Today, all who knew Mrs. Lyman Smith are full of grief at their personal loss, yet in their sadness they are conscious of the blessing her friendship brought to them, and that the influence she ever held in the community was one of the best factors in our pioneer settlement. ## In Memmory of Ellis Morse,

Could tears and prayers have held him here,
He had not passed away;
Could love have bound him to our home,
He had been ours today.
But tears and prayers and love were vain
The messenger to stay.

Though wearly the day goes by,
And drearly falls the night,
And when the morning comes again,
We do not bless the light;
Though change, nor thought, nor earnest Bring back our lost delight.

Still on this darkness of our grief,
There shines a distant star,
And Heaven's own luster makes it bright,
E'en though it shines afar.
Our sweet, loving little Ellis
Is where the angels are.

Pain never more shall shade his brow, Nor tears his beauteous eyes, Nor grief the pure and toving lips, Whose musical cries

Are falling soft upon our ears, Like dear words from the skies.

Our Father, who in tender love, Hath taken from our care
Little Ellis, our fond heart loved so much,
Hear this our earnest prayer—
Our loss, such wonderous gain to him,
O, give us strength to bear.
