The Hood River Glacier.

It's a Cold Day When We Get Left.

VOL. X.
HOOD RIVER, OREGON. FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1894.

NO. 41.

FROM SPANISH SOURCES

Report That Foreign Troops
Have Landed at Manila.

THERE IS CONSTANT FIGHTING.

It is believed the insurgents will make their way through the American lines.

Malaca, P., March 2nd: official accounts say that a large Spanish force was landed at Manila last night by a large Spanish fleet, consisting of 18 warships, 10 of which are of 1,000 tons, and 8 of 1,800 tons each. The foreign warships are disembarking troops and landing the same in several different places, and are now before the English batteries and Fort San Pedro. The foreign vessels have been observed to be landing about 500 men in four different places. The night is passed in preparation for an attack. The foreign warships have been observed to be firing on all points in the city, and the fort is being attacked by the troops which are landed. The English batteries in the city have made several shots, and the Spanish vessels have replied with great precision.

The Foreign Admiralty.

The English and Spanish admiralties have been in constant communication. The English admiral has been informed that the American force is not sufficient to resist the attack of the Spanish fleet, and that the fort is in imminent danger of capture. The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated. The Spanish fleet is reported to be in the harbor, and is expected to attack the fort at any moment. The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated. The Spanish fleet is reported to be in the harbor, and is expected to attack the fort at any moment.

The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated.

The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated.

The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated.

The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated.

The English admiral has ordered the fort to be evacuated.