Washington Co-Operative Life Ins. Association of Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, OREGON, January 1, 1897.

Herewith I submit my report as Manager of the Washington Co-Operative Life Insurance Association of Portland, Oregon, for the year 1896. Since our incorporation we have had but 26 assessments—22 by death and 4 by maturity. In organizing our Association we did not expect to enrich our members, but we did promise that we could pay to every one that would take out a policy, and fulfill their contract with the Association, to return all their money, together with interest from 100 to 300 per cent. upon their investment. The Association has thus far kept its part of all contracts to the letter, and has done much better than was expected, owing to the hard times, as many of our members have been able to retain their standing, by prompt payment of assessments, which is the life of all Associations.

Of the 14 matured policies held by our members and paid, I will give but one as an illustration for each larger percentage. It was for a member of the Association, and to fill that end of the Hood River valley, paid the largest assessment of any member of the Association, and greater than any member will have to pay again, on account of the reduced age of new members. Mr. Connell paid an assessment of $4 on every thousand dollars carried, which he promptly paid. He received all his money back, with 200 per cent. increase on his investment. The above is the smallest per cent. of the 14 matured policies that have been paid—the death policies all being much larger. Mr. E. Kittenmiller of Lewiston, Idaho, was a member for eight years and died in 1896, being Assessment No. 23. His nominee received over $10 for every dollar of cost to him. While another member, Mr. William Holcomb of Salem, Oregon, who died in 1896, received through his nominee over $100 for each dollar of cost to him. On the 30 assessments we have paid an average of over 300 per cent.—being better than was expected. One thing I should like to have thoroughly understood, and that is that the policy holders are the Association, and not the directors, as many seem to think. We are the servants to do the work, without one penny or favor for our time and labor as directors. We all have to pay our annuals and assessments or be suspended. We have no favorites or dead beats in this Association.

Since our incorporation we have issued 1,475 policies—over 600 of which, have been issued in 1896, with over one and a half million dollars of insurance, and increasing one to three times the larger percentage. It is necessary for each member to be prompt in duty—the great requisite of success in all fraternal and assessment associations throughout the world.

Wishing you a Happy New Year, I remain, very truly yours,
CLARK HAY, General Manager.

The Washington Co-Operative Life Insurance Association was born in the Sons of Temperance hall, in Portland, Oregon, with the view to making the lodge a self-sustaining institution. A committee was appointed to formulate a plan to guide the Society. It took the American table of mortality as its basis, and to build upon, and to fill that vacuum that exists in all fraternal and assessment associations in the world. Our policies are made payable at death or at the end of life expectancy, so that a person receives the benefit of his policy in his lifetime—when he needs it most. It is this feature that makes the Washington Co-Operative Life Insurance Association the most equitable of any. The plan has been examined by one of the best actuaries in the United States in life insurance, and he has pronounced it correct, if not superior to all other plans.

For every friend, you are the one most interested, but I do not advise any one to take a larger policy than he can carry. Any young person can carry a policy of $2,000, keep it up, and you will bless the day you joined the Washington. Our assessments compare favorably with all other Associations, and our plan is the only endorsement company in the world where the policy holder will receive his money back at maturity with interest double the cost.

meeting last Saturday night. The Frankton legislature was called to order by Luther Miller, who was selected by the assembly as temporary speaker. Permanent organization was effected and Mr. M. P. Isenberg was unanimously chosen speaker of the house. Miss Laura Wilson was elected chief clerk, Miss Bess Isenberg, reading clerk, and Jos. Frazier, page. A number of bills were introduced by the several members. Some passed and others were defeated. A memorial to congress for the recognition of the Cubans failed to pass. House bill No. 1, an act for the annexation of Frankton to Belmont, introduced by a Belmont representative, secured three readings. It was passed, but short debate, and being brought to a final vote, was overwhelmingly squelched. Bill No. 3, prohibiting Japanese labor in the valley, was passed, but no provision was made for its enforcement. At the next session, tomorrow night, balloting will be begun for United States senator. The society, as usual, will have a good literary programme.
