

Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1896.

While it is possible to set out trees at any time during the fall or early winter, when the ground is not frozen too hard, and still have them live, yet better results in every way will be secured by doing the work as soon as possible after the leaves have fallen. It is not a good plan to strip off the leaves or to take up the trees while the leaves are green. But, any time after a frost has killed the leaves, transplanting may be safely done. The ground should be plowed deep and thorough, and then harrowed into a good tilth. If this is done carefully it will lessen the work of fining the soil when setting out the trees. The ground should be marked out and a stake set where each tree is to be planted. In doing this it is always best to give the trees plenty of room. Thirty feet apart may seem quite a distance between apple trees, but it is none too far. In fact, many good growers plant them two rods apart. An item that should be looked after in good season is the ordering of the trees. Ascertain what varieties have done well in your locality, and plant largely of them. Do not risk much upon new, untried varieties. It requires several years for the trees to come into bearing, and if the variety does poorly, it will cause considerable loss. In planting a family orchard, a larger number of varieties is needed, in order to obtain a supply of fruit all through the year, than with a commercial orchard. Generally, for market, large, red, long-keeping, nice-looking winter apples will prove the most profitable. By having everything ready not only can the work be done better, but the chances of the trees growing will be greatly improved. If the work is worth doing at all it is worth doing under such conditions as will secure the best results.—Republic.

The population of this country in 1870 was 38,500,000. We then produced in round numbers 288,000,000 bushels of wheat. In 1895, with a population of 68,000,000, we produced 475,000,000 bushels of wheat. In 1891, with a population of 63,000,000, we produced 612,000,000 bushels of wheat. The production of other agricultural products increased in about the same proportion; but it is not merely the increase in the growth of wheat in the United States that has made a surplus of food commodities, as it has been increasing very rapidly in other countries of the world. South America has nearly trebled her product of wheat in that period. Russia has quite doubled her product of wheat, and the increase in India has been nearly as great. Food products raised on the farm have increased in excess of the population during the last generation fully 20 per cent, and this increase, with the general paralysis of industry and trade throughout the world that greatly lessens the consumption of the higher classes of food, causes the present low price of wheat and other farm products. The variation in the consumption of wheat per head in this country is as much as one bushel per capita, depending upon the ability of the industrial people to purchase it. There are, therefore, two causes now combined to reduce the price of wheat. One is the largest production the world has ever known, greatly outstripping the growth of population, and, second, the general inability of the poorer people to purchase it for consumption. They are compelled to live on cheaper commodities and thus do not become liberal consumers of farm products.—Philadelphia Times.

This is the time of year when most stock are made breechy. They are allowed to run on a dry pasture, get but little water and no green food. The hot dry weather places their systems in a condition to demand both water and green food in abundance, which demand the animal seeks to satisfy. They will do it, too, if there is not a very good fence surrounding the corn field or other green vegetation. Once started to breaking through a poor fence, there is no stopping them unless there is more than a good fence erected. See that the fences are good and that the stock have an abundance of green feed at least once a day.—Pacific Farmer.

August 19th, 121,240 packages of Michigan peaches were shipped to Chicago. Of these 110,400 were fifth-bushel baskets, 4,450 were half-bushel baskets, 3,400 were bushel crates, 950 were bushel baskets, and 2,040 were barrels.

The lumber company that leased the Clackamas river last spring failed to give the required bonds, and the lease has been revoked by the county court.

The third annual fruit fair of Spokane will open October 6th and continue for 12 days.

The horticultural editor of Garden and Field of South Australia says he has gradually been forced to the conclusion that it would have been better for the orchardists of that country to have kept down their apple trees to a little above half their present height. He would not plant more than 20 feet apart, and on good soil with an annual rainfall of 22 inches, not more than 16 feet apart. He says that in Tasmania growers plant their trees 16 feet apart and keep them in such shape that all the work of pruning and gathering can be done without step ladders. From orchards planted and treated in this way crops of from 200 to 400 bushels per acre are secured. On the other hand, in the United States the opinion of leading horticultural authorities tends towards giving the trees more room than usual, and 40 feet apart for apple trees is now recommended by many.—Rural Northwest.

The Maine election resulted in a great victory for the republicans. Powers, republican, for governor, has a plurality of 48,000. The republicans polled 80,000 votes, a gain of 11,000 over 1894. Still, nothing is settled by this election, no more than by the vote of Vermont or Arkansas. The situation in regard to the presidential election six weeks hence remains the same. McKinley is receiving delegations of excursionists at his home numbering tens of thousands daily, and Bryan is stumping the country and talking to tens of thousands who gather to hear him.

Object Lesson in Packing Fruit.
Joseph A. Wilson yesterday received two crates of prunes, one Italian and the other Hungarian, from the officers of the Oregon Fruit Union at Portland. These prunes were shipped to Portland from Hood River. Two baskets in the Italian crate and one basket of the Hungarians were properly packed in Portland and the others are left just as they had been received. The crates are at Blowers' store, where they will remain on exhibition as long as the fruit will keep. A basket of Italian properly packed weighed 61 pounds, while a basket of the same fruit loosely thrown together weighed but 43 pounds. The Italians properly packed were placed on end, three tiers in a basket. The fruit is of medium size. Had it been larger, the bottom layer would necessarily have been placed on its side. It is a good object lesson in fruit packing. Every one interested in fruit should call and see these samples of packing. They will see at a glance why one man's fruit will sell for better prices than others. In his letter to Mr. Wilson the agent of the State union says:

"We sold Hungarian prunes on Monday in Chicago—it being a car shipped from the Dalles—all the way from 65 cents to $1.40 a crate. Why such a difference? You yourself and probably any of the growers can tell and see why there should be such a difference. Yesterday we sold a car of fruit in New York city, some Hungarians at $1.90 per crate. This is a pretty good price, but we assure you it was for prunes packed similar to the one basket which we have sent you in the crate today, and that $1 would have been an exceedingly high price for four baskets of fruit such as the two without any paper over the top in the crate sent you today. We sold Italian prunes in New York yesterday for $1.40, and we also sold Italian prunes for $1. Quite a difference, isn't there? But, just as we have said, and we are going to the full explanation of this for the benefit of the grower, it is not so much the quality of the box of fruit as it is the neatness of the package and the appearance of the fruit when it arrives at destination."

East Side Items.
School in the Pine Grove district will not commence next Monday, as expected.

The meetings held by the Salvation Army at the Pine Grove school house were interesting and beneficial. The Salvationists are now at Belmont.

Several of our farmers are engaged in sowing wheat.

Harbison Bros. are busy sawing and hauling lumber for a new house on the Lacey place.

Mrs. Henry Wright of Portland has been visiting her daughter in Hood River during the past week.

Mr. J. E. Scobee of Portland spent a few days this week at his place.

Mr. Brook will leave for Sherman county next week, where he will teach school the coming winter.

Mr. Robinson of The Dalles has purchased a part of the Monroe place.

Mrs. Bristow, who has been quite sick, is better, and will be able soon to return home.

Mrs. Rhoads fell from a load of corn fodder, one day last week, striking on her head and shoulders. She lay insensible for an hour, and was thought to be seriously injured, but is getting over the accident all right.

Notes and News.

A cement walk has been ordered built around the court house at The Dalles, to cost $325.

T. G. Condon of Antelope has been appointed county stock inspector at a salary of $150 per annum.

The county court granted the petition for the incorporation of the town of Antelope, and the town election will be held October 19th.

J. H. Graham, a brakeman on the O. R. & N., was killed at Grant, Monday morning, by falling from an engine and was run over.

Thomas Bolton of Dufur was cured of inflammatory rheumatism, from which he had suffered for nearly a year, by a stay of five weeks at the springs on the Warm Springs Indian reservation.

The attendance at The Dalles schools is so far in excess of last year that an additional teacher had to be employed, and the position was given to Miss Ella D. Baldwin.

Presidential Candidate Bryan had the honor of naming a pug dog in St. Louis last Sunday. He named it Marion, after the county in which he was born, in Illinois.

Geo. W. Turner and his wife, well known colored people of The Dalles, were drowned in the Columbia at that place while fishing, last Monday. Their sail boat was sucked under a snag at anchor in the river. The bodies were not recovered.

A Connecticut man returned from Dakota, the other day, driving the whole distance of 2,600 miles with a two-horse team hitched to a prairie schooner, on the sides of which was painted in big letters: "In God we trusted; in Dakota we busted."

A Bryan club was organized at The Dalles, last Saturday evening, with 222 members. Speeches were made by A. J. Brigham of Dufur, Judge A. S. Bennett, Hon. E. B. Dufur and Seth Morgan. The club will hold weekly meetings and noted speakers from this and other states will be invited to address them.

Winans Bros. Won.
The Winans Bros., who are cited to appear before Judge Hanford at Spokane and show cause why they should not be fined for contempt for excluding Indians from fishing on deeded land, had a hearing last week, and were dismissed. Judge Hanford deciding they were not in contempt. The defendants contended that whatever rights are secured to Indians by treaties are subject to state laws, unless congress at the time the state is admitted to the Union withholds from the state the right to make laws which contravene treaty rights. It has been the claim on the part of the Indians that in giving up their lands to the United States government, they not only had the right to occupy their reservations, without molestation, but to hunt and fish upon all lands not actually resided upon by settlers. The state of Washington has a law by which fishermen may purchase beach lands between high and low water marks for fishing privileges, upon which others are not allowed to trespass. The Winans Bros. became possessed of certain lands in this manner upon which some Yakima Indians, persisted in fishing, and the owners of the land, believing that Indians possessed no rights which were forbidden a white citizen, ejected them therefrom. Hence the suit, which has now terminated in a victory for the Winans Bros.—Chronicle.

An Honest Shekel.
In the 23d chapter of Genesis, beginning at the 13th verse, you will find these words:

"And Abraham said, I pray thee hear me; I will give thee money for the field, and Ephraim answered, saying unto him, the land is worth 400 shekels of silver. And Abraham weighed to Ephraim the silver which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, 400 shekels of silver, current money with the merchant."
And now, from a time antedating the birth of Christ—nearly two thousand years—we have the same question confronting us, the weight of silver that shall be "current money with the merchant." Job says: "The price of the silver thereof shall be weighed." The conclusions, therefore are that the value of silver in Bible times depended upon its weight, and that the government stamp didn't make an honest shekel.

The Oregon Industrial Exposition.
Tomorrow night the Oregon Industrial Exposition opens at Portland. Arrangements have been made for cheap railroad fares to and from the city during the entire exposition. There are also being arranged special excursions at much cheaper rates to run into the city at the times of the greatest special attractions. The management has provided an attraction for every day of the fair. Some of these are extremely novel and highly entertaining. There will be a grand merchants' carnival; also a flower carnival of children; there will be a minstrel show in which the performers will be all well known Portland ladies; there will be a complete Chinese theatre; there will be special nights devoted to the Odd Fellows, the Elks, the Woodmen, the Redmen, the Workmen and the Foresters. On these occasions excursions will be run from all points in the Northwest.

A Corporation with a Soul.
Richard McCreedy, a laborer in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, was run over by a work train and killed. The coroner's inquest failed to find the company at fault for the accident, but later on the widow of the unfortunate man brought suit against the railroad; but the company having a perfect defense, the case was dismissed at the costs of Mrs. McCreedy. After she had got through with the courts and lawyers the Pennsylvania company examined into her condition, and finding it unfortunate in the extreme, voluntarily made the following payments in the way of gratuity: Undertaker's bill, $95; drug bill, $29.38; grocery bill, $24.04; unpaid taxes, $4.13; mortgage on property held by a building and loan association, $408.73; and a cash present of $100, making a grand total of $661.28.

The Discovery Saved His Life.
Mr. G. Cailloutte, druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle and began its use, and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at the Hood River Pharmacy.

Sent it to His Mother in Germany.
Mr. Jacob Esbensen, who is in the employ of the Chicago Lumber Co., at Des Moines, Iowa, says: "I have just sent some medicine back to my mother in the old country, that I know from personal use to be the best medicine in the world for rheumatism, having used it in my family for several years. It is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It always does the work." 50 cent bottles for sale by Williams & Brosius, druggists.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

From all accounts Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a godsend to the afflicted. There is no advertisement about this; we feel just like saying it. The Democrat, Carrollton, Ky. For sale by Williams & Brosius, druggists.

Justifiable.
"I presume you gave the prisoner some occasion to strike you?"
"Why, your honor, we were talking about the coinage, and he made some statement that caused me to remark that he had been misled and was arguing from wrong premises, and then he struck me."
"Is that what he said to you, prisoner?"
"Yes, that is the substance of it, your honor, but not the language. What he said was that I didn't know enough to pound sand in a rat hole and was talking through my hat like a jackass full of thistles and bull-nettes."
