Mrs. Alma Howe was able to drive to town on Monday. Her health is much improved of late, and she can now walk across the room without the aid of a crutch. Three years ago a heavy stick of stove wood fell on her foot, which caused her much pain at the time, and finally affected her ner-vous system, and she has been an in-valid ever since. For a year or more she was bedfast. Doctors could give her no relief: they could only promise that time, though it might take years, would give her relief from pain and restore her health. She has borne her affliction with true Christian fortitude, and her friends everywhere will rejoice to learn that she is now in a fair way to recover.
