Which?

HOOD RIVER, Dec. 6, 1897.—Editor GLACIER: I noticed a letter in your last issue from S. E. Bartmess, concerning our strawberry growers, in which the points are well taken and should arouse every member of the Hood River Fruit Growers' Union to immediate action.

There has been two meetings called by the officers of the union for the purpose of making some changes in our by-laws, but neither meeting had a quorum, which I believe has certainly been somewhat discouraging to its officers and members. There is one all-important problem awaiting solution at the hands of the berry growers of Hood River valley, and that is Freight rates!

How will you solve it? There may be two ways of solving the question before us. The first and best for all concerned is to unite in one plain, common union, wherein business can be transacted as one man; then we are in a position to make demands and see that the things demanded for the reduction of rates are complied with. The other method of scattering shipments needs no mention, for it means destruction of the strawberry business to three-fourths of the persons now engaged in it.

Will there be union and strength, or shall we die through dismemberment? Will we work on business methods, or shall we cut each other's throats in this berry business? Let us ask ourselves these questions and then ask if we want one union or two, or none?

J. W. MORTON.

Wants a Cannery.

HOOD RIVER, Dec. 6, 1897.—Editor GLACIER: While there is a good deal being said about the marketing of our fruit and how we are going to ship next season, a little talk on the subject may not be amiss. Every one has his ideas about the best way to ship. The old adage, "in union there is strength," would be in part true in our case if we could all unite, but when some are pulling one way and others another way and each party looking out for himself, how is the union going to stand? The people are not all satisfied with the way our fruit was handled this year. I haven't so much fault to find with the union, but when one party ships good fruit and another poor fruit, and all is averaged up, the party that ships the good fruit has to suffer the loss. I am informed that even this year the good, bright fruit commanded a good figure. Now, where is the fault? Some one please inform us. I think the best thing we can do to overcome the poor prices we get for our fruit is to start a cannery. It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that the fruit growers of Hood River lose more fruit every year than would put up a cannery and pay for it in a year's time. Now, it is left with the business people of Hood River to put up this cannery, for that is where it belongs. If you don't take advantage of this opportunity we will put it up at Frankton. So, wake up, you business men of Hood River, and do something for your country for once. Yours in kindness,

RICHARD KIRBYSON.

The curfew ordinance, compelling children and youths under 15 years of age to be housed in their homes at night after the hour of 9 o'clock in summer and 8 o'clock in winter, is having good effect in the 300 cities and towns in the United States where the ordinance is enforced. If parents cannot see the folly of allowing children to run wild in the streets at night it is well that the law can step in and prevent it.

Judge Wellhouse of Kansas, the apple king of the world, who has planted apple trees for 30 years and now has an orchard of 100,000 trees, considers thrifty two-year-old trees the best for planting, though a year older, he says, are not objectionable.

Under existing mail contracts none but letter mail is carried to the Klondike.

The item published in the GLACIER three weeks ago concerning the big potatoes raised on the Button ranch has gone the rounds of our exchanges with more or less comment not always flattering to the author of the big potato story. However, the story was true. The latest comment is by the Crook County Journal, which says:

Up till a few days ago a Hood River preacher carried the bolt as champion potato preparator of the Northwest. He had called a neighbor named Joe Purser to witness that a Hood River ranch had produced a potato weighing 9 1/2 pounds. Now Purser comes out himself in the GLACIER and says that that kind of a spud is not a circumstance to what occurred just across the river, where he pulled up a hill of potatoes that numbered 119! Birthday Party. Wednesday evening, December 1st, Mrs. G. D. Woodworth gave a party at her residence in honor of the birthdays of her son Guy and Miss Lela Rossman. There was quite a large gathering of the friends of these young people and an excellent programme was rendered, which consisted of speaking, singing, instrumental music, dialogues and pantomimes. An elegant supper was spread, after which the remainder of the evening was devoted to playing games. Those present were: Lela Rossman, Mrs. Woodworth, Mrs. Rossman, Mrs. Gregory, Grace Howell, Bell Howell, Blanche Blowers, Olive Starling, Nell Reynolds, Gladys Hartley, Myrtle Redman, Lena Huff, Mary Foley, Ida Foss, May Chapman, Maggie Frazier, Mattie Funk, Grace Wilson, Flora Wilson, Hattie Newcomb, May Boorman, Guy Woodworth, O. B. Hartley, John Gregory, Earl Bartmess, Meigs Bartmess, Ernest Rand, Seely Rand, Percy Logsdon, Stephen Rossman, Mell Foley, Will Shoemack, Will Iseuberg, Marshal Iseuberg, Walter Iseuberg, John Chapman, John Castner, Ralph Savage, Austin Wilson, Lee Wilson, George Rich, Web Jones, Howard Hartley.

The Tin Wedding.

One of Hood River's largest and pleasantest social events occurred last Friday evening when Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bateham celebrated their tin wedding. At 9 o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the happy couple, with their little daughter, maid of ring bearer, marched into the hall down stairs, when the Rev. J. L. Hersheuer performed the ceremony with an original ritual of his own, which introduced several startling innovations, but which was doubtless strictly binding, for he closed by pronouncing them wedded according to the laws of Oregon and the corporation of Hood River. After another hour of sociability, during which refreshments were served, dancing was commenced by those so inclined and enjoyed for two hours or more. There was a glittering array of presents, many of which created great merriment. Hon. E. L. Smith presented Mr. Bateham with a very tall tin hat (made by Dallas the Hatter), accompanying the gift with a speech in which he emphasized its many good points, chief of which was that it would provide the recipient with a suitable hat in which he could attend church regularly in all weather. A patent masher bore these lines:

J. W. MORTON.

This now a full decade since first the "masher" was made which was commemorated by your wedding tie; in a time of so great length, in that masher has lost its strength. Here's another we would gladly have you try. The numerous and hearty congratulations showered upon the freshly-married couple evinced their popularity as neighbors and entertainers.

A Strange Case.

One day last week, while Mr. P. F. Bradford was hunting ducks in the sloughs above his place he was called to the house of Mr. Warner, where two children of Charley Koover had just arrived, and one, a little girl 8 years old, with a bullet in her neck, which they claimed had been fired from a pistol in the hands of their brother Jack, 17 years old. Koover's wife is an Indian woman and the children could not converse intelligently in English. All that could be learned from them was that Jack was "heap bad" and shot his little sister. The child was suffering considerably but was not dangerously hurt. An amusing incident happened in connection with this story. The young man that called Mr. Bradford first called to Bradford's companion, who was further up the slough, and really was poaching on somebody's preserves. Being slightly hard of hearing, a guilty conscience helped him to imagine that the young man was ordering him off the premises, and he lost no time in getting away from the sound of the young man's voice, who kept calling for the hunter to come to him. But he was rewarded for running away by soon after meeting with a deer, which he managed to cripple with his small rifle, when Jack Koover happened along and killed the deer, and the venison was divided between them.

A suit is on trial in Justice Prather's court as we go to press. R. Rand sues Tomlinson Bros. of Mt. Hood, claiming that a bill of lumber delivered was not satisfactory. A jury was drawn, as follows: M. Willis, J. W. Morton, M. B. Potter, M. N. Foley, Geo. W. McIntosh, S. C. Smith. Judge Kent is attorney for plaintiff and M. P. Iseuberg and Judge Henry for defendants.

Embossed in Gold.

To buy and reproduce famous paintings involves an expenditure that could hardly be borne unless, as in the case of The Youth's Companion, the enterprise is sustained by the approval of more than five hundred thousand subscribers. The Companion's souvenir calendar for 1898, a series of charming figure-pieces, faithfully copied in colors and embossed in gold, is recognized as one of the richest and most costly examples of this form of art. Yet every new subscriber receives it without additional charge. Moreover, the paper is sent free to new subscribers every week from the time the subscription is received until January, 1898, and then for a full year to January, 1899.

The popular price of The Youth's Companion, $1.75 a year, and the character of its contents, make it a paper for every household. Exceptional attractions are promised for the fifty-two numbers to be issued during 1898. The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, Rudyard Kipling, Lillian Nordica, John Burroughs, W. D. Howells and Max O'Rell are prominent in the long list of eminent contributors named in The Companion's announcement, which will be sent free to any one addressing The Youth's Companion, 205 Columbus ave., Boston, Massachusetts.

Water for 1898.

Parties wishing to purchase water from the Valley Improvement Co. for the season of 1898 are requested to send in their written applications at once, stating how many inches of water are wanted and where the same is to be used.

In order to sell more than 200 or 250 inches of water considerable work will have to be done, and unless we are sure we can sell more than this number of inches next season, we do not wish to incur the expense of enlarging the ditch. Written applications for the exact amount to be used will be required. F. DAVENPORT.
