Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, APRIL 21; 1999. The Ben Davis apple is condemned by some people, who claim it is worthless as an eating apple, being leathery and tasteless. The fact is this apple, like a good many other varieties, is not longest keepers and never gets ripe enough for eating till the spring of the year. The Ben Davis is now ripe, and when kept in a suitable place, will be good till the middle of the summer. It is as good an eating apple as can be found in the markets at this time of year. As a cooking apple it is the best. It will stand more freezing weather than any other apple. It is the handthan any other apple. It is the hand-somest apple in the market today. The tree is hardy and bears every year. No matter how much the tree may be al-lowed to overhear in one season, it lowed to overbear in one season, it lowed to overbear in one season, it the memory of The Dalles teachers comes out smiling with blooms the who attended the educational meeting next, while some other varieties take a year or two to recuperate. It is adapted to most soils and will do well alongside the Newtown pippin and Spitzenburg, or will flourish in any apple country where these two favorites fail. More Ben Davis apples of a good marketable size can be grown than any

The Hillsboro Argus has opened a campaign in favor of the states of Oregon and Washington pensioning the Indian war veterans. This is a good move. Congress will never come to the relief of these worthy veteraus. The little that would be added to our state taxes by pensioning the men who fought our Indian wars fifty years ago would not be felt by the average taxpayer and would be an act of justice long overdue.

"took notes," but finding a much better report in the Mountaineer, concluded to give it entire for the benefit of our readers: The whistling of the steamer Dalles City last Saturday morning meant more to the teachers of The Dalles public schools than ever the ringing of the tardy bell on school days. Tardiness on that occasion meant to be left, and that meant to miss the opportunity of one of they were ambushed and captured. the most delightful excursions and gen-eral good times that could be offered west. So there was a general rush for the boat, some hurrying away without their breakfast, but all reached the whirf in time. Winds and waves were fair, and the grand old Columbia bore. precious load of pedagogues on to beautiful town of Hood River, which dawned in sight after a splendid ride of two hours.

Carriages sufficient to accomodate all were in waiting to transfer the guests to the school house; tut as an hour intervened before the opening of the lusti-tute the drivers very kindly offered to give the visitors an opportunity to enbe called a natural park, which Dame Nature has so generously bequeathed to that part of the universe. And so the carriages glided over the most perfect roads, amid grand old oaks and dately place the grand carried with rolling near, and Hood river dashing on its bed of rocks. While beyond, on either side, rose a snow peak glistening in the April sun, and one could not but feel that the old dame had been prodigally partial to that most favored spot. Her bounties are not confined to the beautiful, but blooming orchards and extensive strawberry fields were everywhere to be seen, while shading the road were trees of immense size that must soan fail victims to the weodman's ax, since a leavest of the stray of the stray of the stray of the stray of the effective feather moth and also its organ; your older ones for health as well as cleanlings, for they will be good as new and as large. In house cleaning you clean to the woodman's ax, since a leavest of the stray of the stray of the stray of the effective feather moth and also its organ; your older ones for health as well as cleanling so the stray of the stray of the effective feather moth and also its organ; your older ones for health as well as cleanling so the stray of the stately pines; the ground carpeted with green and gold; the broad Columbia rolling near, and Hood river dashing on its bed of rocks. While beyond, on that noust soon fall victims to the woodman's ax, since a large sawmill is woodnian's ax, since a large sawmill is being built, all showing this section to be rich in resources. Surely the home seeker could find no more promising locality. Even above all these gifts from nature's store, is the spirit that dominates the community, so evident in the magnificent school building, substantian the churches and beautiful homes. The kustitute commenced at 10 a.m., and the teachers assembled promptly notwithstanding the attractions outside. Before entering upon the regular work, the rooms of the school building were inspected by the visitors, and much admired for their decorations which reflected credit upon the teachers.

Also, a fine line of Jewelry at reasonable prices. Call and examine goods. "The kustitute commenced at 10 a.m., and the teachers assembled promptly netwithstanding the attractions out-which reflected credit upon the teachers in charge, who are unquestionably up-to-date.

The exercises opened with a song by the pupils of Prof. Allard's room that was exceptionally well rendered, and the address of welcome by Hon. E. L. Smith was hearty and full of interest, being a contrast of the old and new methods of conducting schools. America was next sung by the entire assemblage, led by Prof. Landers. The singing did not quite "raise the roof" but it did raise the hearts of those present to the importance of the public schools—the corner stone of the American repuls to the stories of welcome, and the artiful work of the meeting was commenced.

Prof. Landers gave an able address on the subject of literature in the schools, and among the many good things mentioned in the discussion that followed was the tribute Mrs. E. M. Wilson paid the Youth's Companion as an educator of the young mind. An excellent paper was read by Miss Minnie Elton, the theme being "teacher's personality," that was especially interesting to educators. Miss Salina Phiman gave an illustrated talk on number work in the first grade that was instructive. Dinner time approaching, all repaired to Mt. H od hotel, where one of the HOOD RIVER, .

Feather Renovator

Is cleaning feather beds and pillows at Hood River. Have your new feathers renovated to destroy the effective feather moth and also its organ; your older ones for health as well as cleanfiness, for they will be good as new and as large. In house cleaning you clean up everything but the feathers. After sickness or death in the family, you clean up everything but the feathers. By having them renovated by this new and improved process your feathers will have more life and bulk; as an illustration, two pillows will be as large as three. Give us a trial and be convinced. Satisfaction guaranteed or no charges made.
