

Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 3, 1896.

The citizens of the eastern part of Wasco county have been at work circulating petitions to the acting commissioner of the general land office, praying that the order prohibiting sheep and other stock from grazing on the Cascade forest reserve be rescinded, and the petitions are being generally signed. It looks as if the sheep will be permitted to continue to range on Mt. Hood, to the great detriment of the settlers at the upper end of this valley. They will continue to pollute the sources of our streams and eventually endanger our water supply. No one seems disposed to oppose the sheep ranging on the mountain, outside of Hood River people and our friend W. G. Steel. Our senators and representatives are being asked to use their influence at Washington to open the reserve to the sheep, and they are using it to that end. Sheep men are few in number but they seem to have a strong pull with legislators and those in authority and generally manage to get what they want.

The La Grande land office officials publish in the Heppner Gazette the following extract from the law in regard to cutting and disposing of timber by landowners on public lands: "Timber land embraced in a homestead, or other entry not consummated, may be cleared in order to cultivate the land and improve the premises, but for no other purpose. If, after clearing for the land for cultivation, there remains more, there is no objection to the settler disposing of the same. But the question whether the land is being cleared of its timber for legitimate purposes is a question of facts which is liable to be raised at any time. If the timber is cut and removed for any other purpose, it will subject the entry to cancellation, and the person who cut it will be liable to civil suit for the value of said timber, and also a criminal prosecution under section 2461 of the Revised Statutes."

A fruit man of California has discovered a new pear tree pest. He wrote to Mr. Sargent, formerly secretary of the state board of horticulture, who referred the matter to the board. The writer says: "We have a new pest in the pear orchards. At least it is new in the orchards, but we have known of its existence on the French seedlings imported by nurserymen for propagating several years. It is the pear-root aphid, and is supposed to be as fatal to the pear tree as the phylloxera has been to the grape vine. The trees where this pest has been discovered have made little or no growth the past season, and on examining the small, fibrous roots of the trees, the minute aphids, with its white excretions, is found in large numbers. This is quite another thing from the woolly aphid of the pear and apple. As far as we can learn there is no remedy, and we would like to know how generally it is distributed over the coast."

Ellis and Hermann voted with the democrats and populists and 45 other republicans against the bond bill. Senator Mitchell it is expected will vote against it in the senate. Senator McBride dodged the vote on Allen's resolution, which showed the relative strength of the two parties in the senate on the silver question, and so we do not yet know but that our delegation in congress is solid for the free-silver theory of the populists.

The populists held a mass meeting in Portland last Sunday. Representatives of the party from different parts of the state claimed the prospects were good for carrying the state. Multnomah and Clackamas were claimed for the party of Penoyer, and one man from Eastern Oregon claimed every county east of the Cascades. This claim of course takes in Wasco. There was no representative from Hood River to promise a solid vote from our three precincts.

The populists of Oregon are beginning to stir for the approaching campaign. We don't see why the populists can't join in re-electing Ellis and Hermann to congress, who are good enough populists on the main question, and thus save the wear and tear of separate party organization.—Oregonian.

The latest official statistics of the internal revenue department reveal that in the prohibition state of Iowa there are 636 more people engaged in the sale of liquor than are engaged in both the manufacture and sale of liquors in the state of Kentucky.

The contractors at the Cascades say the locks will be completed not later than March 1st. Arrangements have been made, it is said, to allow the Regulator the honor of being the first boat to pass through the locks.

Senator Mitchell of Oregon is favorably mentioned by the Eastern press for the nomination for vice president on the republican ticket.

President Cleveland has announced the appointment of the Venezuela boundary commission, as follows: David J. Brewer of Kansas, associate justice of the U. S. supreme court; Richard H. Alvey of Maryland, chief justice of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia; Andrew D. White of New York; Frederic R. Coudert of New York; and Daniel C. Gilman of Maryland. Brewer and White are republicans, Alvey and Coudert democrats, while Gilman has never figured in politics but is supposed to be a republican.

The editor of "Note and Comment" in the New Year's Oregonian says: "The married life of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Johnson of Iowa, is one of the longest on record. They recently celebrated the 61st anniversary of their wedding, which occurred in North Adams, Mass., in 1834; Mr. Johnson being 84 and his aged companion 78." A Hood River couple can beat this record for length of married life. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Rogers of Hood River were married in Roupsburg, N. Y., April 24, 1834. Mr. Rogers was born February 4, 1815, and his aged companion November 22, 1816. This worthy couple retain the use of all their faculties unimpaired, and both of them are able to attend to their habitual duties about their home. They came to Hood River in 1878.

The Salem Journal suggests that when the republican primaries are held in that congressional district that the names of all the candidates be printed on a little slip—a la Australian ballot—and let all the republican voters of the district say who their candidate shall be—the man receiving the largest vote to be the candidate without any convention.

The republicans have organized the United States senate. This makes that party responsible for all legislation enacted by the present congress, and it will also be held responsible for the failure of all needed legislation.

The secretary of the state horticultural society has issued a call for the annual meeting of the society, which will be held at Portland, Tuesday, January 14th.

Our School.
The board of directors of this district at their meeting last Friday evening, voted to have a wood engraving made of the new building, which is to be used as an illustration in the course of study which was adopted for the school at a previous meeting, and which will be printed as soon as the engraving can be made. The engraving will be made direct from a photograph by the Electric-light Engraving company of New York city and will be of the highest style of art.

The board adopted three or four resolutions at the same meeting which are for the government of pupils and teachers in the school and relate more especially to examinations and grades. The resolutions are in substance that any pupil who absents himself from the regular examinations shall not be permitted to enter his classes again till he has passed the examination as required by the other pupils.

The second resolution provides that any pupil who wilfully or purposely refuses to do his best in an examination shall be dropped from his grade.

The third resolution provides that when any pupil fails to obtain a general average of 70 credits out of a possible hundred in all the branches in which he is examined, he shall be transferred to a lower grade, and if necessary to a lower department.

A further resolution provides that no resident pupil of district No. 3, under 21 years of age, shall be permitted to take any of the higher branches taught in the school until the pupil has completed the eight-year course of study which will be provided for the school in the near future, and shall have received a diploma or certificate to that effect. This last resolution goes into effect after June, 1896.

Rev. J. A. Fennell.
EDITOR GLACIER: Rev. J. A. Fennell, the Indian evangelist, left for Eugene Thursday morning last week. There was a good degree of interest in the meetings held while he was with us, and the town is the better for his having been here. Whatever may have been said disparaging of him either by professed Christians or others, one thing is very sure, there was displayed on his part true Christian fortitude—a prayer for all those who would persecute.

Bro. Fennell left a great many warm friends both in and out of the churches, and we will welcome him at any time, for we know that he is consecrated to his life work, and is giving his life fully to the cause he has espoused.

He has promised to return some time in the future and give us a lecture on his early experience with the Indians, and we predict for him a hearty welcome. The history of his life is a romance, twenty years of which was spent an Indian captive.

A Great Invention.

Moro Observer.
Elder Neece has a friend in the East who has solved the problem of how to make a cow give down her milk. He has been loth to impart the secret of his new discovery to the public until he had given it a fair and impartial trial and was sure of its success in every particular. This has been fully demonstrated, as it took but two applications to cure his own cow of the habit it had fallen into of holding up her milk (for a higher price), and now we give it to the public. Take a board (not a hotel or restaurant board, but a common, every day, ordinary piece) about four inches wide by 18 inches long, shape it into a paddle, and through this, a few inches from the wide end, drive two six-penny wire nails, opposite each other and about two inches apart. There's your milk producer, and a very simple one it is, but of no account unless you understand its use. The directions, as given us by Mr. Neece, are as follows: "When the cow refuses to give down her milk all that is necessary is to take the paddle, place the nail points one on each side of the bovine's spinal column and give it a vigorous scratching, drawing the paddle along the aforesaid column, but not pressing hard enough to wound the hide. If you have ever noticed, there is generally a slight elevation in a cow's spine when she is holding up her milk. The scratching process will reduce the "elevation" almost immediately, and appears to loosen up all the animal's cords and muscles, making it impossible for her to hang out the milk." This is a great discovery, and has "put the inventor in the front ranks as one of the world's greatest benefactors. We heard one man say today that he was going to fix up one of the paddles and send a board of directors for the ensuing year, while another one is figuring on trying the experiment upon a friend of whom he wants to borrow $10. However, laying all jokes aside, Mr. Neece says it works like a charm and is so simple and inexpensive that any one can give it a trial.

The Salem Statesman learns from persons who are in a position to know that the state tax levy for 1896 will be the largest for several years. It is stated that it will not be less than seven mills.

Notwithstanding that this year has been an unusually dull year for business throughout the upper country, the earnings of the O. R. & N. Co. are said to have been greater in 1895 than they were in 1894.—Mountaineer.

The maddest woman in town is a married lady, who on a recent night sat up until 1 o'clock waiting for her husband to come home from lodge. Oh, no, she wasn't going to say anything to him. Finally, utterly worn out by her long and fruitless vigil, she went to her room to turn in and found the missing husband in bed, fast asleep, where he had gone immediately after supper instead of going to lodge. All that woman is mad about now is that she can't get into the right position to kick herself.—Prineville Review.

The coyote and wildcat scalps are piling in pretty rapidly, and quite a pull from the treasury will be made after the next meeting on Jan 4th. The scheme is working admirably, and it is to be hoped that all the members of the union who have not yet paid their assessments to the treasurer, Mr. Frank Irvine, will do so at once. It is surprising the amount of wildcat scalps that are coming in, and sheep men inform us that these brutes are nearly as much damage to their flocks as the coyotes themselves.—Antelope Herald.

Why is it that criminals, as a rule are better fed than many law abiding people? Every one in awhile we read about the fine turkey dinner given at the jail in large cities while there are hundreds of poor people who do not know where to go for a crust of bread. It does not seem to be any punishment to feed prisoners on the fat of the land. Fewer luxurious dinners and more hard work might be a diet to try.—Columbian.

C. A. Shurtz, who has had a good opportunity to know, says there is an increase of fifty per cent in fall-sown grain this year over any previous year and that the condition is a hundred per cent better. The abundant snowfall, even this early, indicates that the moisture will be sufficient to secure a good crop next season.—Arlington Record.

In making nominations for members of the next legislature, care should be taken to choose persons favorable to the re-enactment of the mortgage tax law and the clause for the exemption of honest indebtedness. The repeal of these statutes has worked much more hardship on the tax payers of Oregon than any other legislative enactment for years.—Jacksonville Times.

Williams and Reed, two Hood River hunters, treed a bear after following it over the divide two days, then went to Portland to consult the U. S. district attorney about shooting it, as the bear was within the limits of the 50,000,000 acre reservation of Hoke Smith's partner—Bowers.—Observer.

The Mountaineer says: Mr. A. Buchler was at the Cascades Monday and spent an hour looking over the locks. He says the three miles of pipe for leading water to the hydraulic which will operate the gates has been laid, and the apparatus for working the gates is now complete. One week will suffice to complete the rock work at the lower end of the canal, and the blasting at the upper end is being pushed as rapidly as possible. The contractors will begin dredging in a short time, so that when the rock work is completed the canal will be open for the passage of boats.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailoute, druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles around, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle and began its use, and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at the Hood River Pharmacy.
