The result of the elections in several of the most important Eastern states on Tuesday show great gains for the democrats. This is the off year, but both the great parties put in their best licks, and the battle, especially in Ohio, called out a full vote. The result of these elections make it pretty certain that the democrats will control the next house of representatives.

Ohio and Maryland are claimed by both parties.

In Massachusetts, Wolcott, rep , is re-elected governor by 90,000 majority. Iowa elects Shaw, rep., governor, by 17,000 plurality, and republicans carried the legislature.

Nebraska was carried by the fusionists by 10,000 to 20,000 plurality. Kentucky is democratic by 15,000. Populists carried Colorado.

Kansas is claimed by fusionists and plurality.

The commissioner of pensions asks for a law that will debar women who may hereafter marry old soldiers from ever receiving a pension. Some of the wives of these old soldiers may become widows and be on the pension list to a good old age. There is said to be a few widows of soldiers of the war of 1819 newers the receivance of the wigons of soldiers of the war of 1819 newers the receivance of the war of 1819 newers the receivance of the second soldiers as folded, the second of a modern the trees, unless root pruning is desired; but in starting a young orchard your soil can not be plowed too deep.

Yes, Bro, Wheeler, I'll give you the honor of bringing the first subsoil plow to Hood River, but I'd like to insist on you to not let it rust. You had better loan it to your neighbors who are starting young orchards; they will never press.

The Old Hand Press.

I love to haunt the press room of a modern city sheet.
And watch the flying cylinders, as folded, trim and neat, The effect papers finished by some mystic force, it seems—
So strangely hidden in their course—flow out in endless streams.

and I can't agree on this point, we might both be called wise. He says the under drainage and friable character of the soil, such as that on the pla-teau in Hood River valley, needs no drainage nor subsoil plowing. Well, I will confess that the plateau on the west side of Hood river, for a few miles south of town, may not need either, as that section is well supplied with rocks, sand and wind, so much so that water will soon dry up in the spring; hence drainage may not be necessary there, Gold democrats are not voting the republican tieket this year. Returns in Wednesday's Oregonian tell the story, as follows.

Van Wyck, Tammany candidate, is elected mayor of Greater New York, receiving 385,181 votes to 149,519 for and west of town and almost the encessary there, but subsoil plowing is beneficial everywhere, in all soils and all climates where vegetation is raised. But outside of the plateau referred to (which we concede is the strawberry belt of Hood River valley), we find the soil underlaid with a clay subsoil. Mr. Dethman's orchard, on the East side, which won the medal at your last fair, has a clay subsoil, and by investigation we find that the best apple districts everywhere have a heavy soil, districts everywhere have a heavy soil, underlaid with a strata of clay and sand, and it is this kind of fruit land that needs good drainage and deep plowing. Experiment stations and progressive fruit growers everywhere testify to the same, and even urge tile draining on rolling land. Water Rights.

EDITOR GLACIER: At the meeting of the directors of the Valley Improvement Co., held lat Saturday, several forms of perpetual right deeds were presented. After mature consideration one used by the Bear River Irrigation company of Utah was adopted after being materially modified. This was considered the best, as it sets forth the rights of seak best, as it sets forth the rights of each party more definitely than the other forms presented, and will therefore cut off all chance for disputes later on.

The board ordered the contract printed in the GLACIER, that interested parties may be able to study its provisions and understand what they are buying. We would urge every rancher to turn to the printed form in this issue and investigate the proposition. As a special inducement for early purchases, the price has been placed at $25 an inch for a short time only.
