

Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, 1896.

The governor is being asked by some of the leading taxpayers of the state to call a special session of the legislature to undo some of the bad legislation of the last regular session, reduce the appropriations and relieve the overburdened taxpayers. It is rather late now to call an extra session to reduce taxes for this year. In a few days the tax rolls will be in the hands of the county sheriffs for collection. Besides, it would be unwise to risk another session of the present legislature. Better wait till the new one is elected in June.

The democrats are fighting the tariff bill the republicans have before congress for all they are worth, their plan of raising more revenue being to place an extra tax of one dollar on each keg of beer manufactured in this country. As beer is not a democratic beverage their willingness to have it bear a high tax is patriotic in the extreme.—Oregon City Enterprise. The inference here intended is probably that democrats take something stronger; otherwise it would be a base slander on the grand old democratic party.

Portland is overrun with thieves and highwaymen. Pedestrians are held up and robbed even in daylight. A street car on the Oregon City electric line was held up one evening and the passengers made to give up their money and valuables. The prevalence of so many criminal characters in the city is thought to result from the cheap railroad and steamship fares from San Francisco.

Joe Brant, editor of the Vancouver Columbian, has gone to Florida to attend the editorial convention which meets at St. Augustine January 21st. During his absence his wife will run the paper, and Joe is apprehensive lest she is such an improvement that he will be voted out of a job. It will serve him right after not sending his better half to the convention.

State Horticultural Society.
The meeting of the state horticultural society in Portland showed a lack of interest in the work of the society even on the part of its members, only ten being present. The address of the president, Hon. E. L. Smith, after enumerating some of the difficulties under which the society labored and showing the work of the past year, concluded as follows:

"The past year's experience has amply demonstrated to me the fact that the greatest impediment to progressive, successful fruit culture is the apathy and indifference of those engaged in the pursuit.

"Indeed, I feel that during the year we have taken a step backward, not only in the work of our society, but in the removal of the office of the state board from the metropolis to a place where it is not readily accessible to the eastern portion of the state nor to those coming from other states with a view of engaging in the fruit industry.

"Your chairman does not share in the opinion that there is no field of labor for a state horticultural society in Oregon. Many of us who are devoting time and means to orcharding would welcome and find invaluable the methods and experience of other growers.

The state horticultural society, in this as well as other states, should be the vehicle of important educational work. Mistakes would be avoided, errors corrected and failures averted, if we could popularize the experimental work of the general government and the more valuable field work carried on in our state. Artificial fertilizers are rapidly coming into use, and their sale should be subject to state regulation, so that we may know what we buy. Our laws and the enforcement of them relative to the interests of the fruit industry are new, and hence imperfect, and the state horticultural society should be the place for critical discussion of these and kindred subjects of legislation of the greatest importance.

"It is doubtful if any portion of our country can show a greater percentage of arable soil adapted to gardening, and I use the word in its comparative sense, than Oregon; and it will indeed be lamentable if we neglect any means to promote this most promising industry."

From Mount Hood.
Mt. Hood, Jan. 14.—A progressive whist party at "Uncle" Dave Cooper's, the other night, helped to while away the monotony of rural life for some of the boys.

Tomlinson Bros. lost a horse last week, which breaks up their logging team.

Henry Tomlinson, the popular proprietor of the Mt. Hood Mills, lost a valuable gold watch last week. It was found again after lying in the snow for three days.

Mrs. E. Graves of Oregon City was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leasure this week.

John H. Fredenburg has a young stallion which he has succeeded in curing of the dread staggers. With his consent we will give you his method of treatment:

Directions—Take a sufficient quantity of cascara, or bear berry bark, to make a strong tea. Drop into a quart whisky bottle from 2 to 4 pills of asa-fetida the size of a pea. Fill the bottle with the tea, luke warm. Drench the horse night and morning until the bowels move freely. Bathe the head with some strong liniment. Feed carrots and shorts, with a little asa-fetida. Do not feed any hay of any kind. Give plenty of exercise and keep the horse in a warm place.

D. R. Cooper made a small shipment of apples last week. Several parties are having slashing done this winter. Their intentions are to increase their orchards in the near future, which is not a bad idea.

Promising New Fruits.

The yearly report of the pomologist of the government agricultural department is out. Among the very few new apples recommended by him are found Capt. Cook's seedlings, the Kliekita and Yakima. He describes them as follows:

Kliekita (H. C. Cook, White Salmon, Wash.)—Originated about 1876. Size large; roundish; prolate, ribbed; cavity medium, regular, marked with green and slight russet; stem one-half inch, stout, fleshy; basin medium, irregular, marked with shallow furrows, calyx segments wide, of medium length, converging or slightly reflexed; eye large, closed or partially open; surface very smooth, glossy; color yellow, washed with carmine and striped with crimson; dots minute to medium, yellow and russet, indented; flesh, yellowish, coarse grained, tender, moderately juicy; core large, conical, clasping open; flavor very mild sub acid; quality good to very good. Season winter.

Yakima (H. C. Cook, White Salmon, Wash.)—A seedling of Baldwin. Size large; roundish conical, ribbed; cavity large, deep, marked with russet or green; stem three-fourths inch, moderately stout; basin large, deep, irregular, marked with deep corrugations; calyx segments wide, of medium length, covering closely; eye small to medium, closed; surface very smooth; color yellow, washed with carmine, splashed and striped with crimson; dots numerous, yellow, indented; skin thin; flesh yellow, moderately fine, juicy; core large, conical, clasping, nearly closed; flavor sub-acid; quality good. Season winter. A very handsome apple, with form and color resembling Tompkins King, and with texture and flavor quite like Baldwin.

Mr. Wm. Tillett of the Hood River nursery has a fine lot of the Yakima apple trees for sale.

Indian Citizenship.

Judge Bellinger's recent decision in regard to Indian citizenship has called forth the following earnest protest from a squaw, addressed to the East Oregonian:

Mr newspaper man—Me poor old kloochman and no much understand what make good injun sityson. One time my husband be very good man, fetch plenty deer meat, catch plenty fish, and papoose all fat. Now Judge Belyingger he appertise in papers all ingins sityson. My husband he go to town, no get meat, no get anything only whisky. He come home throw blanket in fire, hit papoose on head, kick kloochman in stumacke and say: "Whoop! mi sityson, by God, hoorah for Judge Belyingger!! Kloochman no much like ingin sityson and wants catch deorse and marry ingin who not sityson. You newspaper man, me want you tell big ingin father in Washington he make ingin sityson no more or he kill ingin and papoose too. KLOOCHMAN.

It has long been thought by poultrymen that boiled potatoes made good chicken feed, but such experts as Mrs. Rorer, the great authority on foods and cooking, Dr. Edson and Mrs. Speed now say that boiled potatoes will give poultry the dyspepsia and render their lives miserable.

The Heppner Gazette takes last spring calves on subscription and the Fossil Journal coyote scalps.

The Moro Observer says Sherman county did not ship a convict to the penitentiary last year and has none behind the state's iron gratings at the present time.

The state tax levy for 1896 is 4.8 mills. The sum to be raised is $693,338. Wasco county pays a bounty of $1 on coyote and wild cat scalps. Up to Wednesday of last week 134 had been received at the county clerk's office.

Mr. W. E. Chamberlain of Troutdale has offered to give $25 towards the starting of a public library in that town.

The total amount of taxes collected by the sheriff of Wasco county during the year 1895 was $88,487.40. This includes state, county, school district and municipal taxes collected on the roll of 1895 and delinquent rolls passed over from former years.

Mayor Brooks received a letter from Day Bros., last week, stating they would be in Goldendale in the near future to further examine the proposed route of the railroad to Lyle, and if favorably impressed with the situation as at present, they will sign a contract to build the road, providing our citizens grade twenty miles on this end of the line. A letter was also received from parties connected with the Vancouver road, stating they were coming to look over the route. Eastern parties are figuring on building a line from the mouth of Rock creek through the valley to the mouth of the Kliekita, to use the same as a local and portage road combined. The prospects are bright for rail communication with the river at no distant day.—Sentinel.

Hood River Valley.

(Essay Read by Miss Bertha M. Warren at Frankton School.)
The pleasant little valley of Hood River is situated about sixty miles east from Portland and twenty miles west from the Dalles. From almost any point in the valley can be had a view of the snow-capped peaks of Hood and Adams, which rise to the south and north, standing like sentinels keeping guard over the peaceful valley.

From Mount Hood flows the clear and beautiful stream from which the valley takes its name. From the mountain two branches start, called the East and West Forks, flowing for a distance of about fifteen miles before uniting to form the main stream, which finally pours its waters into the great Columbia, the northern boundary of the valley. The valley has many attractions for the visitor and tourist. The snow-capped mountains are more accessible from Hood River valley than any other point, Mt. Hood being 28 miles distant from the railroad station and Mt. Adams 35. The scenery is always attractive and the orchards and strawberry patches in the fruiting season lend additional charm to the view.

Ditches are being taken out of the mountain streams to irrigate the constantly increasing berry patches. Some of the orchards are grown without irrigation, especially on the East Side, where the soil is more adapted for grain raising and where the farmers generally raise wheat for their own flour, which is ground at Harbison Bros' mill. This mill is picturesquely situated on Neal creek, a good-sized stream which flows in a northwesterly direction and empties into Hood river a few miles above the mouth. This mill was brought to the valley 17 years ago by Mr. D. D. Rogers, now an old gentleman over 80. When owned by Mr. Rogers the mill was situated at the falls of Phelps creek, near the old state road, where at one time it was thought the town would be located. On this road, at about the same time, the first store building in the valley was built and owned by Hon. E. L. Smith. When the railroad was built and the station located on its present site, the town of Hood River was started. Mr. Smith moved his store there, and it is now the oldest store in town and is owned by Mr. George P. Crowell.

The fruit growers of the valley have formed a union, and through it most of the fruit is shipped. During the summer and fall of 1895 the shipments of strawberries and prunes were considerable. Many apples are now being shipped, but this industry is still in its infancy. Young apple orchards are numerous and more are constantly being set out. The further up the valley one goes the better the apple land is found to be. Near the falls of Hood river the country is as yet thinly settled, it being mostly heavily timbered. When it is cleared, however, it makes the best orchard land in the valley.

Hood River is becoming quite a noted summer resort for people from the city, who come during the summer months and scatter through the valley, some going to Mt. Hood, others to the falls or to Lost lake, near the mountain. Any one going to the falls cannot help but notice the grandeur and beauty of the water as it falls over the rocks into a deep basin below. This basin is said to be bottomless and is called "The Devil's Punch Bowl." A new bridge is being constructed just above the falls, and when completed will be quite an advantage to the public. Fish abound in the lakes, rivers and smaller streams.

Several saw mills are located in the mountains. Davenport Bros. & Co. have a long flume, extending a distance of about eight miles from the mills to their planer near the Columbia, through which they flume railroad ties and rough lumber to be dressed for building purposes. Hood River valley has a bright future. When a complete system of irrigation is reached and all the young orchards now being set are in full bearing, along with the strawberries and other fruits, train loads of fruit will be shipped from its borders. And with such a delightful climate, beautiful scenery and in fact everything that goes to make a peaceful and happy community, Hood River is sure to become a noted place.

Frankton Notes.
Eben Boorman gave a party to his friends at his home last Friday evening. About forty young people were present and spent the evening in games, after which refreshments were served and all returned home at a late hour after a very pleasant evening. Those present, as far as the writer remembers, were the Misses Annie and Frederica Berger, Cora and Daisy Fuller, Ella Isenberg, Bertha Warren, Mellie Rigby, Leura Wickham, Clara Blythe, Bernice Foley, May Boorman, Lela and Nora Boorman, Grace Campbell, Mary Foley, and Messrs. E. A. Hayden, F. H. Isenberg, Walter Isenberg, Alfred Ingalls, Eben and George Boorman, Antone Frohn, W. L. Ellis, A. J. Eastman, M. J. Foley, I. L. Ellis, Elmer Campbell, John and Frank Rogers and Thos. Calkins.

E. D. Calkins has opened up his harness shop and is now ready for business. If you want a new harness, or an old harness repaired, call on him. Mr. Calkins is a first-class workman. A dance was held in the commodious residence of Mr. William Tillett last Saturday night. The house was filled and the guests "tipped the light fantastic" till the small hours of the morning. Everybody enjoyed themselves immensely. Good music was furnished by Mr. Charles Tubbs of Chenoweth and Mr. Marion Loy. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Tillett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tubbs, Mr. and Mrs. Burns Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Eastman, the Misses Cora and Daisy Fuller, Annie and Frederica Berger, Liza and Amy Rogers, and Messrs. Howard and Will Isenberg, G. O. Rich, E. A. Hayden, John Castner, James Stranahan, Antone Frohn, Ed. Birth, John and Frank Rogers, Marion Loy, Frank and Archie Pierce.

Burns Jones is building a two-story residence upon his ten-acre tract just south of the old Keene place. His brother Levy, while helping with the carpenter work Wednesday, fell from the roof and was considerably bruised. Mr. R. J. Ellis presented his father, William Ellis, with a handsome buggy, which he recently purchased while in Portland.
