It is safe to assert that never again will Hood River lose so much as has been lost this season through failure to spray the apple crop. Those who failed to spray properly this year have lost heavily, and as they gather box after box of nicely-colored apples that have to be rejected for market because they show the work of the cold moth, they can readily count their losses. The resolve to spray next year and keep it up as long as the warm weather lasts is heard on every hand. The spraying will have to be done right to make it effective, and every one interested should make a study of the work during the winter months so as to be able to begin the campaign against the cold moth intelligently. Good winter apples are worth 75 cents today in Hood River; wormy apples, of good size and nicely colored, are slow sale in small lots at 25 cents. In fact there is no sale for wormy apples in any quantity, and they are being fed to the hogs, but there is hardly enough hogs in Wasco county to eat up all the refuse apples in Hood River valley.

History makers will devote a proud page to the Oregon volunteers, now serving in Manila. Primarily we were led to believe that the Oregon troops were not called into active participation in the capture of that city. But after the lapse of much unnecessary time, authentic news is at hand that the Oregon boys not only acted as a special escort to General Merritt, but that they also raised the first American flag there, and their colonel was appointed provost marshal of the big town. Subsequently the commanding general epistolarily complimented the Oregon regiment for its excellent service. General Merritt is a strict disciplinarian of the old school, who does not send out complimentary letters unless warranted by service of a superlatively high degree. The selection of Col. Summers as provost marshal from among all the regimental commanders in the Philippines evidences the trust General Merritt reposes in his executive ability.—Telegram.

To Patrons of Hood River Public Schools.
In connection with the monthly report for month ending Oct. 14th, allow me to respectfully call your attention to the following rules and regulations, to be found under the head of "Rules Governing Directors of Schools," Teachers of the Hood River Public Schools, July adopted by the board of directors on September 14, 1897.
"Rule 3. Only those pupils living in the county at considerable distances from the school will be allowed upon the grounds before the ringing of the bell at 8:00 a. m."
"Rule 7. Pupils will be counted tardy who are not in their respective rooms at 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. Written excuses from the guardian will be required at the following seasons."
Also, in connection with this, allow me to call your attention to the following rules to be found under "Rules and Regulations for the Government of the Public Schools of Oregon," which are published under laws of 1897.
"Rule XLV (in part). Teachers are authorized to require excuses from the parents or guardians of pupils, either in person or by written note, in all cases of absence or tardiness or dismissal before the close of school, and no excuse shall be deemed valid except that of sickness or necessary employment. The teacher shall be the judge of the sufficiency of excuse, subject to an appeal to the directors."
"Rule LIV (in part). Every pupil is required to attend school punctually and regularly."
The course of study for the Hood River public schools, containing rules governing the entire school and plan of work followed, may be had upon application to District Clerk M. W. Bartness, Principal, H. H. Hill, Sec'y.

Clarence English Writes of Manila.
MANILA, Sept. 3, 1898.—Dear Mother: As a ship leaves in two or three days I will write a few lines. I am as well as I could ask to be. We have just received two new suits each of white and white helmets. I also have a civilian suit of white clothes which I wear over town. I found out where the Spaniards had some more supplies hidden, and so I have two marks of the kind to my credit. I have been around the city quite a little and find that part of it is very beautiful. I was in a sugar factory yesterday. The work is all done by Chinamen. There is a big yard at one side of the factory where they spread the crude sugar out on small mats to bleach or dry, and Chinamen would go around and shake it up every little while. Sometimes they would step in it with bare feet, but that doesn't amount to anything down here. I saw John Dimmick here the other day. He came with the Fourth cavalry in the fourth expedition and is stationed at Cavite.

This is a great place for soda water. A kind of lemon soda they call lemonada, in bottles, for 4 cents Spanish, and you can find natives selling it on every corner. I paid 3 Spanish for a white suit, $1 for a pair of white shoes, and $1 for a fine straw hat, a kind you never see in the United States. The whole outfit, suit, hat and shoes, cost me only $2.50 in our money, and they look fine.
I am going to learn to speak Spanish if we stay here for any length of time. I can make myself understood now, and can always find out what the natives try to tell me. I met a native yesterday who had lived seven years in the United States. We had quite a talk in regard to the United States keeping the Philippines, and he was strongly in favor of it.

In the arsenal here are thousands of tons of cannon balls piled up in rows, and all kinds of cannon and gun carriages. The Spaniards had enough provisions, ammunition and all kinds of weapons to last ten years of war. They had thousands of brand new Mauser rifles never used at all.
We go down and take a swim in the famous Manila bay every day. I am at home in the water just as I used to be when a boy at Northfield. The water is warm in the bay. Thousands of jelly fish swim around us. They are the color of currant jelly, and if one of them rubs up against you it gives you a stinging or itching sensation and leaves a red mark wherever it touches, which lasts for about half an hour. So we are a little careful about mixing up with that kind of jelly.
Sept. 5th.—I went over to Cavite yesterday to attend the funeral of Wm. Fields of Company L, who died of typhoid fever. He was from The Dalles. I took dinner with the Dimmick boys, in our old quarters at Cavite. They are both well. I saw Malitia Dukes and showed her two different photos of the Company A girls.
I saw a rice mill in operation the other day. It was simply a pair of natives with clubs, churning the rice in a hollow place made in the end of a stump of a hard wood tree about the size of a butcher block. [Here follows a pen sketch of the "rice mill."] It makes one think of the people we used to read about in the stories of ancient times. The natives sail or paddle around in the river and bay in canoes made of logs hollowed out, and they go very fast. The canoes are narrow but have a big piece of bamboo out on each side to steady them. The sails are made of palm leaves woven together. I send you a couple little books which are copies of some printed on one of our warships. They describe Dewey's victory over the Spanish here. I received the letter in answer to those I wrote at Honolulu, but have got no answer as yet from any I have written here.
We are living in pretty good shape here now. The rainy season seems to be about over, and we are having warm weather with very little rain for the past few days. It is never cold here. The natives know nothing of snow or cold weather, as it never gets colder than 60 degrees above zero. Oranges are ripe now. Cucumbers here are the finest I ever saw. Most everything that grows here keeps ripening the year round; blossoms, green and ripe fruit on the same plant. Grass is cut and fed to the horses green, and there is plenty of green grass all the time.
The natives I have talked to are anxious for the United States to hold the islands. I have seen most of the city, and it seems to me it must have been a beautiful place before the war and will soon be so again when it is cleaned up and the trees grow out again where they were pruned off. With love to all, your son, CLARENCE ENGLISH, Co. E, Oregon Vols, Manila, P. I.
