FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1897.

Sixteen reserves were established under Harrison's administration, embracing 13,000,000 acres. Early in Cleveland's administration the seven-teenth, the Cascade reserve, was added, and the total then exceeded 17,500,000 acres. The president's proclamation February 22d added thirteen tracts, making a total of nearly 40,000,000 acres. The sheep men and the great lumbering interests are working hard to have the president revoke the order creating the last sixteen reserves, or at least to modify their sweeping boundaries. The members of the forestry commission were ordered to Washington and have been in consultation with the president and Secretary Bliss. The forestry proclamation will not be revoked, but its provisions will be adjusted by presidential orders as to specific tracts. When the surveys it is expected will be ordered by congress are completed the president will exempt from the provisions of the proclamation such lands as are of farming or agricultural character, or where the settlers' rights are injured.

The Dingley tariff appears to be specially designed to help trusts and monopolies. In the form it passed the lower house of congress it takes several dollars from the pockets of the people for every one it turns into the national treasury. As a whole, it confers even greater benefits upon privileged industries than did the McKinley bill itself. In many cases, though increasing the burdens of customs, it decreases the income from customs duties by prohibitive duties. The only important increases exacted are from sugar and wool—two articles necessary to health and comfort which should not be taxed at all in times of peace, or while it is possible to obtain sufficient revenue from other sources.

Notes and News.

Joel Grayson Koontz, an old citizen of The Dalles, died at that place April 4th, aged 67 years.

Starke, Florida, said to be the largest strawberry raising place in the state, sent out 100 bushels on St. Patrick's day, and that was an off day.

Alternate freezing and thawing in the Crawfordville section of Indiana caused the clover on what is known as the black lands to be ejected from the ground, the roots lying there all exposed.

A week having passed without an addition to the birth or death record at Silverton, Colorado, the local paper expresses sorrow, in the knowledge that there were lots of fellows around who ought to die.

Mention of Sherman county has been omitted in another state official biennial report. Supl. Gilbert of the penitentiary got no boarders from here—357 were received from other counties, however.—Moro Observer.

Bicycle enthusiasts are greatly cheered by receipt of the news that Mr. Gladstone, notwithstanding his great age, has joined the ranks of the wheelmen. He has written a friend in London that there were lots of fellows around who ought to die.

"Can you tell me what sort of weather we may expect next month?" wrote a subscriber to his local paper, and the editor replied as follows: "It is my opinion that the weather next month will be very much like your subscription bill."

In Ottawa county, a Michigan, a farmer last year grew a few bushels of coffee beans, and this winter he has used them in place of coffee of the usual kind with such satisfaction that he intends to plant a large section of his land to the same crop the coming season.

Noah Raby, an inmate of a poor farm in New Jersey, is 125 years old. He never married, being too bashful when a young man to propose to the girl he loved. He has used tobacco all his life and several times was intoxicated. He attributes his long life to his never having married and always voting the democratic ticket.

It may be all straight for the journalist to preach in favor of Arbor day for the inculcation of a systematic plan of tree planting, and in an adjacent column condemn the government for its forest reserve effort in the same direction. We say it may be all straight, but it has the appearance, at least, of inconsistency.—Dufur Dispatch.

With the expiration of the review of the armies of the rebellion at the close of the civil war, it is promised that the array of military at the dedication of the Grant monument in New York on the 27th of April will be the most imposing ever witnessed in this country. General Horace Porter says it will be the biggest demonstration of the kind since the remains of Napoleon were brought home from St. Helena to be buried under the dome of the Invalides.

Senator Allen of Nebraska will introduce at the first opportunity an amendment to the tariff bill providing for an income tax. He has one prepared, which good lawyers say will run the gauntlet of the supreme court. It is doubtful whether the amendment will be adopted, but Senator Allen will at least throw upon the republicans the responsibility of defeating it. He has some hopes that it will be accepted. The populists hold the balance of power in the senate and the republicans can hardly hope to pass their bill without the aid of Senator Allen and his political associates.

Miss Phoebe Cousins has renounced woman suffrage. "Women in public life will never prove satisfactory," she recently said, in an interview. "There are limitations that prescribe her success. She is naturally a homemaker. I would advise all young women to marry and become homemakers." This from the former fiery advocate of the ballot for women.

Price of Strawberry Crates.

HOOD RIVER, April 6, 1897.—Editor GLACIER: The Hood River Fruit Growers' Union have arranged with W. J. Smith to furnish crates to members at 16 cents per crate this season. The members will give him orders on the union, payable at different dates through the season which may be agreed upon, so that all parties may have a portion of the returns as they come in. Mr. Smith having leased the warehouse of the Oregon Fruit Union for his crate warehouse, will make it very convenient for growers to get crates daily as they come in with berries. N. C. EVANS, Secretary.

To Prevent Forest Fires.

One of the most important laws enacted by the last congress to benefit settlers living in the timbered sections in the Pacific Northwest was the one which received the approval of the president on February 24th, intended to prevent forest fires on the public domain. Following is the full text of the new law:

Be it enacted by the Senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That any person who shall willfully or maliciously set on fire any timber, underbrush or grass upon the public domain, or shall carelessly or negligently leave or suffer fire to burn unattended near any timber or other inflammable material, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction of the same, shall be fined in a sum not more than $5,000, or be imprisoned for a term of not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 2. That any person who shall build a camp fire or other fire in or near any forest, timber or other inflammable material upon the public domain shall, before breaking camp or leaving said fire, totally extinguish the same. Any person failing to do so shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction of the same, shall be fined in a sum not more than $1,000, or be imprisoned for a term not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 3. That in all cases arising under this act the fines collected shall be paid into the public school fund of the county in which the lands where the offense was committed are situate.

A Word About Pruning.

This is the season of the year that the tree butcher gets in his work. The "expert pruner" with ax, saw, and a pair of hedge shears, and who trims trees down to mere stumps, is about offering his services. Orchardists should give him a wide berth. This is applicable to all parts of Oregon, but the thought has been suggested by institute workers returning from Southern Oregon who report overpruned orchards as about the worst feature of orcharding in that part of the state.

A healthy tree well headed at the start, the head twenty to thirty inches from the ground, needs only to have deformed, crooked, and crossed limbs removed, with now and then a branch taken out to thin out the top. The shape of the tree should be governed by pruning, and removing small twigs with a budding knife. All other pruning is unnecessary, and a wanton destruction that seriously impairs the vitality and usefulness of the tree. U. P. Hedrick, Oregon Agricultural College.

Fossil Journal.

While John Niver was driving the Arlington-Fossil stage to Fossil, and when about two miles from this town, the wheels became so encased with mud that they refused to go round, and the driver jumped off the coach to unhitch the horses and pack the mail into town. When he leaped he sank into the mud over his knees and in extricating himself pulled both legs out of his rubber boots. When he stooped to pick up his boots, he could find no trace of them, and although the moon was shining brightly, he failed to locate them after a thorough search. While he was putting the mail sacks on the horses' backs one of his socks was also swallowed up by the mud. The spectacle of the mail carrier walking into town barefooted, leading two very tired horses over whose backs were strung the mail bags, furnished considerable amusement to those who were at the postoffice waiting for their mail.

It is stated by a New York exchange that a girl there kneads bread with her gloves on. A country exchange adds: "That is no news to us. We need bread with our boots on; we need bread with our pants on, and if our friends who are in arrears don't pay us soon we will need bread without anything on."

Prof. Gavin has resigned as Principal of The Dalles public schools, and J. S. Landers has been appointed in his stead.

Lattimer Booth, aged 56, died at The Dalles April 8th.

Hood River Valley.

By J. M. BURLINGAME.
Fair valley, he who views thy face
Wreathed, all, in Nature's loveliest grace,
May well believe the enchanted wand
Of Beauty's spirit clothed thy land.
No prettier vale beneath the sun;
Through none a lovelier stream doth run;
Spring's sweetest flowers the woods bedeck,
And with bright hues the landscape deck.
Nest homes, arranged with deftest care,
Do the bright prospect everywhere;
A score of peaks around thee stand
In lofty outlines huge and grand.
But yonder, where the prospect ends,
Hood's mighty column high ascends;
And this rich valley, soft and fair,
Touches his feet and endeth there.
The grandeur of the lofty peak
Forbids the voice of man to speak—
Bathed in the eternal snow,
Resting in the sun's brilliant glow.
Were he ten thousand times as high,
Yet he would only reach the sky,
And point the way from earth to God
Through lowliest vale foot ever trod.
He who hath reached the enchanting vale
May here well furl the useless sail,
Here feel the soothing April showers
That intersperse the mountain drouths.
The rainbow view on mountain side,
In green and gold and purple tide;
And 'neath his vine and fruit tree rest
Among earth's happiest, most blest.
April, 1897.

A woman provides something for the inner man, and a man something for the outer woman.
Time waits for no man, but we'll wait that quite frequently it has had to wait for woman—or go alone.

It is an easy matter to get your fellow-man to speak well of you; in great you have to do it to lie down and die.

When a woman is in great trouble she cries, but when a man is deeply distressed he drinks whiskey.
"Laugh and the world laughs with you," doesn't always hold good when you laugh too heartily at your own story.

A man recently drank a pint of yeast in mistake for buttermilk. He rose three hours earlier than usual next morning.

For every hour's pleasure a woman has she spends two hours getting ready for it, and as many more in recovering from it.

It is said that the Tartars take a man by the ear to invite him to drink. In this country, when a tartar takes a man by the ear, it is generally to get him away from drink.

Individual clergymen have denounced bicycle riding, the theater, dancing, and now a minister declares that kissing must be stopped. If all these learned men have their ways the outlook for 1900 will be rather a mournful one.

A Florida man cut down a bee tree and secured several hundred pounds of honey, and in the top of the tree found a crane's nest containing 140 dozen eggs. He seemed to be greatly disappointed that the tree didn't also pan out a dozen sugar-cured hams and a few hundred loaves of bread!

It is, or should be, the highest aim of every merchant to please his customers; and that the wide-awake drug firm of Meyers & Eshleman, Sterling, Ill., is doing so, is proven by the following, from Mr. Eshleman: "In my sixteen years' experience in the drug business I have never seen or sold or tried a medicine that gave as good satisfaction as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Spring

In the season of newness, new sap is in the grass, new buds on the boughs, new birds in new nests, new flowers in the fields, new green in the fields. Nature cleans house when winter goes, and decks herself in new apparel. And she makes mankind feel the need of a renewing, too. Perhaps you, or some of your family, are suffering from the malady peculiar to the approach of spring. Though not dangerous, it is unpleasant. Unaccustomed languor and disinclination for exertion are among its symptoms. It is NEW BLOOD the system is craving.

NEW BLOOD means NEW LIFE!
NEW LIFE means New Strength, New Hope, New Happiness.

We have a beautiful window full of NEW BLOOD MAKING MEDICINES to show you. Take a look at them the next time you are passing, or even make a point of coming round our way specially for that purpose. It will pay you to see the sight, even though you don't buy.

The Chicago Chronicle

IS FIRST OF ALL

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

INCIDENTALLY it is an advocate of democracy, with no leaning toward populism or state socialism. It is the champion of the republican party in the recent presidential election, as a result of the disruption of the democratic devices upon the latter the duty of reconciling and organizing on the lines of their own, and not some other party's, faith. To promote genuine democracy, to discountenance populism, and to resist the monarchical tendencies of republicanism will be the political mission of THE CHRONICLE in the future as it has been in the past. As a newspaper THE CHRONICLE will continue to be comprehensive and enterprising, covering neither labor nor expense to make its reports of all noteworthy events of national importance, and covering exhaustively the entire field of news, discovery, invention, industry and business.
For one cent a day every family within five hundred miles of Chicago may have the day's publication a copy of a great daily newspaper, costing thousands of dollars to produce— a miracle of cheapness and value combined.
