Clarence English at the Front.

MANILA, Feb. 11, 1899.—Dear Mother: I have just received the camara and the cartridges of film. I am more than glad to get them, as I used my last film on the battlefield yesterday. The insurgents started the music on the night of February 4th, and we have been licking the devil (please excuse this word) out of them ever since. The Oregon regiment has been kept inside the wall all the while. I got out on Monday, the 6th, and went with the Oregonian reporter to the front, where we joined E company of the First California at San Pedro Macati and went nearly to Pasig, about 15 miles from Manila. We were then six miles beyond our lines and had to fight our way back. We lost only one man and had two others wounded, one very badly and the other slightly. This is all the fighting I have seen except what I have witnessed from the roof of our quarters and one little scrap at a church in the suburbs of Paco, as the reporter and I were on the way out.

I was out over the battlefield yesterday. I saw the ground in the insurgents' trenches covered with cartridge shells two inches deep for quite a distance, while where our men stood only a handful in places could be found. Insurgents are buried every little way along in their intrenchments. There are hundreds of them, and we made the prisoners throw more dirt on the half-covered corpses. The stench from them was fearful. I took a photo of the hill they are buried on. I have a number of good views of the battlefield. The battle is still going on. Our army is doing splendidly and no mistake. I heard this morning that Dave Gibbons was killed, but it proved to be another Gibbons. Dave is all right. He has been right in the front with the Fourteenth regulars ever since the war began with the insurgents and does fine work. Howard Isenberg is acting as a mounted messenger for General Anderson, along with seven others from the clerks. Maltie Dukes is still at Cavite. Dr. Brosius is here. Mark Robinson and the rest are all right, so far as I know. I have not heard from the Dimmick boys lately.

Our loss has been light considering that we have killed about 5,000 insurgents, according to the Spanish papers here. We have lost about 100 killed, so far, and about 200 wounded. Last evening, before dark, our troops, about eight miles north of here, played a Yankee trick on the insurgents and killed the biggest part of 800, capturing the few left alive as prisoners. They did it in this way: An advance guard was sent out 200 or 300 yards from the center of the line. When the insurgents saw them they thought the line was weak at that point and charged. Our men fell back and lined up on both flanks and had all the artillery masked to the rear. As soon as the insurgents got into the trap the artillery and both regiments on the flanks commenced to pour it into them and annihilated the whole bunch. The Fillipinos used to tell us how they laid down and let the Spaniards advance, then jump up and knife the Spaniards. They tried that on our boys, but it didn't work. Our boys simply killed the whole works of them. Before they could use a knife our lad boys the brains knocked out of their black pates with the butts of their guns.

The Spaniards think the Americans are the hardest and best fighters they ever heard of. They want to know when we ever sleep and seem to be sickled over the way we are thrashing the insurgents. Aguinaldo is at Malolos, about ten miles from here, and has about 40,000 of his niggers with him. They are not all armed with rifles, though it would make but little difference anyhow, as they are very poor shots. The day I was out to the front they were shooting at us all day from both flanks, from the rear and the front, in fact from every direction. They were hidden along the river, in the hills on both sides. We were on the south side and marched on the route in columns of fours, with an advance and rear guard thrown out. The man who was killed was a flanker on the right of the rear guard; also one of the wounded; so you see they were on all sides of us. We were on a reconnoitering expedition to get the lay of the country. The boys burn all the native huts as they go, because they hide in them and fire on us. They all have white flags hanging out, but try to shoot you just the same. So we just go in and take anything we find in the way of chickens, pigs or anything else, and then burn the house. We can go out after a place is burned and see from one to three dogs standing around in the yard bowling for dear life. One of them came at me yesterday, but I gave him a 44 calibre bullet in the top part of his head, and he is a good doggie now. Your loving son,

CLARENCE ENGLISH.

John Cradlebaugh evidently doesn't intend to run for office again in Wasco county, and therefore feels at liberty to kick because his taxes have been raised. Somebody, unknown, got the late legislature to raise the salary of the county school superintendent, and Cradlebaugh thinks the assessor suspicioned him and assessed his "little shack" enough to pay for the raise. He denies that he had anything to do with the raise in salary.

Vancouver objects to a negro regiment being stationed at that place. Is there no place the negro soldier is welcomed but at the front?

The cost of the present war, which commenced with Spain April 21, 1898, up to the 4th of March had amounted to half a billion dollars. Estimating loss of soldiers' productive labor, interest on war debt, pensions, etc., the cost will foot up over a billion. Glorious destiny is a costly luxury.

The late wool growers convention at Pendleton adopted a resolution asking that national legislation should require all shoddy goods to be so labeled. It is right that wool should be protected in this manner.

HOOD RIVER, March 18, 1899.—Editor GLACIER: I am living on the mountain side, facing the rising sun, and can get a fine view of our beautiful valley and its enterprises. Mr. J. W. Redington, the Oregonian correspondent, I think should be praised for writing about our valley and manufactories. There is one enterprise, however, he didn't mention, and that is the flume on Phelps creek. It is 9½ miles long, with the planer at the mouth and a large saw mill at the head. It is owned by Davenport Bros. and is managed by Frank Davenport and G. D. Woodworth. This enterprise cut 3,250,000 feet of lumber and 2,100 cords of wood in 1898, which brought over $26,000 into the valley. The company have rebuilt five miles of flume and a branch of two miles, which taps over twenty million feet of fine timber. They have built a new mill, which is running night and day, giving employment to over seventy men. They also have 1,500 to 2,000 cords of wood cut and on the flume, ready to market, which they expect to flume within the next thirty days. They expect to double their last year's cut, which will bring about $44,000 into the valley this season, as much as the strawberry crop. This flume has been in operation for the past nine years and has timber enough to run another nine years, cutting from three to six millions per year. With very little repairing the flume will last for ten years. I have labored on this flume for the past ten years and can say that it is in better shape now than at any time before. There has been nine saw mills on and near this flume. J. T. NEALEIGH.

Congregational Church. — Services next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. The pastor will preach at 11 a. m. on "Gethsemane." A cordial welcome to all who come.

The new residence of S. H. Cox is going up on his lots near the school house.

Claude Copple returned from the state university, at Eugene, last Monday, and will resume his position with the Davenport & Woodworth flume company.

T. J. Cunning was jolted from his wagon, March 10th, and fell under the wheels, fracturing both bones of his right leg. Dr. Shaw set the fracture.

Little Floyd Campbell dislocated his elbow Wednesday, while playing with other children at the school house.

J. L. Atkinson of Portland spent several days in Hood River last week.

J. C. Porter and family came up from Portland on a visit last Saturday. Mr. Porter lately returned from San Francisco on the trial trip of the Dew torpedo boat Fox. He was on the trial trip of the torpedo boat Davis, when that boat was blown up, and received injuries from which he has not yet entirely recovered.

Persons having books belonging to the Hood River library in their possession are requested to return the same. A good many have allowed their subscriptions to expire and still retain books in their possession that ought to be returned to the library.

P. S. Davidson, jr., has been sick during the week.

A typographical error in last week's GLACIER made the date of the public school entertainment come on Sunday. A good programme for this entertainment is announced, the young folks have sold a good number of tickets for the entainment which comes off this evening

The public school had the honor of furishing the first job for the GLACIER'S new job press.

S. A. Knapp of the People's Store has commenced on his new store building, which will be 18 by 48 feet, one story.

County Surveyor, Galt, commenced, Wednesday, to lay out six acres in town lots on Mrs. Mattie Oiler's land on the East Side, adjoining the Button place.

Supt. O'Brien and Industrial Agent Judson of the O. R. & N., were in Hood River, Wednesday.

Clyde T. Bonney is the proudest man in town since the new arrival at his house. But there will be no rise in the price of meats at Reciprocity Corner. The gentlemanly attendants will still deal out choice steaks, juicy roasts, groceries and all kinds of eatibles at the same old astonishingly low prices.

Rev. J. T. Merrill brought down a large span of horses from Sherman county, Tuesday, which were purchased by Fred Howe.

The latest factory in Hood River is a candy factory. W. B. Cole manufactures most of his choice candies.

Mount Hood Notes.

The weather has been quite snowy for several days. We can account for this, Warren Cooper has just finished a new pair of bob sleighs.

I. A. McCrum has been surveying an irrigating ditch to be taken out of Trout creek. The ditch will be about one and one-half miles long.

Our postmaster took a flying trip to Portland this week.

GEM CITY.

This little town is just platted by Mrs. Mattie Oiler, on the choicest garden land on her homestead on the east bank of Hood River. From here a pleasant view from all parts of the compass meets the eye—Mt. Hood in plain sight. On level, grassy land; the easiest of access, the nearest the business center of any and all lots in the vicinity of Hood River. A most desirable spot to build a home, and last but not least, the cheapest lots on earth.

Twenty-five of these lots will be offered for sale just as soon as the plat is recorded. First comers get the gems. Call on or address

MRS. MATTIE OILER.
