Prof. U. P. Hedrick, writing to H. C. Bateham in regard to the course of lectures on dairying and horticulture, to be given at the Agricultural College this winter, says: "We are hoping to have a goodly number of practical fruit growers here to take the work and are bending every effort to make the course such that it will be of value to any one who may come."

Though the Twice-a-Week Republic of St. Louis excelled all other Western weekly papers in publishing the news of the campaign, it now announces that it has extended its news service, and hereafter it will give its readers the best paper in the country. This means much, because the next twelve months will be crowded with news of big events. With all the improvements to its service the yearly subscription will be the same—one dollar a year by mail, twice a week.

During a deep snow, like the present, it is worth considerable to live on a well traveled county road. There is a tract of land lying between the Mount Hood stage road and Hood river, on which reside a dozen families between Indian creek and John Parker's, who either have no road out or else have had to buy a private right of way out to the stage road. It seems as if it was about time for these people to unite and get a road through this part of the valley; cross Indian creek north of Dr. Elliot's place and connect with Parkhurst avenue. This would greatly enhance the value of this property, and it is only a question of time before it will have to be done. So writes a correspondent.

The big pumpkin that was in our window the first part of last month was raised on the GLACIER ranch without any extra care. It weighed 60 pounds. It proved to be excellent for cooking and for pies. The seed was saved and we will give it out to our subscribers who may wish it in small quantities. To the subscriber raising the biggest pumpkin in weight next year from this seed we will give one year's subscription to the GLACIER; provided the pumpkin weighs above 60 pounds.

The poor old mule that wandered about the streets during the late storm, without shelter and food, finally got down in a ravine near the railroad bridge, where he lay helpless. Some of our generous and humane citizens, when they learned of his condition, made up a purse and employed an Indian to shoot him and drag him away. This mule was an old timer and known to have been in the valley 30 years ago; how much longer no one knows. The old mule deserved a better fate and a better obituary than he gets this time; but if any one who is familiar with his history wishes to give him a fitting send off, our columns are open.

The snow storm last Monday blocked the trains on the O. R. & N. at Onocenta, near Bridal Veil. A passenger train from the East was stuck in snow drifts at that place and detained for three days, not getting out till Wednesday afternoon. The train was well provisioned. No mails reached Hood River from Monday morning till Wednesday night. The road is now open and trains are running on time.

Mr. Albert I. Mason came up from Portland last Saturday and went out to his ranch on the East Side, where he is having land grubbed for setting trees in the spring. He has ordered 700 trees, mostly winter apples, of our home nurseries. Mr. Mason intended to return to Portland on Monday, but was detained here several days by the snow blockade on the railroad.

The ladies of the M. E. church will hold their bazaar in the Champlin building next week, Friday and Saturday, December 11th and 12th. Supper will be served Friday evening at 6 o'clock; also, dinner and supper on Saturday. Come and see what we have and buy your Christmas presents of us.

Hay has taken a big jump in price since the snow came, and is now selling from $16 to $20. A larger number of horses than usual have been taken to Sherman county to winter, and yet we have too many left. After we get our big ditch in operation the forage question will not bother us so much.

D. R. Carmichael and mother, from Antelope, have rented rooms of Mrs. L. Neff. His mother lately arrived from Nebraska. Mr. Carmichael has been a reader of the GLACIER, and becoming favorably impressed with our valley through perusing its columns, has come here to locate.

The weather prophets who pin their faith to the signs of the hog melt are predicting that we are now having the worst part of our winter. The hog melt this year, we are informed, shows a big bulge on the end that comes first, every time.

Jas. E. Hanna, in the kindness of his heart, latches up his team to his sled every morning and takes a load of youngsters up to the school house. At four o'clock he calls for them and brings them back to town.

The Columbia river at The Dalles was frozen over so that many people crossed on the ice last Monday. The river did not close at this point. Mr. J. R. Rankin says the river has been open so that he could cross in his boat every day since the freeze up.

Preparations for cutting ice were commenced Monday with a force of about 20 men and four or five teams. They worked until Thursday noon and had two acres of ice cleared of snow, when they had to wait for another freeze.

Mr. C. R. Bone has returned from Grant, where he has been engaged in buying wheat. Since August last, the Columbia Commercial Co., of which he is a member, have purchased about 500,000 bushels of wheat.

The citizens' convention last Monday made the following nominations: For aldermen, F. E. Jackson, W. N. West and J. H. Dukes; for marshal, R. O. Evans.

Lost—A yearling heifer, small, gentle, raised by hand; mostly red, with some white spots; six teats of equal size; no marks or brands. TROY SHELLEY.

James English made final proof on his homestead Monday, at The Dalles land office. His witnesses were V. Winchell and Hans Jochemsen.

Tillet has no pine trees for sale. But if you want your money's worth in fruit trees of standard varieties, call at the Hood River nurseries.

Lost—Nov. 27th, between Mrs. Alma Howe's place and the Barrett school house, a gold breast pin. Finder will please leave it at this office.

Dallas was the happiest man in town during the cold spell. Everybody with busted water pipes had to call on Dallas, the plumber.

Mr. A. Whinn came down from The Dalles on Monday to superintend the cutting and putting up of the ice crop.

Mr. S. R. Reeves, proprietor of the Mount Hood hotel, butchered a hog, last Friday, that dressed 392 pounds.

Newton Clark, grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., will lecture at Arlington tomorrow night.

Paul C. Bates, representing the Pennsylvania Ins. Co., was in town last Saturday.

W. A. Shinglerland lost one of his bay horses with blind staggers, Tuesday morning.

Dr. Watt is moving into his new house.

WILLIAMS & BROSIUS, Hood River Pharmacy.

A great many potatoes remained undug when the rains and snow came. They are better off in the ground than if they had been dug and placed in the barn or wood shed. A good many lost their potatoes by not having them in a safe place when the thermometer got down to zero.

Mount Hood Tinklings.

The beautiful white snow has been with us since Nov. 16th and is with us now to the depth of two feet. It came early and caught the folks napping, as some of their garden truck is still in the ground.

A shooting match for ducks was extensively advertised throughout the neighborhood to take place on Nov. 24th at the bachelor residence of Paul Robert. At the appointed hour several of the Mount Hood sports were on hand. Paul's ducks had not hatched, at least they did not show up, so Father Knox kindly offered to put up some chickens—the boys had come for game and wanted it. Bob Leasure came off best man, having won three roosters. We suspected it was Daddy Knox's chickens, as Bob has done lots of growing since Thanksgiving.

The recent fall of snow put a stop to the repairs on the bridge that went out with the high water two weeks ago.

The thermometers in this neighborhood registered from 8 to 15 degrees during the cold spell last week.

A. P. Aaserod, an old man 74 years old who, has a place half way up to the base of Mt. Hood, has not been heard from for several days.

William Hess, who has been spending the summer here, went to Canby, Clackamas county, last week, for the winter.

A. B. Billings killed a large lynx in his door yard last week. REPORTER.
