

Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1906.

The Hood River glacier tells of an interesting object lesson to be seen in a glacier field on the farm of Mr. Stump, at Mouth, Oregon. This field had been plowed two or three times, had been thoroughly harrowed with disc harrow and common harrow, and had been successively rolled and harrowed two or three times. The seeding and final harrowing and rolling was done about the first of June last. When the field was receiving its last rolling night came on before the job was finished, and that night it rained. This prevented finishing the rolling. There is a most remarkable difference in the stand of clover on the piece in the center which did not get the final rolling and the stand in the rest of the field. There appears to be at least three times as much clover on the land that received the extra rolling as on the piece in the center. Mr. Stump finds that the more thoroughly the land can be prepared and packed the better the clover does.

Republican primaries will be held tomorrow, at 2 o'clock. The different precincts in Hood River and near by will be entitled to delegates as follows: East Hood River 5; West Hood River, 4; South Hood River, 4; Baldwin, 2; Mosier, 2; Viento, 2. Much interest is manifested, and the delegates from Hood River will not be represented by proxy.

The democratic central committee met at the Dalles last Saturday. March 21st was fixed as the date for holding the primaries and April 10th for the county convention. Hood River and adjoining precincts will elect delegates as follows: East Hood River, 5; West Hood River, 4; South Hood River, 2; Baldwin, 2; Mosier, 4; Viento, 2.

A. E. Lake of Wamic is mentioned as a candidate for county clerk on the republican ticket. Mr. Lake has many friends throughout the county that would be glad to get a chance to vote for him for that office or any other.

Hugh Gourlay is back in the editorial harness and is writing red-hot editorials and bright locals on The Dalles Chronicle. Mr. Gourlay is at home in newspaper work.

Commissioner Schanno reports a fine prospect for fruit in the orchards near the Dalles. He says fruit trees are three weeks earlier than usual in putting out buds.

The price of eggs got down to 11 cents a dozen wholesale in Portland last week—the lowest price for two years, according to the Pacific Farmer.

The state central committee of the people's party of Oregon will meet at Salem at 11 o'clock a. m., Saturday, March 24, 1906.

The Antelope Herald says County Judge May will not be a candidate for re-election.

The Blue Mountain American calls it the "eruptive disease."

The Cantata.

The cantata of "Lost and Saved" at the armory last Friday night drew a $40 house. Everything had been done by the management to make the large hall comfortable, and they succeeded admirably. Every one in the cast for the play acted his or her part well. The Hood River cornet band furnished excellent music between the acts. Miss Ida Foss, as the leading character, elicited much favorable comment by her acting in the role of a drunkard's wife. Howard Isenberg did well as the inebriate husband who was lost and saved. Miss Simmons, in the character of "Betsy Sharp," an old maid, did superb acting and captured the applause of the house every time she appeared in the play. E. E. Fig, as "Mr. Jinks," the awkward and bashful lover, was the personification of his character. He stumbled and stammered, perspired and fell over himself, and got so frightened when the charming "Miss Betsy Sharp" coursed him finally and forced him to propose that he actually forgot his part of the dialogue and would have caused a break down had not the ready resources of Miss Simmons helped them both out of the predicament. S. A. Knapp seemed perfectly at home in the character of a minister, and his every movement and speech was in accord with good acting. Miss Carrie Cople, as "Mrs. Howard Isenberg," was good in her different parts. W. S. Gregory and Miss Grace Howell filled well the characters of "Mr. Leith" and "Mrs. Leith" as "Old Grim" and "Little Aldine Bartleson" respectively. Mell Foley, as "Old Grim," the landlord, filled the bill as a saloon keeper, while S. E. Bartness, Joe Mayon, David Fleming and Chester Shute did well as saloon bums. Sam Blowers' make up as "Lawyer Smith" brought down the house. When the curtain rolled up and showed S. E. Bartness, David Fleming and Chester Shute in a game of cards in "Old Grim's" saloon, the scene was so realistic that no one would suspect that S. E. Bartness' education in that line had been neglected. The tableaux in which Faith, Hope and Charity were represented by the Misses Gladys Hartley, Lillian Shute and Agnes Ingelbreton, was admirably executed. The only adverse criticism indulged in by the audience was in regard to the solos, which some seemed to think were too numerous and lengthy. But the play, taken as a whole, is all right and will be repeated. The same audience would like to hear Miss Simmons sing again "Why Don't the Men Propose," and act again the role of the old maid and afterwards strong-minded wife, as well as all the others who took part in the play.

Letter from the Philippines. From a private letter from Edwin Henderson of the 39th regular infantry, now in the Philippines, we are permitted to make the following extracts: I am now on detached duty in Manila. My surroundings are pleasant. I am happy to think I can be of some use to my country. * * * This war may last for five years unless they go to work and clean 'em out.

I have been in the hospital for two weeks; got out yesterday. I will explain. One of our lieutenants sent me to the drug store to get some stuff, giving me a prescription. I did not know what it was and carelessly stuck the bottle in my hip pocket. Walking carelessly along, I got to a nice slippery place and the bottle broke as I sat down with a great deal of ease, as you can suppose upon the pavement. I arose rather sudden and let out an Indian war whoop. For I was on fire. Spreading down the street at the rate of 40 miles an hour, I made a dash across the bridge of Spain and turned up the Lunetta. I went to the hospital. The guard, after fooling around for half an hour, told me to report to the steward, which I wasn't doing. He examined me and said I was tormented with nitric and carbonic acid. I lay on my back for eight days, but I must say the nurses are O. K. I was in the first reserve, and while I was there seven men died from the effects of operations for appendicitis. When I was well enough to walk they put me to watching patients.

New Roads.

The county court last week established roads and appointed viewers as follows: W. W. Nason et al. R. Leasure, O. H. Rhoads and H. H. Tomlinson appointed viewers to meet March 14th. D. S. Crapper et al. H. L. Crapper, Thomas Bishop and T. Van Ausdale appointed viewers to meet March 13th. Douglas Riggs et al. O. H. Rhoads, H. H. Tomlinson and R. Leasure appointed viewers to meet March 13th.

A Card.

As my friends seem to be anxious that I should be a candidate for some office, from road supervisor to supreme judge of the state of Oregon (they have not decided which), I would like to say that owing to the fact that there is no governor to be elected this year I cannot accommodate them.

G. J. GESSLING.

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism.

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N.C. The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered for several days, and second, with rheumatism in the hand, which he cured in ten days, with relief with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts affected and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in his right thumb, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. For sale by Williams & Bros.,

Advertised Letter List.

March 12, 1906. Balmhen, E. Melton, Henry McManis, Jim Caughman, N. W. Pool, C. D. Driver, F. W. Smith, Mrs. Kate Jonson, Fred. Wm. M. Yates, P. M.

Council Proceedings.

A regular meeting of the common council was held Tuesday evening. Present, Mayor Brosius, Aldermen Blowers, Dukes, Davidson, Luckey and McDonald.

Ordinance 21, providing for licensing and regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, was read second time and adopted.

Ordinance 22, amending ordinance 1, providing rules for the government of the council, was read second time and adopted. This ordinance changes the time of meeting to twice a month, the first and third Mondays.

Ordinance 23, to regulate peddling on the streets, was read second time and adopted.

Bills were read and referred to the finance committee, as follows: C. L. Rogers, for hospital, $40; Gillette, printing, 75c.

McDonald, from the committee on health and police, reported that Dr. Shaw had asked to be relieved as physician at the hospital. After some discussion, Blowers moved that Dr. Shaw's request be granted, provided another physician can be found to take his place. Carried.

Considerable discussion was indulged in in regard to the best method of raising revenue to meet the fast accumulating debts of the town since we have a hospital and a small-pox patient with a large family to provide for and other expenses. It was suggested to tax the business houses of the town; to tax all horses and cows; to tax dogs; raise money by subscription; but as there are no pressing debts, no action was taken further than to instruct the marshal to enforce the dog tax law.

Adopted.

The greatest danger from colds and influenza is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. It will cure a cold or an attack of influenza in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Williams & Bros.

B. R. F. G. U.

Articles appearing in the GAZETTE under the above heading from week to week will be furnished and edited by the board of directors of the Hood River Fruit Growers' Union.

A few reasons why the Union can realize better returns to the grower than others:

1. The Union has in its active management two men who have had large personal experience during shipping seasons in Montana and Eastern markets, and have a better knowledge of the requirements of those markets than a hundred years of shooting at them from this end would give.
2. It is the oldest shipping concern here and had the choice of commission men in the various markets. It naturally chooses the best and best paid.
3. Being purely co-operative, it does not hunt the houses that will give the largest bonus for business, but takes the houses that can handle the business in the best shape and make the best returns to the grower.
4. It is not shipping fruit to make money to carry on side issues, but is engaged exclusively in shipping fruit, and the management will give this their exclusive attention. In these days of specialties this means much.
5. The management does not care to boast of the integrity but will leave that to the people.
6. The Union boxes are open to inspection of the Union shippers to the extent of any information concerning their own shipments, and they may inspect the returns of their own shipments, and they may inspect any other matter pertaining to their business.

Hood River Valley.

Its northern boundary is the Columbia river; its eastern a high spur or divide putting out from Mount Hood, 2,000 feet or more in height, admirably protecting the valley from cold winds in winter and the hot, destructive winds in summer that come from the east; its western boundary the timbered slopes of the Cascade range, while the broad base of Mt. Hood completely blocks the valley to the south. The arable portion of the valley is some twenty miles in length by an average width of five miles, or 64,000 acres. Deduct 14,000 acres for hills and tracts rough for cultivation, and we have 50,000 acres available for tillage. Hood river receives all the drainage of the north and east side of Mt. Hood, and the melting snows of summer maintain a large and constant flow of water. The river has a descent of over 60 feet to the mile, and a canal eight miles in length would direct any portion of its waters to the timber on the plateau just above the village and 250 feet above the railway line.

At the present time all the arable lands on the west side of Hood river have irrigation facilities, and a good commencement has been made in the irrigation of the east side of the valley that will cover 15,000 acres. In a brief time there will not be a ten-acre tract in all this district but what may have its running brook, its fragrant meadow.

The country adjacent to the upper part of Hood river is covered with forest growth and the timber adjacent to the river has been estimated as high as a billion of feet.

Last year were shipped some 37,000 crates, or over one million pounds of strawberries, which went to Omaha, St. Paul, Duluth, Denver, Salt Lake and other markets. There are also about 120,000 standard fruit trees, largely apples, in orchard form.

Such, in brief, are some of the characteristics of Hood River Valley; but apart from these it has an aesthetic value that should not be overlooked. Here beauty and sublimity are added to wealth of forest and soil. The climate is most salubrious, the air a luxury to breathe. The western breezes come fragrant with the odors of the pines and firs of a hundred miles of forest, and nowhere does the glorious sunlight leave a warmer blush on fruit and flower than in this mountain valley. Ascend to the level of the plateau just above the village and objects of physical grandeur are everywhere about. To the south, so beautiful and seemingly so near, rises the graceful, immaculate shaft, Mt. Hood, that all Oregonians love. To the north, Adams' rears its bulky form more than 12,000 feet above the sea, sovereign of all the lesser peaks from Shasta to Rainier, and at their very feet flow in ceaseless measures the garnered waters of an empire. Modest and plain our homes, but grand and incomparable our surroundings.

The fruit products are not limited to apples and strawberries, but include pears, peaches, plums, blackberries and all varieties of small fruits, while clover and the various grasses, wheat, potatoes, vegetables and garden products succeed admirably, especially under irrigation. Six or seven saw mills, three of which cut from 100 to 150,000 feet of lumber per day, employing many men, are operating in the valley. The available water power is fully 120,000 horse power and equals that of Spokane. Hundreds of visitors spend their summer vacations in the valley, camping, hunting, fishing or wheeling, each year. There are no cyclones to terrify, no blizzards to chill nor thunder storms, but to be had at a slight cost above the cutting.

Lands can be purchased at from $25 to $200 per acre, according to location, improvements, etc.
