Small change was scarce in town last week, caused by paying off the strawberry pickers. The scarcity for awhile threatened to block the wheels of prosperity, and to get change for five dollars a man was sometimes put to desperate straits. Dallas paid his water rent to get change for a V. Several delinquent subscribers called to settle up if we could change a twenty or cash a check. With tears in our eyes we had to acknowledge we couldn't do either. The small bank checks given by the union on returns passed as currency, though it was difficult at times to come near making correct change.

Heretofore the birds, especially robins, have taken Dr. Adams' cherries, sometimes stripping whole trees of their fruit. This year he noticed that the birds were not taking the cherries and mentioned the fact to his wife. Mrs. Adams told him it was because of the pigeons flying about, of which the doctor now keeps about a dozen. The birds, she said, take the pigeons for hawks and keep away. The doctor is satisfied she is right in the matter and that an important discovery has been made.

The funeral of Harry Luckey, last Friday, was largely attended. The sermon was preached in the Congregational church by Rev. J. L. Hershner, and deceased was buried in Idlewild cemetery, alongside of his mother. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Doremus of Tekoa, Wash., came down with the remains and are now stopping with Mr. J. J. Luckey and family. Wm. Luckey and wife of Portland were also in attendance at the funeral.

Dr. Brosius was called to Trout Lake Thursday evening of last week. Mrs. Warner of White Salmon and her sister had been to see the ice caves and were thrown from a hack by the back seat giving way. The ladies were pretty badly bruised but not seriously. Dr. Brosius drove from White Salmon during the night and arrived at Trout Lake at 4 o'clock Friday morning.

Our new postmaster has ordered new mail boxes for the patrons of the office. The boxes will be opened with a combination lock that will do away with the key that is always getting lost. The Rural Northwest says there has been an over-supply of soft, early cherries on the Portland market and prices have varied all the way from one cent per pound for poor or mixed lots up to five cents for May Dukes.

Mr. W. J. Smith of the box factory presented the GLACIER with a unique fruit basket. When there is no fruit for the basket it can be turned and utilized as a waste basket, and is as handy as a pocket in a shirt.

At George Knapp's place, across the Columbia, the high water inundated part of his strawberry patch and his early vegetables, but he has replanted the latter and expects to have good crops yet.

Certain merchants here attempted to corner the fruit jar trade by sending out their beelers to buy ours, when we got so low in price they could not follow us. But that game is too old. We will give the farmer only the benefit. We will have plenty of jars next week for our customers only.
