BECOMING TOOTHLESS.

What the Consumption of Sweets Is Doing for Americans.

There is a disagreeable suggestiveness in a declaration made by a prominent dentist of this city last night in a "people's lecture" delivered in a public school building under the auspices of the board of education. The doctor's subject was "The Care of the Teeth and Mouth," and in the course of his remarks he announced that we are fast becoming a toothless people because of the absence of intelligent care. He pointed out that many children at the age of 2 years have decayed teeth, while it is very common to find girls of 14 and 16 well supplied with artificial teeth. These evils, he sald, can be avoided if parents will insist upon proper care and will impress upon their children its great import-

With only this published summary at hand it may be easy to do the lecturer an injustice. But if he went no farther than is here indicated it cannot be said that he struck at the root of the evil which constituted his subject. This root is found in our inordinate consumption of sweets. It is pitiful to contemplate the complacency with which unthinking or ignorant parents, rich as well as poor, consent to cater criminally to the infantile demand for candy. The effect is less disastrous, perhaps, among the well to do, for the reason that the stuff consumed is manufactured from superior materials. But certain it is that with American children of every class the confectioner is patronized more generously than is the butcher or the baker. To this fact is due most of the destruction of teeth in youth, as well as many of the troubles having their rise in the stomach,

Care of the teeth and mouth is essential, of course, and will go far to minimize the evil results complained of. But no amount of care will "avoid the evil" so long as parents continue to destroy their Infants feeding them upon candy and consent to inordinate consumption by their children of larger growth. It is the prevalence of the "sweet tooth" that threatens to make of us a toothless people.-New York Mail and Express.

History of the Donacy.

The best donkeys come from Arabia. They have clean, smooth coats, hold their heads high and are used only for riding purposes. Many are sent to Persia where they sell for high sums. They are well looked after and their barnessings are of the richest.

In the far east the donkey for centuries has received the appreciation of solely for the saddle, exists in Syria and a smaller kind is devoted to the use of the women when they wish to As one goes farther east the donkeys diminish in stature and in India the tiny animal called a donkey is used only by the people of the lower caste. Europe, Malta and Spain supply the finest donkeys, and in parts of Italy and France good specimens may be secured. Although the donkey was known in England in the reign of the earlier Saxons it was not common, for it became extinct till the reign of Elizabeth. The wild origin of the donkey is supposed to have been the koulan or onager, which exists in herds in Persia and similar lands. The skin is used for making shagreen leather. The donkey is coming into general favor abroad, and even America may soon become accustomed to seeing children driving donkey carts or invalids taking a muchneeded airing drawn by the patient littie animals, which make good pets and are so much less expensive than a pony.
