A poor woman came to the parson of the parish with the request: "Please, pass'n! my ou'd sow be took cruel bad. I wish now, you'd be so good as to come and say a prayer over her." "A prayer! Goodness preserve us! I cannot come and pray over a pig-a pig, my dear Sally-that is not possible.

"Her be cruel bad, groaning, and won't eat her meat. If her dies, pass'n -whativer shall we do i' the winter wi'out beacon sides and ham? Oh, dear! Do'y, now, pass'n, come and say a prayer over my old sow."

"I really, really must not degrade my sacred office. Sally! indeed, I must not!

"Oh, pass'n! do'y, now!" and the good creature began to sob.

The parson was a tender-hearted man, and tears were too much. He agreed to go to the cottage, see the pig, and do what he coud.

Acordingly, he visited the patient, which lay groaning in the stye.

The woman gazed wistfully at the pastor, and waited for the prayer. Then the clergyman raised his right hand, pointed with one finger at the sow and said solemnly: "If thou livest, O pig! then thou livest. If thou diest, O pig! then thou diest."

Singularly enough, the sow was better that same evening, and ate a little wash. She was well, and had recovered her appetite wholly next day.

Now, it happened, some months after this that the rector fell very ill, with a quinsy that nearly choked him. He could not swallow, he could hardly breathe. His life was in imminent danger.

Sally was a visitor every day at the rectory, and was urgent to see the sick man. She was refused admission, but pressed so vehemently that finally she was suffered-just to see him, but she was warned not to speak to him or expect him to speak, as he was unable to utter a word.

She was conducted to the sick room, and the door thrown open. There she beheld the pastor lying in bed, groaning, almost in extremities.

Raising her hand, she pointed at him with one finger and said: "If thou livest, O pass'n! then thou livest! If thou diest, O pass'n! then thou diest." The effect on the sick man was-an explosion of laughter that burst the quinsy, and his recovery.-Sunday Magazine.

What Water Can Do.

The effect of the hydraulic motor, which is now used for the purpose of removing masses of earth, well-nigh passes belief.

A stream of water issuing from a pipe six inches in diameter, with a fall behind it of three hundred and seventyfive feet, will carry away a solid rock weighing a ton or more to a distance of fifty or one hundred feet. The velocity of the stream is terrific, and the column of water projected is so solid that if a crowbar or other heavy object be thrust against it the impinging object will be hurled a considerable distance.

By this stream of water a man would be instantly killed if he came into contact with it, even at a distance of two hundred feet.

At two hundred feet from the nozzle a six-inch stream, with three hundred and seventy-five feet fall, projected

QUEERLY NAMED.

Some of Our Puritan Ancestors Had

Remarkable Baptismal Titles. The quaintness of the Puritan names of piety-not Bible names, but words or phrases of religious import-has long been recognized. In the days of Cromwell, contemporary jokes were rife among the "Malignants," in which such worthy Roundheads as "Fight-the-good-fight-of-faith Jones," "Help-fromon-High Robbins," and "Faint-not- Pilsbery," figured prominently, and were treated with scant respect. The names themselves were not burlesqued. They were so queer it would have been difficult to do so.

The longest and strangest of the combinations in use in Old England did not, fortunately, ever become popular in New England. Nevertheless the American colonies had their share. Our own Dr. Holmes has recognized this in his ballad of Puritan times, beginning with the father's invitation to his little son: "Come hither, God-be-Glorified, and sit upon my knee."

And it was in a much later period than the colonial that a worthy person fourished, commonly known as Tribby Clap, but whose whole name was Through-much-tribulation-we-enter-thekingdom-of-Heaven Clap. The brief surname follows its lengthy prefix as surprisingly as a clap of thunder.

But, apart from the rarer and longer combination names, any one reading much among old town records, or expert in antiquarian lore, is sure to come across names odd enough to make him pause to wonder whether the ancestors who bestowed them were so singularly sober-minded as to be without the sense of humor, or so excessively humorous as to name their children in jest.

Some of the names read remarkably like puns. For instance, one of a group of her ancestors to whom Mrs. Alice Morse Earle dedicates a recent book on "Colonial Dames and Goodwives" is Mistress Silence Heard. One wonders whether Goodman and Goodwife Heard noticed the effect of this conjunction when they named their baby. or did they do it on purpose?

Here are a few other names of the same kind, all duly recorded among the births and deaths, wills and land transfers of a few little New England towns: "Wait Long," "Temperance Waters," "Righteous Hope," "Lovey Sweet," "Submit Willing," and "Thankful Hart."

"Expect Little" of one village list offsets "Hope Much" of another. "Lively Smart" should certainly have been a forward child, but he died in infancy. Whenever such a stream is turned against a bank it cuts and burrows it in every direction, hollowing out great caves and causing tons of earth to melt and fall and be washed away in the sluices.

Indicating Weather Changes.

In many places the crow is looked on as a weather prophet of the highest distinction. On the approach of rain a whole community will rise from their nests or perches, and wheel about for some time, longer or shorter, according to the duration of the coming storm. The peacock screams loudly when rain is coming. Swallows fly high in fair weather, and when they fly low, skimming the surface of the earth, wet weather is at hand. Gulls and other far-flying birds do not venture far from home when heavy weather is approaching. Rain may be expected when ducks bathe. Geese chatter loudly when a storm approaches. Sea-birds fly early and far to eastward when fine weather may be expected to hold, but they fly inland in search of food on the approach of storms. Bad weather is heralded by wild-fowl leaving the marshes for higher localities. The guinea hen flutters its wings and gives fearful screams on a change in the atmosphere.

Taking Advantage of Science. An ingenious man has invented a device for feeding his horse, and he does it with one of the ordinary alarm clocks. For instance, if the horse is to have its morning feed of grain at 5 o'clock the alarm is set, and when the morning comes the horse gets its breakfast before its owner's eyes are open. It is so arranged that the alarm pulls the slide, letting the grain run through a sluice to the manger.

Locomotives Are Heavier.

Ten years ago the heaviest locomotive used on the Pennsylvania express trains weighed forty to forty-eight tons. Now the through express trains are each hauled by an engine that weighs from sixty-five to seventy tons.

a woman looks after both nurse and cubs, the task usually falling to the lot of the mistress of the caravan. When born the lions are like young cats. The little family is usually accommodated in a corner of the caravan, or in the trainer's private apartment. In their infancy the young llons are treated just like kittens. When they are able to walk they have the run of the place, play about, and seem to look for and enjoy the tit-bits and caresses that are bestowed upon them. They recognize for a long time the authority, so to speak, of the foster-mother, and are obedient to her wishes, even after they have considerably outgrown her in size.

He Had a Good Excuse.

A clergyman was on a Western trip for his health, and happened one Sunday to stop at a little Colorado inn, the keeper of which was also the superintendent of the local Sunday school. The superintendent was proud of his scholars, and persuaded his guest to attend that afternoon's session, and to put the about to undertake a new exploration pupils through a little examination. The of Somaliland under the auspices of a lateer did as desired, and wound up with a short discourse on profane swearing.

"I hope," he added, "that none of you ever indulge in that wicked practice. I am sure," he continued, turning to the head boy, a sparkling urchin of ten. "that you never do it. Do you, my little man?"

"No-o, sir, I don't. The other day I did call Bill Smith a cussed fool. But he is, you know."

Addition to Our Navy.

Another formidable ship has been added to the active list of the United States navy. The double turreted monitor Terror has gone into commission at the Brooklyn navy yard. She is heavily armored and has four ten-inch guns in her turrets which will throw steel projectiles with accuracy and effectiveness nine miles. The Terror has a low free-board and her turrets are low, for which reasons she will offer a poor target for hostile men-of-war. She could bring all four of her guns to bear on a ship which, at a considerable distance, would have great difficulty in hitting her at all.

When an industrious man makes a dollar by hard work, the loafer starts the story that he made at least ten dollars, and stole half of it.
