he, personating an important character in you would come out on Wednesday and the piece, hands her his purse filled with spend the day with me. You didn't come; the broken crockery which is generally used for stage gold. One day Miss Cushman hence I concluded that you were dead suggested gently to him the superior real-ism of opening the purse, selecting a coin and giving it to her. No matter how mag-nificent it might look it was hardly nat-ural for a gentleman to hand over a purse Mrs. — a mean rogue and so terminated the mortuary joke, in which I full of money to a crazy beggar. -San Franfailed to discover the humor."-Louis- cisco Argonaut.

THE POPULIST.

Why shouldn't there be a third party? It is true they disturb the smooth running of the regular organizations and sometimes overturn elections, but what is popular is founded on merit: As for instance, among founded on merit: As for instance, among all the remedies used for sprains and bruises. St. Jacobs Oil is the most popular because it is known to be the best; hence it is the Populist in medicine. The more because it cures so promptly and surely. There is no crippling from sprain where this old remedy is used. It imparts new life and strength and the pain vanishes. Truly it is a Populist.

The Marquise Lanza of New York has some fine diamonds and some Mexican garnets which resemble rubies. She is also the owner of a scarfpin which formerly belonged to the French prince imperial, who was killed by the Zulus.

An Eager and a Nipping Wind,

A continuous down pour of rain, inclement weather, generally in winter and spring, are unfavorable to all classes of invalids. But warmth and activity infused into the circulation counteracts these ininto the circulation counteracts these influences and interpose a defense against them. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, most thorough and effective of stomachics and ton'cs, not only enriches the blod, but accelerates its circulation. For a chill, or premonitory symptoms of rheumatism and kidney complaint, particularly prevalent at these seasons, it is the best possible remedy. It is also invaluable for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation and nervousness. Never set out on a winter or spring journey without it. Elderly persons and the delicate and convalescent are greatly aided by it.

"There's a good deal that's swell about Cholly Cadkins," said one girl. "Yes." replied the other; "the only trouble is that most of it has gone to his head."

EXPOSURE TO CHANGES OF TEM-PERATURE.

Public men are constantly liable to danger arising from sudden changes of temperature; sometimes from heat to cold, sometimes the reverse.

Henry Thorne, Traveling Secretary of Henry Thorne, Traveling Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., writes from Exeter Hall, Strand, London, February 2d, 1888:
"I desire to bear my testimony to the value of Allcock's Porous Plasters. I have used them for pains in the back and side arising from rheumatic and other causes never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting. Those engaged as I am in public work which involves exposure to sudden changes of temperature, will do we'l to keep a supply of Allcock's Porous Plasters in their portmanteaus.

Brandreth's Pills act upon the whole system.
