FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1898.

A war of conquest just now seems to be popular. The recent victories of our navy have given some of us an idea that the "Yankee nation can whip all creation," and men talk as if the time was near at hand when we can revolutionize and Americanize the whole world. Every piece of territory now claimed by Spain and upon which the Stars and Stripes have been and will be hoisted by our armies they say must be annexed. The question of annexation will now be the leading question, and the tariff and other issues that have divided the people will be given a rest. The annexationists are termed imperialists. Just now the imperialists seem to be in the majority. But annexation is opposed and will be contested by some of our ablest statesmen. When the people begin to thoroughly understand what is meant by a war of conquest and what the cost will be in men and money, they may not be so unanimous in favor of it. Annexation of the Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba and Hawaii will mean a large standing army and a navy that will be as good or better than that of any foreign nation. England's present fleet cost $600,000,000, and we will want one as big, at an annual cost to a prominent citizen of Hood River who maintain it of $200,000,000. The war is now costing $2,000,000 a day. If annexation is to be the policy of our government, war taxes will be kept up at the close of this little affair with Spain; our army will never be less than it is now, and our young men, the best of them, will be trained for war. It is well to study the points of this great question, and before you take sides with the imperialists be sure the objects to be attained are worth the sac-

The Fourth at Hood River.

The 4th in Hood River, like in every other part of the United States, was celebrated in a manner outstripping all former celebrations. A very few of our people were drawn to other celebrations where more imposing ceremonies were promised. The prominent citizens who arranged the programme and saw that it was successfully carried out to the end deserve the thanks of the community. There were no casualties no disorderly conduct, but everything passed off pleasantly, and a more patriotic let of people never got fogether in this land of the free and home of the brave.

Many business houses were gaily decorated with the national colors, and nearly every man, woman and child proudly displayed the red, white and blue.

Catp. A. Winans, assisted by Prof. R. R. Allard, took charge of the procession which formed on Oak street, and promptly at 10 o'clock moved off to ward the grounds in the grove above town. The Hood River brass band of eleven pieces led the procession with martial music that would be a credit to bands that had been organized more than a week. Company A, Hood River Home Guard, composed of 50 young ladies, with flags in place of guns, marched next. The captain and the lieutenants wore swords. The company, under command of Capt. E. T. Winans, proved to be well drilled in litary discipline. They went through a evolutions like regulars and marchoff like veterans. It was the one eat feature of the celebration, and pt. E. T. R. M. Hunt, chief of artillery, fired the big cannon the 4th about 25 times, using up three kegs of powder. Every time he touched it off he wished it was loaded with a shell and its muzzle pointed towards a Spanish fort.

At the exercises at the grand stand on the 4th, just as W. P. Watson had begun his address, a man named Camp-bell, who recently purchased the Lee Morse place, was taken with a fit.
