Forestry and Irrigation. Portland Chronicle

The Pacific Northwest wool growers who held a convention recently at The Dalles passed a resolution demanding "that the great bodies of arid and forest lands within the respective states west of the Missouri", should be given to the "respective states interested in and dependent upon the vast undevel-oped resources of these arid and forest lands.' Those sages doubtless underlands." stand wool growing, but their folly in passing this resolution proves the wisdom of the old saw requiring the shoe-maker to "stick to his last." It would be a crime against unborn generations gate them under national supervision. It would make the West the mightiest granary of the world. The forestry reserve belongs to the same mighty economic problem. Our forests at the sources of these great rivers which are to supply thousands of miles of national reservoirs should continue in control of the national government. It is essential in order to prevent the diminution of the water supply. Written for the Glacier. Cuba Shail be Free.
